T-Way Crash Slices Auto, Victim Still Unidentified

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Ulster County's 35th highway fatality of 1967 was recorded Friday night when an unidentified man was killed and two others seriously injured after a rented 1967 car went out of control and was cut in two pieces after hitting a bridge abutment on the State Thruway north of Saugerties.

State Police and Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser were endeavoring to establish the identity of the victim of the spectacular crash that occurred at 10:20 p. m. near Mile Post 103 (North).

Man Cheats Death
The mishap was one of many investigated in this area Friday and early today by state troopers. Several persons were injured. A Nauseau County man narrowly escaped death in a Gardner accident.

Sergeant J. M. Abate of Troop T said it was not immediately determined who was driving the 1967 car when it crashed into the bridge tier about two miles north of Saugerties. The dead man was found slumped on the front seat of the wrecked vehicle.

Other occupants of the car at the time of the crash were rushed to Kingston Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance. They were identified by troopers as Thomas Smith, 27, of 16 Albany Avenue, Albany and William Scott, 21, of 839 Brandt Street, Schenectady. They were ejected from the sedan and both were in serious condition at the hospital.

Because of their condition Smith and Scott could not be questioned. Their relatives informed troopers they didn't know who the dead man was or where he lived. He had no papers of identification on his person.

Couple, Daughter Hurt
A New Jersey couple and their daughter were injured at 6:50 p. m. Friday when the car in which they were riding went out of control and was cut in two pieces after hitting a bridge abutment on the State Thruway near mile post 84.4 (North) and overturned on the center mall.

Sergeant J. M. Abate said Mrs. Barbara Moffett, 25, of Fort Lee, N. J., was driving north when a tractor-trailer operated by Jean Claude Patry, 35, of Montreal, attempted to pass the passenger car. The headlights of the tractor apparently confused the woman and she lost control of the car as it overturned after glancing off the truck.

Mrs. Moffett, her husband, Robert, 35, and their daughter, Lee Ann, 22 months, were taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance. Moffett suffered cerebral concussion, lacerations of the forehead and scalp and other injuries. His condition was listed as serious. The baby sustained contusions of the scalp and right shoulder.

Trooper J. B. Fox cited Patry for following too close. He pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Robert Stedje, Town of Ulster, and fined $10. Troopers said a pet beagle was in the car at the time of the mishap. The dog, attached to a leash, ran into the woods near Rosendale.

Thruway Trooper John Ryan investigated a three-car accident which occurred at 7:45 p. m. Friday near mile post 82.8 (North). He reported the vehicles were operated by Shamuddin Rana, 30, of Brooklyn; Donald Hopkins, 22, Ticonderoga; and Harry Eckes, 60, of North Arlington, N. J.

Chain Reaction Collision
Sergeant Abate said the three vehicles were heading north when an unidentified motorist applied the brakes of his vehicle causing the car to spin around blocking the traffic lane.

A chain reaction collision followed involving the Rana, Hopkins and Eckes vehicles. Eckes sustained lacerations of the right arm. He was cited by Trooper Ryan for operating an unregistered motor vehicle. Rana was summoned on a charge of failure to notify the motor vehicle commission of a change of address.

Highland State Police investigated a near-fatal accident which occurred at 2:30 a. m. on Albany Post Road, Town of Gardiner. Trooper R. A. Bunting reported Jack Austin, 22, of Bethpage, was driving his 1957 convertible south when he failed to negotiate a right curve. The vehicle careened off the east side of the highway and rolled down a 30-foot embankment coming to a stop on its wheels in a gully after hitting several trees.

Troopers J. F. Czaplicki and G. P. Rebhan reported Austin was taken to Vassar Hospital in critical condition. He suffered head and internal injuries. The car was wrecked, authorities said.

State Chamber Official
John J. Roberts, executive vice-president of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce, will be the featured speaker at Tuesday morning's breakfast meeting. "A Businessman's View of the Proposed State Constitution."

The breakfast will be sponsored by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce at 7:45 a. m. in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel.

S. James Matthews, Chamber President, today expressed his great pleasure at having so knowledgeable representative of the Empire State Chamber as Roberts speaking before the Chamber membership and guests. Matthews expressed the opinion that Roberts' background and long experience with State government makes him uniquely qualified for his discussion of the proposed State Constitution and its implications to the Kingston Area business community.

In addition to Roberts, who will give a formal discussion on the businessman's viewpoint, there will be a question and answer period in which district delegates, H. Clark Bell and S. James Matthews will participate. Businessmen are urged to bring their questions for discussion at the meeting.

A graduate of Union College and Harvard Law School, Roberts has been executive vice-president of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce since mid-1959. Immediately prior to his appointment as executive vice-president he had been the Chamber's Counsel for seven years.

Before joining the Empire State Chamber of Commerce, he was Tax Counsel for the National Retail Merchants Association.

In 1943, Roberts was assistant counsel to the Moreland Commission studying New York State's Workmen's Compensation Law. In 1948, he was named chief counsel to the special study group appointed by the Governor to recommend improvements in the State's Unemployment Insurance Law and its administration.

Presently, Roberts serves by appointment of Governor Rockefeller on the Governor's Business Advisory Committee, on the Workmen's Compensation Advisory Committee by appointment of Solomon Senior, Chairman of the Board and on the Executive Committee of the Council for a Sound New York Constitution.

Matthews urged Chamber members and other interested members of the business community to call the Chamber office for reservations for Tuesday morning's breakfast.

Yesterday's Newsboys Big Successes Today

By LYNN MULVANEY

Former newsboys, who have gone on to big successes in their lifetimes, are a familiar story in many cities in our land. Kingston is no exception.

Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn, acting Urban Renewal director, Ward B. Tongue; bank president, William Buddenhagen and Sheriff William B. Martin are examples, just to name a few.

Sheriff Martin, who began delivering The Kingston Freeman in 1926, stopped by the Freeman's uptown office to commend today's newsboys for using their leisure time in such a worthwhile endeavor.

Today's carrier boy is more than a delivery man. He is independently employed and engaged in business for himself. Each youngster, when establishing a route, purchases the needed amount of papers wholesale, and then retails them, bills and collects the money for himself. Others work through private delivery services but are still responsible for seeing that each and every paper gets delivered in good condition and on time.

"Such responsibilities for youngsters prepare them well for the future," Sheriff Martin contends. Today, when vandalism and lack of respect for authority and responsibility is so prevalent among young people, it is good to know that some youngsters recognize the value of keeping themselves occupied in worthwhile enterprises.

KTF Vote Choice, Official Pact Next

Elected by a slim margin as the exclusive bargaining agent for the teachers' negotiating unit in the Kingston School District Consolidated on Friday, the Kingston Teachers' Federation plans to meet soon with the school board to discuss schedules for formal negotiations and a dues checkoff through the business office.

The election, conducted by the American Arbitration Association, brought out 96 percent of the eligible voters in the school system. The vote was 273 for the KTF and 260 for the Kingston Teachers' Association. Seven teachers voted for no representation and there were five challenged votes.

Leaders of both teachers groups said the KTF was chosen by a one-half vote majority and explained that based on the eligible voters 272½ votes were needed to win the election.

After the results were officially announced by the AAA Vernon L. Outwater Jr., president of KTF issued the following statement:

"The response of the Kingston teachers does not come as a surprise to me. It reaffirms the convictions that the KTF has had about the educators in our district. The desire to effectively participate in educational affairs has moved teachers to place their faith and trust in the organization that has a long history of sound accomplishments.

"Twenty-five years of dedicated service to the educational establishments in Kingston are the credentials we have earned as we look to the monumental task of attaining for children and teachers of Kingston the highest possible standard of educational excellence."

G. Thomas Keehn, president of the KTA, issued a statement after the results were announced. He said, "The Kingston Teachers' Association extends congratulations to the Kingston

Federation on their being chosen the negotiation representative of the professional staff.

"The months ahead will be very important ones to all the pupils, taxpayers, teachers and administrators in Kingston. The KTA is hopeful that the Kingston Federation will seek the support of the entire staff in their program and that all the professionals in the district will be given an opportunity to participate in the development of a much improved school system."

Outwater and other representatives of the KTF said last night that the KTF will now gear its machinery into motion to proceed with the writing of the first official contract with the Board of Education. The KTF leaders pointed out that the group is the first in the Mid-Hudson Valley to be approved as an exclusive collective bargaining agent for teachers' negotiating units.

The KTF president commented on what the election meant for future relations with the school board, said, "Heretofore, the Board of Education was under no compulsion to bargain with teachers. The salary and policy decisions arrived at previously were influenced only by the law of supply and demand and by requirements of the State Education Department."

"The Taylor Law, however, required that the Board bargain in good faith with the agent selected by the teachers. This implies reaching agreement with the agent on all areas under consideration for the contract."

Outwater noted that under the leadership of Arthur Wit-hall, Board president, the school board last summer made every effort to implement the letter and the spirit of the Public Employees Fair Employment Act.

"It was evident to all," Outwater said, "after discussions between the school board, the KTA and KTF, the Board's only concern was the transition from informal talks to collective bargaining be made as efficiently and effectively as local conditions would permit."

The unit consists of all professional personnel except the superintendent of schools, associate superintendents, assistant superintendents, administrative assistants, principals, assistant principals, directors, assistant directors, supervisors, coordinators and department chairmen and deans.

The cost of yesterday's election will be divided equally among the KTA, KTF and the Board of Education.

Local Officials Hear

1968 Pollution Test

By RAY W. TYSON

Air pollution in the Kingston-Ulster area varies between 1,000 and 9,000 tons per year, members of the Common Council's Air Pollution Committee were told yesterday in Albany.

Meeting with representatives of State Air Pollution Control, the committee learned that the major cause of air pollution in this area results from cement plant particles. The plant, Hudson Cement, recently claimed they had spent nearly $1.5 million in pollution control.

Harry Hovy, a state control representative, said his organization plans to have a testing unit in this area by the spring of 1968. He declared the unit would be a semi-portable structure.

In 1963, the State wanted to place a testing device in Kingston but the bid was denied by fire marshals who contended the type of apparatus intended constituted a fire hazard.

Since 1966, the New York State Health Dept. commissioner has had enforcement powers in the air pollution violations. According to the State Air Pollution Commission, local industries have been notified of the various controls and regulations required.

Also discussed at yesterday's meeting was city landfill and the sewerage problem.

Attending the conference were Aldermen Clifford Sinsbaugh, chairman; George Mar-rolls; John L. Machione; and City Clerk Thomas Lyle.

City buses and the cement plant have been accused as the worst violators of air pollution standards. Bus fumes have been termed, "... one of the most deadly of pollutants."

However, Robert Green, president of Hudson Cement, recently noted that most of the $1.5 million spent by his company on control of pollutants was used in the purchase of precipitators, water trucks and street cleaners. He said, "We keep the state standards and use the latest equipment."

Last Chance To Register

Today is the final day for voter registration at district polling places throughout the city and county under the new permanent personal registration effective this year.

The polls have been open since 7 a. m. and will remain open until 10 p. m.

Those expecting to vote on Election Day, Nov. 7, and have not registered at the Board of Elections or during special registration days in various districts in the county must register today.

Political Winds

CHARLES BERRMPOHL
Freeman Political Writer

The big political battle being waged in Ulster County is for County Judge—not only does the position carry with it a 10-year term at $25,000 per, but because a State Supreme Court Judgeship—a 14 year term at about $31,000 ($6,000 more a year)—rests at top of the ladder.

Judge Harry E. Schirick has already resigned from one of the three Ulster Supreme Court slots, and Judge Roscoe V. Elsworth will step down in a year or so. When Elsworth does step down, Ulster County will be left with only one Supreme Judge (Louis G. Bruhn) and another will be appointed shortly thereafter.

So, both incumbent County Judge Raymond J. Mino and challenger John J. Schick are battling tooth and nail for this one.

To spotlight the Mino-Schick campaign, let's turn, for

County Judgeship -- The Big Political Battle

a moment on each candidate's splinter party endorsements.

Schick who sought the Liberal Party endorsement but failed to get it, took the Conservative nod instead.

Schick's reasoning was easy to understand: by getting himself on the Conservative line, he could possibly offset the conservative image of the Republicans and pick up dissident GOP votes from people who would never think of voting Democratic but who could be led to line "C" in order to demonstrate their hostility to the top of the ticket.

As for why the Conservatives nominated Schick: to drive a wedge between the Resnick Democrats and the Schick Democrats in hopes of using the device to force a Resnick defeat in 1968. Unless Schick plays along, this kind of deviousness may be just a little bit too clever for the Conservatives to pull off, even though there could not be too much love lost between the Congressman and the former assistant D.A. from Kingston.

As for Mino's accepting the Liberal endorsement: probably to get a second line on the ballot, but the Liberal strategy appears to have been merely to give the nod to Schick's opponent.

Mino, of course, came to Liberal meetings and actively sought the endorsement, but some Liberal leaders are upset because their advice and consent has not been asked for throughout the span of the Mino campaign.

Also, Liberals are annoyed with the makeup of a number of Mino signs and billboards which make no mention of the Liberal Party or Liberty Bell symbol.

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick told an audience at New Paltz State University Tuesday that he would remain loyal to President Johnson's Vietnam policy even if it meant an armed invasion of North Vietnam.

The Ellenville Democrat also told a similar New Paltz audience this past winter that the U.S. had been assured by those so-called "informed sources" close to the State Department that the Chinese would only enter the war if the U.S. crossed the 17th parallel.

Well, the 17th parallel pretty well forms the dividing line between North and South Vietnam, so, by Resnick's own logic, he would support an action that would lead us into a war with China.

No one should be allowed to get away with that kind of statement, nor with the further comments, made this past Tuesday, that the Vietnam War's unpopularity comes from young men "who want to evade everything" and from mothers "who don't want their darling little boys to leave home."

The Congressman may realize that many mothers are not so concerned about their son's leaving as they are about what kind of condition they will be in when they arrive back home.

As for young men not wanting to go over to that tragic Southeast Asian nation: it is not merely because they "want to evade everything" but because some are genuinely confused about American objectives over there, and others are truly opposed to the objectives.

Perhaps the most unpopular war prior to the Vietnam venture was the Mexican War of 1846—when many felt the U.S. wanted to steal land from the Mexicans—but the Congressman must know that many objections to the present conflict are valid—and if he wants to say, as so many are these days, "Well, now that we are over there, regardless of how we get there, we should go on and win" then he is guilty of the same base reasoning that his more conservative adversaries are.

The self-proclaimed "rubber stamp" for the Johnson administration may be faced with more sober reflections if this war continues to escalate and those pine boxes continue to pile up.

Resnick and Johnson, of course, will both be subjected to the glaring light of history.

Hit Haiphong Says Russell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard B. Russell says President Johnson is not ready to bomb North Vietnam's Port of Haiphong "but he's doing a great many things today he refused to do a year ago."

Russell, the veteran Georgia Democrat who heads the Senate Armed Services Committee and is a long-time Johnson friend, said Friday in an interview he supports the view of Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp that the bombing of the port would end the war quickly.

"That is what I have been advocating for two years," Russell said. "I think we can win the war in Vietnam the way we are fighting it now, but it is going to cost more lives and more money than if we acted decisively to end it."

Progress Is Slow
"We are making slow but steady progress, but at a price I for one do not think we should pay."

Sharp, Pacific military commander in chief, said earlier Friday in Annapolis, Md., that it would be most helpful militarily to bomb Haiphong's port. He conceded this presented a "difficult decision for our government to make" because in hitting docks ships alongside of them—possibly including Soviet supply ships—might be damaged.

But Sharp said Hanoi gets 70

per cent of its supplies through Haiphong and he felt bombing the port would end the war quickly. Russell agreed with this estimate.

"I am sure the President is not ready to order the air strikes at this point," Russell said. "But he is doing a great many things today that he refused to do a year ago. I would not want to predict what he would do in the future."

Wants Channel Bombed

Russell said he thinks the channel leading to the port could be bombed into disuse because it must be dredged continually to accommodate the large ships. He said that at least two other ports, which see little activity now, also should be knocked out to prevent diverting of shipping to them.

Russell said he doesn't agree with those who say a blockade against their shipping might bring the Soviet Union and Red China into the war.

"The Russians didn't start a war when we blockaded them around Cuba," he said. "I think the Russians work tirelessly at subversion but I don't think they are militarily aggressive at this point."

"Of course, they are going to continue to furnish North Vietnam with military equipment and supplies. But I haven't heard of Russia making any threats about going to war and I think China has enough on its hands at home without taking on any more fighting."

DMZ Area Blazing

Marines Repulse 500

SAIGON (AP)—The battered U.S. Marine outpost at Con Thien was hit by a mistaken bombing from an American plane late Friday, killing two Marines and wounding 21, the U.S. command in Saigon disclosed.

The report of the mistaken bombing came after a fierce three-hour fight early Saturday between Marines and attacking North Vietnamese troops a mile below Con Thien, which is just south of the demilitarized zone.

SAIGON (AP) — The war just below the demilitarized zone mounted furiously today as U.S. Marine infantrymen, artillery and planes beat off an attempt by 500 North Vietnamese regulars to storm the perimeter of a Leatherneck base.

After nearly three weeks of only minor attacks, the Communists around the DMZ battered the outpost of Con Thien Friday with almost 400 artillery, rocket, mortar and recoilless rifle shells.

Tear Gas, Grenades
Early today, after another 120-round mortar barrage, the North Vietnamese attacked a Marine battalion's position south of Con Thien, using tear gas and advancing behind smoke grenades.

For the next three hours the battle raged a mile below Con Thien, with American flareships overhead to light the battlefield and spray the Communist jump-off points with fiery Galling gun rounds.

It is rare for the North Vietnamese to use tear gas and smoke grenades, and this was evidently a well equipped unit. At dawn it broke off the fight and slipped off to the southwest, with the Marines trying to get in ahead of it.

Initial battle reports did not give enemy losses. The U.S. Command said 21 Marines were killed, and 20 wounded were taken out by helicopter, with others who were lightly wounded remaining at their posts.

In the Red Shellfire Friday against Con Thien, three Marines were killed and 15 were wounded. The Red attack emphasized that the recent slackening in Communist pressure on the Marines was only a temporary respite and not an end to the threat to the forward posts guarding the most direct route to South Vietnam's five northern provinces.

commander in Vietnam, Gen. William C. Westmoreland. He said last week that although the North Vietnamese had suffered severe losses in the furious artillery duels and air attacks across the DMZ in September, he expected them to build up their forces and move again.

In the northern air war, American pilots flew 154 missions Friday through heavy anti-aircraft fire, barrages of surface-to-air missiles and harassment from Red MIGs. The U.S. pilots probed deep into the North and bombed MIG fields at Kep, Hoa Lac and Kien An, all inside the heavily defended Hanoi-Haiphong defense zone.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of an Air Force F4 Phantom jet Friday, with the two-man crew missing. The plane went down in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam and was the 698th announced U.S. combat loss over the North.

Although there were broken clouds over much of the North, Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots dropped through breaks in the weather to rake supply targets up and down the country and along the coast. The deepest targets were in the "north-east quadrant" where both SAMs and MIGs were encountered, but the MIGs skirted the American formations and wouldn't fight.

Marist Names Van Tassell to Business Staff

Fred Van Tassell has been appointed to the business department of Marist College, Poughkeepsie, according to an announcement made today by acting president, Dr. John Schroeder.

He received his BS in accounting from the State University of New York at Albany in 1964, and his MS in business administration and accounting from the same institution in 1965.

The new faculty member has been a staff accountant for Pratt, Marwick, Mitchell and Company, Glens Falls. Prior to his appointment to the Marist College faculty, he served as a part time faculty member of the Dutchess County Community College's Evening Division.

He is the holder of the National Association of Accountants Award for high academic average in accounting while at the State University at Albany; and the Wall Street Journal Award for work in business subjects during his studies at Albany.

Suspects Hunted

Suspects, seen running from behind the old Eichler Hotel early this morning, are being sought in connection with a stolen car, police said today. According to officials, several men were spotted running from behind the hotel, located off Broadway, after they abandoned a stolen auto. The auto, a late model sedan, was recovered by police before it was reported stolen, authorities said. It was taken from behind Martin's Pontiac Garage lot, investigators declared.

Pupils Back

HITESBORO, N.Y. (AP) — Pupils who had threatened a boycott attended classes as usual Friday at the high school in this Utica suburb.

About 450 pupils, representing more than a third of the 1,130 enrolled, remained away from their seventh-period classes Wednesday to protest voter rejection of six proposed additions to the school district's austerity budget. Some pupils had said they would remain home Friday.

L. Spangenberg Dies, Well-Known Downtown Barber

Lawrence J. Spangenberg Jr., one of Kingston's oldest barbers who retired several years ago, died Friday at the Kingston Hospital. He observed his 87th birthday on October 5.

Mr. Spangenberg was a native of the Rondout section of this city and resided there his entire life. As a young man, he apprenticed in the Rundle barbershop on Abel Street, where he learned his trade. Later he conducted a private barbershop in the Cornell Building at 22 Ferry Street for the Cuykendall family and executives of the many industries with main offices located there. He continued in this capacity for over 50 years when the office building was closed. In those days, the downtown section of the city was the center of the city's business enterprises, which included the steamboat, railroad, bluestone, ice, boatyard ferry and city transportation companies.

Mr. Spangenberg had been active in the civic and cultural life of the community having been a patron of the musical and social functions of his time.

He was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer and of Rondout Lodge, 343, F. and A. M.

The deceased was a son of the late Lawrence and Emma Grimbach Spangenberg. His wife, the former Anna Louise Pfommer, died in 1957.

Surviving are his son, Clarence William, of Woodstock and two brothers, Frederick J. of Kingston and Harry of Little Neck, Long Island.

Funeral services will be held from the Keyser Funeral Service, Kingston Chapel, Albany and Manor Avenues on Monday at 11:30 a. m. with the Rev. David C. Gaise in charge. Burial will be in Montrose Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Chapel Sunday from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m.

Candals Are At It Again

Vandals again struck Kingston last night, but instances were few and scattered, police disclosed this morning.

The occupants of 231 W. Chestnut Street complained to officials that a window had been cracked sometime during the night, police said. The window, authorities declared, was located in the rear of the house and appeared to have been broken with a stone.

Leon Smith of 108 Clinton Avenue told police that somebody had put salt into his auto's gas tank. Officers are investigating the incident.

An abandoned car, its owner seeking garage services, returned to find the front and rear windows completely smashed, police stated.

George R. Carlson of Merilina Avenue told officials his car broke down. He said he went to find help and when he returned the auto's windows had been pulverized by rocks.

And finally, Leslie J. Shultis, 19, of 485 Wilbur Avenue, accused of menacing and confined in jail, was charged with criminal mischief by police when he allegedly tore his cell apart.

Police said Shultis ripped the commode off the wall and smashed everything in sight. He was arrested early Friday night and accused of menacing by private citizens.

Floods Leave 64 Dead In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Sixty-four persons were reported dead and 150,000 homeless today as rivers receded around the Argentine capital after the most disastrous floods in the country's history. Officials feared that the toll of dead and missing might rise into the hundreds. They estimated damage to farms, factories and houses at more than $10 million, but some said the amount could run much higher.

Some of the homeless were lodged temporarily in military barracks, schools, sports clubs and the suburban residence of President Juan Carlos Onganía. The government began mass inoculations and appealed for food and clothing for the flood victims.

Rocky Gives GOP Go-Ahead On Charter 'No'

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has given fellow Republicans the green light to oppose his affirmative stand on the proposed state constitution—and one of his cabinet members took advantage of it.

During a day-long visit Friday to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, Rockefeller told reporters he would not try to convince Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges and other top Republicans who oppose the charter to change their minds.

"I respect the positions they have taken," the governor said here.

Later, in Brydges' home city of Niagara Falls, he told a GOP dinner audience: "I respect Sen. Brydges' integrity and judgment that our objective can best be served by voting against the proposed constitution and then pass the good things separately through legislative amendments."

But, the governor added, "I came to the conclusion that I would vote for the constitution and then try to get the undesirable provisions eliminated... by separate amendments and legislative action."

Brydges and Assemblyman Perry B. Duryea Jr. held the top GOP posts at the Constitutional Convention. Duryea also has urged a "no" vote against the charter in the Nov. 7 election.

In Syracuse Friday night, Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo said he also would cast a "no" vote because he was "against the constitution as a package deal."

"I think the governor is doing what he feels is right in his own conscience as an individual. He's not asking everyone to go along with him," Lomenzo told The Associated Press.

"Of course," he added, "he's the governor and his endorsement does carry influence."

Faces Mischief Count

Ronald Robins, 25, of Rt. 1, Box 469, Saugerties, was arrested Friday by Troopers Craig Bremer and Thomas Searles on a charge of criminal mischief, according to Trooper John McMickle. The arrest was made on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Calvin Cody, Town of Saugerties, who adjourned hearing until Wednesday, Oct. 25. Robins was released pending disposition of the charge.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 14, 1967

Last Chance Tonight

Citizens who fail to go to the polls by 10 o'clock tonight to personally register will be unable to vote in the November 7 general election.

This is an important election from a local standpoint. Candidates to be elected on the county level are county judge, district attorney, county treasurer, coroner and county legislators. In the City of Kingston, offices to be filled are mayor, alderman-at-large, aldermen and county legislators-at-large.

These offices are of concern to all of us as they pertain to our own units of government.

Also on the ballot at the top of the voting machine is the proposed New York State Constitution, which is presented in a single package, and the $2½ billion Transportation Bond Issue.

You will not be able to vote for any of these candidates or on the proposed new state charter or bond issue unless you register by 10 o'clock tonight.

Newspaperboy Salute

Today has been designated as Newspaperboy Day in order to honor the young men who sell and deliver The Freeman and other newspapers.

Newspaperboys, as depicted in the adjoining cartoon, have, for themselves created quite an image, down through the years. An important image it is too. From their lot will come the presidents, governors, mayors, industrialists, professional men and famous athletes who will help determine the quality of our civilization in their generation. These leaders of tomorrow are learning the value of integrity, public relations, thrift and adherence to duty. The result will be men better fitted for responsibility whatever their endeavor.

Most of us pick up our daily newspaper with the least concern as to how it got to our doorstep. Today, as you enjoy the privilege of being represented by a free press, stop to consider for a moment the remarkable young man who delivers your newspaper. He could be our next governor or senator, but in any event, he'll be an outstanding citizen of the future.

Today, Newspaperboy Day, let us salute these young men—the biggest little businessmen in the world.

Highway Fund Slash

The threat of a slash in allocations of highway funds to the states, probably effective by Nov. 1, has just been delivered by Transportation Secretary Alan S. Boyd to the Governors of the 50 states. Halting or slowing highway work would have an immediate effect in slowing the economy and reducing the inflation, but it will have no effect on spending in the regular budget.

The point is that highway funds are paid out of a special trust fund earmarked only for roads and entirely financed by special user taxes on trucks and automobiles. Reducing highway construction does not cut the general spending which would reduce the huge budget deficit asked by the House Ways and Means Committee before it will pass the proposed 10 per cent surtax for House action.

An earlier order, halting big new commitments by Government agencies for construction and other major projects, had been taken by members of Congress, not as an economy measure, but as pressure to move the surtax forward or lose politically motivated "pork barrel" projects. The possible freeze on highway construction is regarded in the same manner.

Governors, aware that highway funds do not come from the Treasury but from user taxes, were outraged by the threat of postponing new work. Most have planned their state economies around the highway work. They see a stop as damaging to their state as well as halting road progress. It is a poor way to save money when the money held back does not count against the income taxes that are to be raised.

By refusing to reconsider its 5 to 4 vote convicting the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King and seven other clergymen of contempt of court for leading a segregation demonstration banned by court order, the Supreme Court left it to an Alabama court to deal with the offenders. They may be jailed for 5 days and fined $50 each, the sentences originally passed on them.

An infant death rate last year of 23.4 per 1,000 was an all-time low in this country. Lowest rates were recorded in Utah with 19.3, Massachusetts 20.2 and Minnesota 20.7. Of the 3.629 million babies born live in the United States last year, all but 84,800 survived.

Surprising Baseball Changes Noted

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

ST. LOUIS — This World Series city, scene of the red with the Red Sox after 21 years, is an all-out baseball town. But surprising changes have occurred in the innards of the marvelous game since Boston's last invasion.

This season millions thrilled at Boston wonder-batter Carl Yastrzemski's fantastic ability to come through and deliver the goods in the pinches, which is the payoff. But, hitting 326 for the season, Yaz is a limper by the old averages. That's now typical of today's batting stars.

Detroit Tiger Ty Cobb, the immortal miracle man in the hard art of "hitting 'em where they ain't," ran up a lifetime average throughout 24 years in big league baseball of .367. In 1911 Cobb came within two percentage points of breaking the one-season record. Napoleon Lajoie of the Philadelphia Athletics tied off modern baseball by hitting .422 in 1901. Quick-witted, left-handed Louis Browns exactly tied Cobb at .420 in 1922, likewise missing the record. Then Rogers Hornsby, playing for the Cardinals here, turned the trick at .424 in 1924, a season high mark still unbroken.

Many big leaguers will tell you there are two chief reasons for the fall-off. Today's super-concentration on banging home runs, which is what the public wants to see, is their No. 1 explanation. As former Pittsburgh Pirate

Ralph Kiner once said: "Singles hitters ride in Fords; home-run hitters ride in Cadillacs." Teams as a whole hit many more home runs each season now.

The ball has not been bettered, contrary to popular impression. A. G. Spalding & Co., which makes all balls for both leagues (the American's under the trade-name "Reich" is the same ball), officially confirms this. The bats have changed greatly. Babe Ruth used a 44-ounce bat, as did most other sluggers. Today's bats range around 32 ounces, and pack more whip, which is a home-run factor. But, although team records for homers have climbed, the individual high mark has been slow to budge.

Babe Ruth, bless his heart hit 59 in 1921. The great man broke his own record with 60 in 1927, one of the most memorable years in baseball. Ruth's mark stood for 34 years. Roger Maris (in a long, 162-game season) finally topped it in 1961 by only one.

Meanwhile, perhaps all of us might remember this as a discouraging moment: while Babe Ruth was making his 714 home-run record he struck out 1,330 times. And pitcher Cy Young, famous for the 511 games he won, lost almost as many.

The second explanation for the season-hit fall-off seems to be that the circuits' teams formerly traveled with seven or eight pitchers. They now carry 10 or more. Flailing pitchers are pulled out faster and this increased switching has reduced the hits.

American League attendance was affected for years on end by the peerless New York Yankees. These perennial champions usually had the pennant sewed up by about the Fourth of July. The rest of the season was a walk-in. National League races have been cliff-hangers annually since the late '40s, like the American's this season, and this has given the senior circuit teams a larger percentage in diamond history while the Yankees, in turn, have been diving toward the cellar in non-wins.

The New York Mets, who, instead of starving to death, not only filled an old stadium but filled a beautiful new one with probably the consistently worst teams in baseball history, have apparently been overtaken at last by the demand for good performance—years later than expected. Still clinging tenaciously to the bottom rung, Mets attendance was off 367,000 this season, which proves that cynics who habitually say "I told you so" can ultimately be right if enough years pass to prove their unpleasant point.

Finally, here's a curious thing: the only other major country where our great game has really caught on is Japan. The entire Japanese nation is baseball crazy. Leagues thrive and so do the agile players. Jap southpaw pitcher Masamichi Murakami, successful with the San Francisco Giants, was so hot over there that his former Nippon club threatened to sue when the Giants wouldn't tear up Murakami's contract and let him return to baseball-frenzied Japan where nearly every big city is a St. Louis.

U.S. Faces Many Years Of Vietnam Occupation

WASHINGTON — Behind the rosy Vietnam communiqués, the blunt truth is that the South Vietnamese army simply is incapable of holding and pacifying the countryside which the Americans have won from the Viet Cong.

This means U. S. forces will not be able to leave South Vietnam and turn the defense of the country over to the home troops as they did in South Korea following the Korean War. For years to come, American troops will not be able to withdraw from South Vietnam without inviting the Viet Cong to take over.

No less than Secretary of Defense McNamara has admitted privately that the South Vietnamese army does not compare with the South Korean army. If the Americans should pull out of Vietnam following a peace agreement, the South Vietnamese army would not be able to prevent the Viet Cong from moving right back into the positions they occupied before the first American combat troops arrived.

This is one reason for the private pessimism of many top officials regarding the ultimate end of the war.

U. S. military men blame the French for the South Vietnamese army's incompetence. The French failed to build up a qualified Vietnamese officer's corps, so that today it is drastically short of capable leaders. Many of its officers were commissioned because of whom they knew than what they knew. They also have an appalling record for corruption. Personal greed comes before patriotic duty.

Yet neither the French nor the Vietnamese are fully to blame. After all, the United States has been advising, training and equipping the South Vietnamese army for more than 12 years. One problem is that the American advisers taught the South Vietnamese the wrong tactics, namely the outdated warfare of World War II.

No Guerrilla Training
The Vietnamese themselves wanted counter-insurgency training and suggested establishing para-military units based on the home grounds they knew best. But only a few para-military outfits were trained by the Green Berets.

The bulk of the South Vietnamese army was drilled in conventional tactics to hold off a Korean-style invasion, which never materialized. The military lessons, which many of the Vietnamese learned well, turned out to be the wrong lessons.

Result: The Viet Cong's style of guerrilla warfare, not unlike that used by our own forefathers to wrest independence from the British, often confounded those who fought by the book.

Not until the Viet Cong abandoned their tested guerrilla tactics and began massing for conventional battles and alienating the populace by conscription and taxation, did they start losing. Their battalions, gathered in jungle bivouacs, unable to disperse among the people, were caught by our spoiling attacks. Disaffected peasants also began passing along intelligence that enabled us to beat the guerrillas at their own game and catch them by surprise.

Gen. William Westmoreland, the American commander, has done a masterful job of fathoming and thwarting Viet Cong tactics. Now the Viet Cong are reverting to their original guerrilla methods. Westmoreland's men have been quick to adjust, but not the South Vietnamese. They have applied the wrong lessons learned from their American advisers.

Belatedly, the U. S. Army tacitly acknowledged its mistakes and has started to retrain the South Vietnamese army in the counter-insurgency tactics the Vietnamese wanted 12 years ago.

Goldwater Comeback

Barry Goldwater, seeking to dig his way out from under the 1964 Presidential landslide, is trying hard to get back in the Senate. And Arizona's private industry is helping him.

Although industry cannot legally engage in partisan political activity, there are many loopholes, and Goldwater is using them skillfully.

For instance, he spoke the other day to more than 50 key employees of Motorola at a private dinner in the posh, new Catamaran Restaurant in Scottsdale. The Motorola people invoking the technicality that they contribute to the company's employee newspapers, invited Goldwater under the guise of the "Motorola Press Club."

Note: Goldwater is hoping to win the seat now occupied by Arizona's ancient Sen. Carl Hayden. Ironically, Barry's speech centered on the state's need for water. He boosted the proposed Central Arizona Project, which will give the state more water by damming up rivers that run into Mexico. At the same time Hayden used his powerful influence in the Senate to force an agreement that the Central Arizona Project will be brought to a vote early next year.

Headlines and Footnotes

The Navy would like to muscle in on the new anti-ballistic missile system. The admirals have argued behind closed Pentagon doors that the missiles would be more effective against oncoming warheads if they were launched far out at sea. Then the warheads could be destroyed theoretically at least, long before they came near the U. S. mainland. . . . Congress will soon pass a bill to protect its own members from violence on Capitol Hill, by barring weapons and demonstrations on the Capitol grounds. However, another bill to protect the general public from violence, the gun control bill barring mail order weapons, is still tied up in the House Judiciary Committee. Reason is that the powerful National Rifle Association lobby opposes the gun control bill. . . . Government inspectors have warned soap-makers that they must comply with the new labeling law and print warnings on labels if their detergents contain strong substances that might irritate the eyes or skin.

Rocky Is Riled by Reports He Switched Viet Position

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller is said by intimates to be furious at the man he blames for published reports that he is moderating his long-held hawkish stance in support of President Johnson's Vietnam policy.

The man is Emmet J. Hughes, magazine columnist and former adviser to President Eisenhower and to the governor himself.

The report is that Hughes, an outspoken dove, submitted a position paper to Rockefeller, urging him to shift toward middle ground on Vietnam. The governor says flatly to friends that he rejected it.

Whatever others may say about the matter, the governor is sternly convinced that Hughes then tried to "leverage" him by passing word that his outlook on the war was undergoing a change.

The governor is sufficiently vehement on the subject so that one of his entourage now brands Hughes' alleged maneuvering a "perfidious act."

Both privately and publicly, Rockefeller is insisting that he has not altered his fundamental position. Sitting nearby when an aide took a telephone call on the issue, the governor shouted encouragement when the man said "no change" several times. His simplest public comment, uttered on an upstate tour, was: "Not true."

Again and again on the tour, he declared: "When I change, I'll tell you."

Yet many Republican figures, including New York City Mayor John Lindsay and New York's Sen. Jacob Javits, believe the governor HAS taken up a more flexible Vietnam stance and, at the very least, will stop commending the President's policies.

One leader says the governor's effort is "to move to the middle without getting caught." It is hard to see how Rockefeller can bring this off, what with assorted chroniclers poking into his private utterances on the subject.

Some think they find signs of change even in his denials of change. An example from his recent tour:

"I have not said anything about Vietnam and I am not going to, except to share the hope of the American people that an honorable settlement can be reached."

The phrases "honorable settlement," "achievement of peace," and "quest for peace" do crop up frequently in his current comment. Doves types and realists eager to move the GOP in the direction they think public sentiment is trending (disenchantment with the war) seize happily on these Rockefeller words.

In the context of an obviously intensifying effort to move the Republican party center-ward on the Vietnam issue, provable change in Rockefeller's attitudes would be widely read as a development intended to heighten his utility as a possible moderate fall-back candidate in the 1968 presidential race.

Skeptics may say that the governor's evident indignation at reports of change is merely the annoyance of a politician caught switching.

But observers who have queried such staunch friends of Rockefeller as Gov. John Chaffee of Rhode Island (now a Romney backer) say they find the New Yorker standing fast. And, contrary to some accounts, he is still publicly urging Americans to support the President.

Rockefeller has no present intention of making a major, detailed restatement of his Vietnam position. He is fending off attempts to draw him out. Relative silence has been his posture for a long time, on the theory that "outsiders" lack the information needed to develop specifics on Vietnam.

He did not always see it this way. On April 27, 1964, during the Oregon primary, he issued a 3,000-word Vietnam policy statement (it was a year before our heavy entry into the war), calling for South Vietnamese bombing of Red supply routes in Laos and North Vietnam, for South Vietnamese "hot pursuit" of Viet Cong guerrillas into sanctuaries in those two countries and Cambodia, for warnings to these lands to close out the sanctuaries, for an end to U.S. military adviser withdrawals until a better situation justified the action. The governor even blamed administration approval of a neutral Laotian government as helping to demoralize South Vietnam.

Plainly, any imaginable center-ward shift by Rockefeller might need to travel a good deal farther than just "away from President Johnson's policies."

In the early 50's aid began to be given to the French in their futile fight against the Vietnamese. In 1954 Dien was selected to rule over the part of Vietnam still under French occupation.

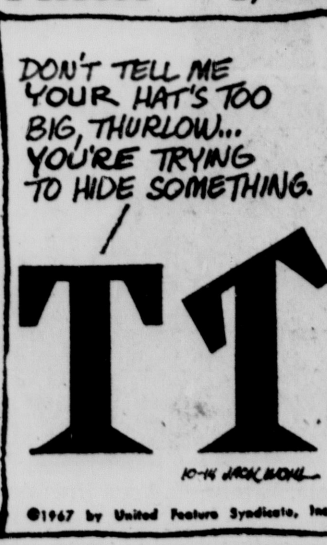

Dien was a dictator. To keep him in power an army was created; this required more aid. In addition "technical advisors" were sent. The method of brute force used by Dien only served to increase his unpopularity; but since he was unpopular no other course of action would keep him in power.

Increasing unpopularity demanded an increased armed force which in turn required still more aid. An increasing number of "technical advisors" were also sent.

The results of this policy are known. In 1961 most countries in South America enjoyed some form of parliamentary democracy. Then came the "Alliance for Progress", sometimes deshim in power an army was created; this required more aid. In addition "technical advisors" were sent. The method of brute force used by Dien only served to increase his unpopularity; but since he was unpopular no other course of action would keep him in power.

Arab Terrorists Could Rekindle Mid-East War

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The "old war" has erupted again in Israel—sabotage and terrorism. But this time the Arab raiders are packing a harder punch.

El Fatah-phantom-terrorists are again working behind Israeli lines in the occupied west bank. They are better armed and more efficient than the Egyptian and Syrian raiders who terrorized Israeli border settlements for 19 years.

Jews Want Revenge
The campaign of sabotage in which eight Israelis including a 3-year-old boy, have been killed and 33 wounded since the June 5-10 war has dampened the flush of victory here. The Israelis are clamoring for revenge.

Although the authorities claim they have broken the back of the El Fatah campaign by rounding up 200 Arabs and seizing large arms caches, the raiders are far from crushed. They answered the Israelis by striking into Jerusalem, dynamiting a U.N. cease-fire supervision mission radio and planting a bomb in a movie house packed with 800 people. It was found only 20 minutes before it was timed to explode.

A guerrilla war in the occupied west bank is not being ruled out. El Fatah groups are still hiding in the craggy Judean hills and move are sneaking across the low-water Jordan River by night.

War Going in Our Favor

Bombing Pause Useless

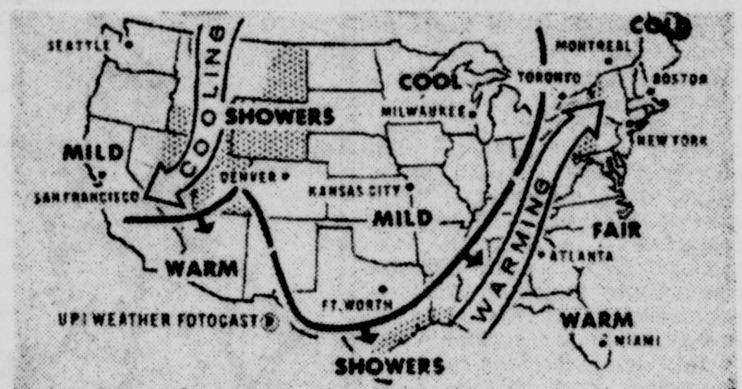

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—The Supreme Commander of Allied Forces in the Far East said today a bombing pause of North Vietnam would have no beneficial effect and emphasized that the war is "going along quite steadily in our favor."

Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp, who arrived at the Naval Academy to address midshipmen on the war effort in Southeast Asia said the Viet Cong have been driven from "a considerable number of their base areas and generally are taking up positions along the South Vietnamese border so they can retreat to the North when necessary."

"They are not accepting combat unless they are cornered and generally have switched to terrorist and guerrilla tactics," he told a news conference.

Sharp also said the air war was going well and that both the

Lived on Slimy Water, Prayer

By LARRY DUM
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An elderly Mormon couple survived six days and nights without food in South Utah's vast and desolate Last Chance Canyon country.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lloyd lived on slimy, brackish creek water and, Lloyd said, "constant prayer."

Began Oct. 6

"We're resurrected," the old man muttered as he was helped from the rescue plane which brought them to Salt Lake City Friday night.

The ordeal began Oct. 6 when Lloyd, 75, and his wife, 73, decided on a trip to the Red Rock Desert wilderness area. He had two extra days off from his job as an elementary school crossing guard.

Lloyd said a wrong turn led them down the Last Chance Canyon trail to a point where they couldn't turn the car around. While continuing downward, he said, the car slammed into a "rock" in the road. Mrs. Lloyd hit the dashboard, gashing her nose and blacking both eyes.

They managed to get the car out, only to slide into a creek bed farther down. Lloyd said he didn't want to try to walk out because of his wife's arthritis, so he spent most of last Saturday with a hammer and screwdriver until his hands were raw from breaking up the sandstone boulder that was jammed under the vehicle.

Abandoned Car

They finally abandoned the car late Saturday and decided to stick to the dry creek bed, which provided an occasional pool of water here and there, rather than try for the rugged plateau above.

The first two days, Lloyd told relatives, the water wasn't too bad. But the farther they traveled, the more brackish it became. "But we drank as much as we could hold," he said.

"That kept us alive." Nightly, Lloyd said, they built a fire, rationing the few matches he had. By Tuesday, when the search for them was in full swing, he first sighted a search aircraft, but the pilot didn't see them. He told relatives he saw planes on several occasions.

Faith Carried Them

"We could have made it maybe one more day," he told son-in-law Harold Stevens. "Our faith was all that carried us on. We prayed all the time."

Fish and Game Warden John Kimball of Kanab, Utah, found them wandering along the creek bed Friday, more than 30 miles from the nearest populated area.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said weather on the Kaiparowits Plateau above was between 50 and 80 degrees all week. Outside of Alaska, that plateau has been described as the largest unexplored region in the United States. After they arrived in Salt Lake City, the couple refused to be hospitalized. Their son, Dr. Bruce Lloyd, a Salt Lake City pathologist, took them home where he treated them for exhaustion and the injuries suffered during the trek.

The highway patrol estimated the Lloyds walked about 30 miles in five days.

State Taxes Are Rising, Spreading

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
Associated Press Writer

State taxes, like rivers in flood season, are rising and spreading. The heavy legislative year, over in all but a few states, left less ground where citizens could find refuge from taxes.

Levies are in effect on:

—Cigarettes in 49 states, all but North Carolina.
—Sales in 44.
—Corporate income in 40.
—Personal income in 38.
—Gasoline in all.

Cites Survey

An Associated Press survey shows legislatures went in more for increasing old taxes than finding new sources of revenue.

Take, for instance, California. The legislators approved a $1-billion tax program, the biggest tax increase in the state's history. It concluded boosts in income sales, cigarette, liquor, banks, corporation and inheritance taxes. But about $115 million was set aside for property tax relief in 1968-69.

Three states entered the income tax field. Michigan's Legislature adopted a package that included, for the first time in that state, income taxes on individuals, corporations and financial institutions. The personal income tax rate is 2.6 per cent. It is expected to bring in about $240 million a year. The 5.6 per cent corporate income tax, which replaced a complicated tax on business, is expected to produce $46 million next year, and the 7 per cent income tax on financial institutions is calculated to yield $2 million.

Another Newcomer

Nebraska, another newcomer in that area, enacted a corporate and personal income tax. The rates, set by the state Board of Equalization, are 10 per cent of the federal tax on personal income and 2 per cent of a corporation's taxable income.

Nine states increased sales taxes. The range of such taxes is 2 per cent to 5 per cent. The only states that do not tax sales are Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire, Oregon and Vermont.

Eight states boosted cigarette taxes, half of them—Iowa, California, Alabama and Maine—jacking them up to 10 cents. But they're still a cent below the 11 cents collected in New Jersey, Texas and Washington.

In the eighth state, Pennsylvania, the cigarette tax will go to 13 cents a package, highest in the nation. Monday when the governor is expected to sign the new law.

Eight legislatures increased state taxes on gasoline. The spread is from 5 cents up to 11 cents a gallon in Hawaii.

MISS DARLENE WILBER
(Reynolds Studio)

Miss Wilber is a graduate of Kingston High School and is employed by Piccadilly Restaurant, 392 Broadway, Kingston.

Her fiancé attended Ontario Central School, served in the U. S. Air Force, and is employed by Kingston Coal and Oil Company.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

As a manufacturer of corduroy, I would like to give you some tips on how to wash this material.

We always suggest that you turn the garment inside out before washing or drying it! This way it can be washed either by machine or by hand. Because in the washing process you are buffing the naps against each other which makes for cleaner corduroy.

If it must be pressed, always press on the wrong side. We recommend using a steam iron. This must be done lightly and quickly. And the reason is that the nap should not collect too much steam.

If any corduroy garment has lining, dry cleaning is recommended — either professional or by coin-operated dry cleaning machines.

The reason for this is that manufacturers of corduroy do not know what kind of lining is used. Sometimes the lining in garments will shrink (especially if it's an inexpensive cotton), so I urge you to pass on these small hints to your readers.

Corduroy Manufacturer

Sir, I don't have to tell them. You just did. And you put it in plain words that we all can understand. We bless you and thank you.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

As a bachelor, I find your column especially helpful to my primary aim in life, that aim being to remain single.

Roy Sieg

Dear Heloise:

If you are on a low-fat diet, but like gravy on your potatoes, add ice cubes to the drippings left in the pan the meat was cooked in. When the fat solidifies, just lift it and the excess ice cubes out with a slotted spoon and continue to make gravy the usual way.

Sure beats waiting until the next day when the leftovers are served to have your gravy.

Marilyn Falls

Dear Heloise:

I saw a lot for my girls and find that the easiest way to make appliques is to iron a piece of iron-on-tape to the back of the fabric to be used. Then cut out the figure or design desired and sew it in place using an applique stitch.

The result will be a very neat job — no frayed or stretched edges.

Smith Returns

Dick Smith, the young organist who was received with so much appreciation at his appearance in Saugerties last spring, is making a return engagement. On Tuesday, Oct. 17, Smith will be presenting a concert of popular and classical organ music in the Saugerties High School Auditorium at 8 p. m.

Receipts from the concert, sponsored by the Saugerties Organ Fund Committee, will be utilized to help pay the balance still owed on the Rogers Organ installed in the school auditorium nearly two years ago.

Tickets are being sold by pupils of Saugerties Junior High School, and school music groups. They may also be purchased at the door that evening.

The Organ Fund Committee invites one and all to enjoy a wonderful evening of music, and at the same time assist in an effort to keep this fine musical facility in the community.

MAY YOUNG GIRL VISIT BOY FRIEND'S MOTHER?

Dear Mrs. Post: I am 17 years old and have graduated from high school. My boy friend, who is 19, is in the Air Force and is now serving in Vietnam. I have talked to his mother very often and have visited her. Today she asked me to spend a weekend with her since she's alone. I asked my mother and she harshly said, "No, indeed." She told me it would appear that I am "chasing" the mother. I do not feel I'm chasing anyone. I like his mother very much and I enjoy being with her. If I'm wrong and my mother is right, please let me know. Also, please print this letter for those who may have similar problems.

Carla

Dear Carla: Unless your mother expressly forbids it, go and spend the weekend with your boy friend's mother. Why in the world your mother should object (could she be jealous?) I don't know. If you and the other lady enjoy each other, and you can help to dispel her loneliness, I am one hundred percent on your side.

"The Groom's Cake"

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been to, and read about, wedding receptions where both a bride's cake and a groom's cake were served. Who cuts the groom's cake? Is it served with coffee, or given to guests in keepsake boxes?—Kathryn S.

Dear Kathryn: A groom's cake (almost always a rich fruit cake) is rarely seen today, and when it is, it is almost invariably put up in small white boxes to be given as a keepsake to the guests. If for any reason this is not done, the groom's cake is cut without ceremony by the caterer or anyone assisting at the wedding, and given to the guests to eat or take home as they wish.

Elementary Teachers Hear Talks by Other Educators

A meeting to supplement present curriculum data with new information supplied by a series of prominent guest speakers was held recently at Woodstock Elementary School. It was the first of four grade level meetings for all Ontario School District elementary teachers.

According to Mrs. Le Roy Donaldson, coordinator, the educators addressed teachers specifically involved with kindergarten, primary and intermediate grades, and a special group comprising reading consultants, school nurses and speech therapists.

Guest speakers included: Ruth Flurry of the Bureau of Child Development and Parent Education of the State Education Department; Jack Clifford, editor of the Education Department for Xerox Corporation; Sigmund Adele, representative from the Bureau of Science of the State Education Department; Michael Kaufman, Director of the Multi-Media Center at BOCES; Dr. Herman Lowe, staff psychologist at BOCES; and Frank Hancock, chairman of the social studies meeting. The meeting was termed another illustration of the Ontario Central School's philosophy that current data in its field is vital in educating its students to a society of increasing technological and psychological complexity.

Trailways Takes Exception to Charge

Ray Reiley, general superintendent of Adirondack Trailways, today took exception to a Public Safety Council charge that policemen were over-protecting his business.

Reiley said, "The patrolmen seen around Kingston's bus terminal are off-duty officers and paid for their time. Roughly $4,000 was spent last year employing three such policemen." Reiley explained the patrolmen were hired on weekends and special holidays. He declared they were paid on an hourly basis and alternated their shifts.

Wednesday the Safety Council met in the Common Council Chambers and admonished police for over-protecting some areas. Trailways was used as an example of over-protection. The council contends police should spend more time patrolling the city.

Wilde's Hilarious 'Earnest'

Is Warmly Received on Cool Night

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Opening night, enthusiastic audience, hilarious entertainment, Oscar Wilde's classic, "The Importance of Being Earnest," left nothing to be desired last night at the Woodstock Playhouse where the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre presented the second production of their premiere season.

Wilde involves us immediately in the hysterical world of Jack Worthing, alias Earnest, who is declared ineligible for his Gwendolyn's hand in marriage for alas, the only parent Jack can claim is, believe it or not, a large black hand-bag, where he had been found as an infant in a railway station.

After the devastating scene with Lady Bracknell, Gwendolyn's mother, Jack escapes to his country home where he can truly relax and be "himself," for in the city he is "Earnest," man-about-town, and in the country, Jack, guardian to an innocent young thing called Cecily. Unfortunately, Algernon, Jack's friend, follows him to his retreat, adopting the handy name of "Earnest," and captures the affections of Cecily.

Now Jack's life is thoroughly mixed up. His name-game has exploded in his face. He cannot kill off "Earnest," because Algernon has turned up claiming to be he. Gwendolyn and Cecily each believe him to be a different person, Earnest and Jack—or is it the other way around? Like a dragon, Lady Bracknell has breathed fire and smoke on his wedding plans. With each new entrance, the possibility of Jack's disentanglement from such a complicated mess seems to recede more and more.

with suavity, and restrained panic, by William Metzko whose enunciation and delivery of some rather "wordy" phrases was a delight to this reviewer. Charles Seals plays Algernon, the tactless prankster, with smooth perfection. Their young ladies are played by Jane Lloyd-Jones whose interpretation of the sophisticated Gwendolyn is performed with professional ease, and Diane Hall, as Cecily, is refreshingly alive with life. The governess and the Reverend, played by Martha and Fred Miller, add the "whipped cream" to the production, as does Virginia Downing as Lady Bracknell, whose presence on stage commands an attentive audience at every moment. Christopher Kelly and Alex Osina as servants characterized their roles and added comedy dimensions with their stoic lack of expression.

The complete production moved with the polished ease of a group who had constantly worked together and would even be able to anticipate their fellow actors' "ad libs" if the occasion arose.

The exceptional sets and Victorian period costumes are credited to Harold Balridge, artistic director.

M. Edgar Rosenblum, executive director of Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, warrants his own "curtain call" for bringing such professional talent and high calibre production to this area.

"Earnest" will run through October 22. Information and reservations may be made by calling the Woodstock Playhouse.

Incidentally, the first-nighters who braved the 46 degree temperature appreciated the recent installation of a heating unit which makes it unnecessary for theatre-goers to "tough it" while enjoying HVRT fall productions.

BETWEEN YOU 'N' ME

by TITURAY

The firing of Perry Smith, the Yankees vice-president for televising of games (they have a vee to suit every function and occasion) was just another step in the eventual take over of the whole baseball operation, top to bottom, by CBS personnel. Look for more to go. . . .

Plug for bachelorhood: there were only three single men on the Boston Red Sox this season — Jim Lonborg, George Scott and Tony Conigliaro. Add Carl Yastrzemski (blissfully married), and you've got the guts of the Red Sox. . . .

Memory bit: back in 1955, Stan Musial hit a 12th inning home run to win the All-Star Game for the National League in Milwaukee. He flew into New York with his Cardinal roomie, Red Schoendienst, Ty Cobb was in the Big City and called Fred Corcoran, Musial's agent, saying, "I would like to meet that boy." They arranged breakfast. Cobb looked at Stan and said, "You hit a curve ball yesterday." Musial nodded. Cobb turned to Corcoran and said, "You know, this is the greatest all around ballplayer I've ever seen?" Fred spun and shook Schoendienst, who'd dozed off. "You hear what he said?" asked Corcoran. . . . "I heard him saying something about the greatest player," said Red drowsily, "but I knew he wasn't talking about me."

After Elston Howard laid down a bunt in the second game of the World Series, the 38-year-old catcher noted, "That's the first time in Series history (more than 50 games) I bunted. You got to do a lot of things when you get old."

Prominent around Series gatherings was Judge Bob Cannon of Milwaukee, who used to be the representative of the Players Association. The judge is now plugging for a major league team in Milwaukee, preferably through expansion, and vitally interested in Charley Finley's plans to move the Kansas City Athletics. Not because they'd move to Milwaukee but because it would pave the route for adding two more teams to the American League. Kansas City would get one. "I hope," said Judge Cannon, "he goes to Oakland, with its new stadium. Then we'd have a better chance to get the other franchise, over Seattle."

Sometimes you need an interpreter to understand football coaches. Don Shula of Baltimore, in a game post mortem said, "Bobby Boyd felt ouchy, but we had a lot of guys who sucked it up." Translation: Boyd was playing with a slight injury; the Colts performed staunchly in the clutch. . . . Buzz around pro football veterans is why Lou Groza keeps playing and leaves himself open to booing in Cleveland, his home base for 21 seasons. They can't believe the greatest kicker in history needs the dough. . . . Recognize the names: Stydabar and Kimbrough? Dave Stydabar is a tackle (just like dad, Jumbo Jim, was) playing a key role on the offensive line of unbeaten Purdue. John Kimbrough's also a tackle, on defensive for SMU (though his pop, the original Jarring John, played fullback at Texas A&M). . . . The fathers are both Hall-of-Famers. . . . Between you'n'me, Don Klosterman's deal to get quarterback Pete Beathard from Kansas City for Ernie Ladd, Jackie Lee and a No. 1 draft choice was initiated by a casual talk with Chief coach Hank Stram. The Houston general manager had originally signed Pete for the Chiefs when he was their talent scout. The price might sound stiff, but on the other hand Pete's salary isn't as big as Ladd's — in fact, he doesn't make more than Lee. . . . (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

RED SCHOENDIENST

Red Schoendienst, 38, is a Cardinal roomie, Red Schoendienst, Ty Cobb was in the Big City and called Fred Corcoran, Musial's agent, saying, "I would like to meet that boy." They arranged breakfast. Cobb looked at Stan and said, "You hit a curve ball yesterday." Musial nodded. Cobb turned to Corcoran and said, "You know, this is the greatest all around ballplayer I've ever seen?" Fred spun and shook Schoendienst, who'd dozed off. "You hear what he said?" asked Corcoran. . . . "I heard him saying something about the greatest player," said Red drowsily, "but I knew he wasn't talking about me."

After Elston Howard laid down a bunt in the second game of the World Series, the 38-year-old catcher noted, "That's the first time in Series history (more than 50 games) I bunted. You got to do a lot of things when you get old."

AFL Roundup

Chiefs Aid Defense With Ladd's Purchase

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Hank Stram's trade theories are correct, San Diego quarterback John Hadl will spend much of Sunday afternoon with 292 pounds of Ernie Ladd or 287 pounds of Buck Buchanan firmly attached to him.

Stram bolstered the defensive line of the AFL's defending champion Kansas City Chiefs by obtaining Ladd from Houston for substitute quarterback Pete Beathard.

It was, Stram said, "the most significant trade in the Chiefs' eight-year history. Ladd will solidify our defensive line. Pro football is such a game of excellence in execution that you will lose if you fail, by even a fraction of a second in rushing the quarterback."

Thus, Ladd's duties have been clearly defined. Rush the quarterback. How well he and Buchanan, Kansas City's other defensive tackle, succeed may go a long way in determining if the Chiefs can overtake the unbeaten Chargers in the league's Western Division. Kansas City is 3-1.

In other AFL games Sunday Houston plays at New York,

Miami is at Boston and Oakland journeys to Buffalo.

The Chiefs' defense is already improved over the one that helped them to the league title last season. Kansas City has allowed 98.5 yards per game on the ground and 144.5 yards passing. And the opposing quarterback has hit the dirt 26 times in four games.

Crusaders Play Troy Titans At Riverview

The Hudson Valley Crusaders make their first start of the season at Poughkeepsie's Riverview Field Sunday when they meet the Troy Titans in a 6:30 game.

After posting a 5-1 record at Dietz Stadium, the Crusaders decided to finish the year in the Bridge City. They cited poor attendance as the main reason for the move.

The Titans lost a 17-0 verdict in an earlier meeting between the clubs.

Schoendienst Selected As NL Manager of Year

By CHARLIE BAROUH
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst played his cards right and became The Associated Press' National League Manager of the Year.

The soft spoken manager teamed up with his former roommate, Stan Musial, and their St. Louis Cardinals ran away with the National League pennant and beat the Boston Red Sox in the seven-game 1967 World Series. The Cardinals won 101 games during the season.

Schoendienst went to spring training hoping his Cardinals had enough to win the pennant. He was certain they could move up from their sixth-place finish in 1966. The Cardinals finished seventh in Red's first year as a manager, 1965.

"We knew we had pretty good talent and we had a chance to move up," Schoendienst said, smiling at the news that he had won the award. "We had good pitching, and we were sure we would score more runs than last year," he said. "I had a fine ball club."

Mike Shannon's conversion from the outfield to third base played a big part in the Cardinals' success, Red said.

"It was important for more than one reason," Schoendienst pointed out. "He doesn't look like a good hitter sometimes, but he gets the job done."

"And we needed a third baseman. He gave us the opportunity to use Roger Maris. And if he didn't make the move I wouldn't have been able to use young players like Bobby Tolman, Alex Johnson and Ed Spezio."

Shannon often said Schoendienst's confidence in his ability to play third was important to him. And Orlando Cepeda, praised Schoendienst because "he treats us like men, like human beings."

All the Cardinals say Schoendienst is a master at treating his ball players with respect. Schoendienst' only comment is that's the kind of guy he is.

Palmer, Thomson In Golf Finals

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Arnold Palmer moved into the final of the Piccadilly World Match Play golf championship against Peter Thomson of Australia today, carrying with him some knowledge he picked up in his pop's pro shop a long time ago.

The 37-year-old Latrobe, Pa., master recovered his brilliant putting touch Friday to defeat Bill Casper, 3 and 2, while Thomson eliminated defending champion Gary Player of South Africa, 2 and 1.

Palmer, unmatchable from tee to green, was 10 under par for the 34 holes he had to play — and all 10 shots could be found in his putter. He had just 58 putts, which is precisely 10 under perfect figures.

Why? "Well, I did make an adjustment," Palmer explained. "I changed the grip of my putter a little. I built it up from the back to give me more club in my hand."

He worked on the club himself, employing the knowledge he learned many years ago from his father, and still uses like any simple club professional when he is dissatisfied.

Palmer was pleased with the results. "I really did put better," he said. And the figures certainly showed it.

He canned putts from three feet to 30 feet in a burst of four straight threes which just about crushed Casper.

High Ad took the place a nose in front of Be Beyond.

Running time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:48 with the winner paying $6.80, $4.40 and $3.00. The crowd was 3,068 and the handle $218.143.

OAKLAND STADIUM — This is the home the Kansas City Athletics will occupy next season if owner Charles O. Finley receives the approval of American League owners to shift his club to Oakland. The Coliseum Complex includes stadium (R), seating 50,000, and an indoor arena (L), capable of seating up to 15,000. Parking lot can accommodate 8,000 cars and 300 buses. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Boice Sets School Mark

Gary Boice established a record and the Kingston High cross country team captured its 16th straight dual meet, 19-43, Friday over Port Jervis at the 2.2 Dietz Stadium course.

In beating Port's Steve Keyes by four seconds, Boice was timed in 10:54 shattering the record of 10:58, set in 1963 by Dave Ennis, now running at Brown University. Keyes' time of 10:58 tied Ennis' mark.

Coach John Gilligan's harriers clinched the DUSO dual meet title with the victory. As usual, balance was the keynote.

Boice, who has finished first in every meet this season, ran neck and neck with Keyes from start to finish.

Behind the leaders came five KHS runners — Bill Brinnier, Jim (Digger) Gilpatrick, Gary Flowers, Wayne Sickler and Bob Burger.

The KHS squad has a pair of dual meets next week. Kingston is at Roosevelt on Tuesday and hosts powerful Red Hook Friday at Dietz Stadium.

Lindell Paces Army Triumph

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Army quarterback Steve Lindell still has his ulcer today, but he and the Cadets have produced a preventive for the same affliction for their coach, Tom Cahill.

Lindell, who sat out the first two games of the football season because of the illness, shook off a first-quarter flare-up of the ulcer, as well as an injured ankle, and led the Cadets to a 24-6 victory over Southern Methodist Friday night.

The 21-year-old junior from Princeton, Minn., missed the first pass he threw on the second scrimmage play of the game, then completed seven in a row and had 10 completions in 13 tries in the first half.

Colts, Rams Collide In Top NFL Contest

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Colts risk their perfect National Football League record against Los Angeles' rebounding Rams Sunday while New Orleans, Atlanta and Minnesota, seeking to end early-season tailspins, face uphill battles against formidable foes.

Baltimore, only unbeaten, undefeated club in the NFL, goes after its fifth victory against the visiting Rams, who must bounce all the way back from a 27-24 upset loss to San Francisco last week if they are to stay within reach of the Colts in the Coastal Division race.

The New Orleans Saints, trying to nail their initial NFL victory after four losses, march into Dallas, where the powerful Cowboys will be a strong favorite despite the absence of injured quarterback Don Meredith.

Atlanta, winless in four starts, entertains the explosive Washington Redskins and Minnesota, also 0-4, tackles Green Bay's defending world champs at Milwaukee, Wis.

St. Louis is at Cleveland, San Francisco at Philadelphia, New York at Pittsburgh and Detroit at Chicago in other Sunday games.

The Rams, 3-1, should be hard-pressed trying to contain Baltimore's Johnny Unitas, who triggers the NFL's most potent passing attack. The Colts must contend with the league's best defensive unit against rushing and running force, led by Dick Bass and Les Josephson, that also tops the circuit.

Craig Morton is expected to start for Dallas, 3-1, in place of Meredith, who reinjured his ribs in last week's 17-14 victory over Washington. The Saints also lost an offensive weapon when rookie John Gilliam, their top pass receiver, suffered a broken finger.

Charlie Taylor, the Redskins' healthy pass-catching sensation — 25 catches in four games — poses the chief threat to Atlanta's struggling Falcons, Washington's split four decisions.

Minnesota, faces a bruising defense that has helped the Packers overcome early offensive shortcomings and a series of injuries to quarterback Bart Starr. The Packers, 3-0-1, lead the Central Division.

St. Louis has reeled off three straight victories — the last two with second half rallies — to grab the Century Division lead with a 3-1 mark. Rookie quarterback Jim Hart has given the Cardinals surprising offensive punch, but the Browns, 2-2, are slight favorites at home.

Kickers Entertain Yonkers On Sunday

First place in the League division of the German-American Soccer circuit will be at stake Sunday as the Kingston Sport Club entertains Yonkers in a 2:30 contest at Oehler's Mt. Lodge.

The visitors from Westchester have posted four wins and a tie in five starts. The Kickers are 3-0-1 and are in third place.

Of the 22 goals scored by Kingston in its first four games, Eugene Ventriglia, the All-America ace from New Paltz, has eight. Walt Gramsmeier had tallied five and Elliott Oppie-Asare has four. Jim Reinhart and Richie Lotze have scored two goals each and Reiner Schwebel has the other.

Yonkers did the unusual last season. The team won a game at Oehler's, something visiting clubs don't do too often. The Sport Club won an apparent victory in Yonkers but the losers protested and it was upheld by the league.

A preliminary game at 1 p. m. will match soccer clubs from Port Even and Saugerties in a junior contest.

UCCC Cross Country Team Wins, 26-31

Despite the fact the visitors gained the first two individual places, the unbeaten Ulster Community College harriers nipped Westchester, 26-31, in a Mid Hudson Conference meet Friday over the 3.3 course at Dietz Stadium.

Coach Dick Glazer's team is now 3-0 in defense of its championship. The Senators travel to Adirondack next Tuesday to meet Siena and the host school in a triangular meet.

TV Movies Tops, Good or Bad

By DEAN GYSEL

Chicago Daily News Service

Dundee and The Culhane, the CBS western starring John Mills, has been officially canceled because of poor ratings.

Executive producer Edward L. Rissien said the company had received its final notice, and the series will be replaced at mid-season by a variety series at which comedian Jonathan Winters will be host.

"To be canceled after only four weeks is unceremonious, to say the least, but that's the name of the game," said Rissien.

Mills Disappointed

He said Mills, now vacationing in Jamaica, "was deeply disappointed especially because the script that sold him on doing the series was the pilot, but that was not shown until the third episode."

In the latest national A. C. Nielsen Audience Survey, Dundee ranked 13th from the bottom 15 programs. Below it and almost certain to follow in mortality are Hondo, Custer, Accidental family and Good Company. Also in trouble are the Guns of Will Sonnet, Mannix, Good Morning World, Off to See the Wizard, and Maya.

The latest, crucial Nielsen figures released Monday removed any lingering doubt that the most popular television show is a good movie. Or a bad one.

Led by "The Great Escape," with James Garner and Steve McQueen, who made it first in TV by the way, movies filled four of the first six spots in the top 10 most popular programs in the two weeks ending Sept. 24. Nielsen averages the programs audience for the two weeks and issues a single rating figure.

Tied for first were the CBS Friday and Thursday night movies: The two-part "The Great Escape," "The Man Who Killed Liberty Valance," and "The Apartment."

NBC's Tuesday night movies, "Fun in Acapulco" with Elvis Presley, and "Send Me No Flowers" with Doris Day and Rock Hudson, was third, and NBC's Saturday night movies, "What a Way to Go" with Shirley MacLaine, and "The Pink Panther" with Peter Sellers, was fifth.

Bonanza, the perennial series leader, and Gomer Pyle were second and fourth in the bi-weekly national ratings. Following in the top ten were Andy Griffith, Lucy, Family Affair, Bob Hope Special and Bewitched, all shows carried over from past seasons.

The Democrats' decision to hold their 1968 convention in Chicago rather than Miami Beach, site of the Republican convention, will cost the television networks money and sleep but will not make any difference to viewers.

Mr. Brown (growled) — Some of your kin?

Mrs. Brown — Yes, by marriage.

At a dinner party, the subject of eternal life and future punishment came up for a long discussion, in which Mark Twain, who was present, took part. A lady near him turned suddenly toward him and exclaimed:

Mrs. Price — Why do you not say anything? I want your opinion.

Twain replied gravely: Mark Twain — Madam, you must excuse me. I am silent of necessity: I have friends in both places.

Never trust your tongue when your heart is bitter.

Each network will cover the works used duplicate equipment conventions fully and in color, in convention cities.

The networks do not have double sets of color equipment up facilities in Miami several so they will have to transfer weeks before the Republican convention, but will have only three weeks between the Aug. 26 opening of the Democrats' convention to transport and install equipment.

Wounded 3 Times -- Mulls Going Home, Leaving Comrades in Red Slimy Mud

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Reds' intense bombardment of Con Thien has slackened off, but that's still the most dangerous place in South Vietnam. How it is for the U.S. Marines there is described in this dispatch by a free-lance journalist who spent a week at Con Thien.

By HANS E. VOM DORP

CON THIEN, Vietnam (AP) — The Marine with the arm wound tries to steady with his good hand the cigarette that keeps shaking between his lips. It's not a bad wound, but it's the third time he's been hit — his third Purple Heart.

"What are you going to do?" asks Lt. Mike George of Erie, Pa., the platoon leader. "Your third wound. Do you want to go home?"

Usually Automatic

A man who had been hit three times used to be sent out of Vietnam automatically. Lately it has become the option of the individual Marine to stay or go, and a new classification of wounds is gone into effect.

The injured man looks around at the others in the medical bunker of Kilo Company's 3rd platoon.

He whispers, "I'll go." Then he seems to wonder what the other members of his fire team will think of his decision to leave them.

"Don't feel sorry, man," a corpsman says. "You're going home with three Hearts. That's enough."

For the others, life goes on at Con Thien — in the mud.

All of Con Thien is mud — the Marines walk in it, sit in it, sleep in it. Sometimes the Marines themselves appear to be made of mud, so thick does the slimy red coating collect on a man.

The Marines lie in their mud holes. They pull their helmets down closer over their ears and press themselves tighter up against the mud. Incoming artillery rounds hiss overhead and then the mud shudders as the round splatters and explodes.

On Top of Hill

In a bunker near observation post No. 3, atop one of Con Thien's three hills, three men sit in the sooty light of diesel fuel burning in a C ration tin.

"They don't know what it's like," one man says of the people back home. "To watch the rounds being walked up toward you, 50 meters at a time, your sandbagged hootch right in the path of the mortars."

"Another 50 and the rounds will land right on top of you and if you've never felt fear and prayed before, you do then. You just wait for it. You shake and you suddenly find yourself crying like a baby."

Then another man picks up the thread:

"If it isn't that, it's the rain and the mud and the water in the bunkers and your feet begin to get like paste and then they smell bad because you can't keep them dry."

"Or maybe it's the food they can't bring in and you go through the piles of old cans looking for the can that you threw away because you couldn't eat another one of the same thing. Sometimes you have to wait for the water in the shell craters to go down before you can look through the rubbish."

In the dim light, he stops and seems to reflect on life on the mud hills of Con Thien. He scratches the blond stubble on his dirty face.

"Man," he says, "you got to make the best of it. You learn to scrounge and you appreciate the small things."

GOP Sticking to Demand On $5 Billion Cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans show no inclination to lower the $5 billion price tag they have attached to their support of an emergency appropriation bill.

Democratic opponents, jittery over one recent close call, continue to search for an attractive counterproposal in an attempt to lure back into line some colleagues who have been supporting the GOP demand.

Republicans headed by Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, senior

GOP member of the Appropriations Committee, insist that an emergency money bill scheduled for House action Wednesday include a directive to the President to cut spending at least $5 billion.

They came within eight votes of winning two weeks ago when the House passed the third emergency money bill since the fiscal year started July 1. The bills finance agencies whose regular appropriations for the year have not cleared Congress.

"I don't see any ground for compromise," Bow said Friday.

"There's only one way to cut spending, and we must cut it, and that is the direct approach I have been proposing."

Bow added that if the President won't cut the budget, Congress should order him to do it. Democrats counter that the responsibility for cutting is up to Congress, which provides the money in the first place and spells out how and where it should be spent.

Democrats on the Appropriations Committee huddled for several hours Friday without agreeing on a plan to counter the Republican move. There reportedly was strong sentiment for adding to the emergency money bill a mandatory freeze on federal employment until Congress can cut back on some of the money it already has appropriated.

"Between now and Monday Democrats hope to come up with an answer. The entire Appropriations Committee meets then to write the emergency appropriation bill.

Unless emergency funds are provided, many agencies will be technically moneyless starting next Monday, when the present stopgap financing law expires.

Democrats claim they have been assured the Senate would not accept the Republican proposal.

"It would be futile to send them such a bill," one top Democrat said. "They would turn it down and we would find ourselves in a Senate-House fight that could bring some agencies to a halt next Monday."

"We have got to come up with something we can sell to the House and to the Senate."

Key administration officials meanwhile still are hoping for approval this year of higher taxes despite the apparent intransigence of Congress thus far.

One administration insider said it's inconceivable to him that Congress would fail to adopt higher taxes before adjourning this year.

Dutchess Youngsters Aid Conservationists

Two hundred posters reminding hunters and sportsmen to prevent forest fires will be posted next week in rural areas of Dutchess County. With the permission of property owners, they will be put up by members of the newly formed Junior Conservation Club.

Fifteen members of the club's junior advisory council met Wednesday night at the Millbrook Opportunity Center of the Dutchess County Committee for Economic Opportunity.

They elected Richard Toman, Millbrook, as council chairman; Elma Casse, Millbrook, vice chairman; and Alfred Watson, Dover, secretary.

The group also endorsed a proposal by the Appalachian Trail Association to keep clear the section of the trail which runs through Dutchess County.

The Junior Conservation Club has a recreational and educational program which aims to reach young people not reached by any other organization. Through its activities county teenagers will learn conservation of natural resources, skills, and good citizenship.

Two Killed, 33 Wounded In Hong Kong Violence

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist bombs wounded four more police and 16 civilians today including four small children, after a night of terror in which two persons were killed and 33 wounded.

Anti-British terrorists planted more than 40 bombs throughout Hong Kong Island and across the harbor channel in Kowloon today.

Children Wounded

They hurled two or three bombs into a crowd at the entrance of a Chinese fish and vegetable market in teeming Wanchai District on the island.

The wounded included four children, four men shoppers and two members of a police demonstration team lured by a fake bomb call into position for the attack from a nearby tenement roof.

Two other rooftop bombing attacks injured eight more in Wanchai, at the entrance to a government clinic and in front of a post office.

Another bomb trap wounded a police inspector and a police constable on the main road between Kai Tak airport and the plush tourist hotels in downtown Kowloon.

One bomb, placed on a road alongside the airport runway, halted road traffic to and from the airport but no flights were affected. Military experts defused the bomb.

More than 190 reports of real and false bombs were received Friday.

A policeman was killed when

Chinese terrorists hurled bombs at him as he investigated a dummy bomb, and an 18-year-old Chinese youth was fatally injured by a bomb thrown at police near him.

Authorities offered $17,500 in rewards for information leading to the arrest of the killers.

The deaths brought to 41 the number killed since May 11, when local Communists began inciting riots, labor strife and terrorism in a campaign to weaken British authority over the colony on Red China's southern border.

Following a period of relative quiet, terrorists began planting bombs on a large scale Wednesday after police shot and killed a Chinese man in a crowd watching illegal Communist fireworks last Sunday. Communist China's national day.

The colony has had an average of 50 bomb reports a day since then. Communist newspapers said the bombs were a welcome for Lord Shepherd, British minister of state for Commonwealth affairs, who arrived Friday to survey the situation. The newspapers called for more terrorism.

Mixing Politics and Architecture

This Dream Leaves No Room ...for Guessing Games

REISNER DID THIS PENCIL SKETCH of famed Half-Way House in Highland last year when he took on State Highway Department in effort to save the old landmark from bulldozers. Battle was lost and, as a result, another piece of Ulster County's heritage was chipped away.

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

It is vast in scope and visionary in concept—the way dreams should be. It holds the glittering promise of a qualitative improvement in every aspect of Ulster County life, from urban transportation to highway beautification. It is the chef d'oeuvre of Jedd Reisner's candidacy for county legislator and the monument that could guarantee his place in local history.

But, for his dream to come true, Reisner must get himself elected this November. And right now, after involving himself in running for public office for the first time as a new legislator from New Paltz, he is busily knocking on doors. It is to be assumed he is making a direct and immediate impact—for, in his conversation, he pours out a freshet, then a flood, of programs for Ulster's future... programs, he feels, that can and must be woven into the fabric of life here in the decades just ahead.

For Reisner, a working architect with some $18,000,000 worth of State University buildings to his designing credit, most of Ulster's problems reside in the fact that the two-party system has had little success here. The rest of the trouble, he says, lies with the Board of Supervisors which has never, in his opinion, been noted for its administrative skills.

Insists Democrat Reisner.

"We need a two-party system in Ulster and I say this in the knowledge that, even if the Democrats had been in power for the last 100 years, we would need a change." His indictment against the Board involves crises which he says are all to evident in the paucity of results (bogged down urban renewal locally, the dropout rate of administrative and board personnel at Ulster County Community College, too few playgrounds and parks tailored to too few needs, failure to preserve historic buildings with architectural merit).

He says of Ulster's Board of Supervisors: "The people in charge here do not have enough imagination to hire people who so have imagination... and there are certainly many of the latter type around who would like to do the work. Our politicians have never known enough of their own limitations to pick somebody who does know and would be able to do things intelligently."

Reisner, who has just served two years as Chairman of the Historic Buildings Committee of the New York Chapter of American Institute of Architecture, is vitally interested in historical buildings and convinced such buildings are part of our culture and heritage and should be preserved. Even so, he is also capable of employing avant garde building in his own design. A prime example of this would be the Christian Student Center in New Paltz. It is his feeling that this structure should be aimed for the students themselves with a completely new form in which all "generational inhibitions" would go out the window.

And for architect-candidate Reisner, too, a house is more than a home. Once architectural editor of House Beautiful magazine, he enjoys designing private homes because "there is personal satisfaction in dealing with people and solving their needs as far as shelters and homes are concerned."

Half-Way House Gone

He fought tooth and nail to save the architecturally meritorious Half-Way House at Highland, only to face the discouraging reality that it would have to give way for a highway. The flaw that cropped up in this battle, he feels, was that, "We did not start soon enough. The State Highway Department is very reluctant to make changes in plans once they have proceeded past the preliminary stage. I feel to save historic buildings we have to start when the first hearings are held with the Department and make a big enough fuss so they will see the necessity for changing plans."

"Also, we should inspect their preliminary plans in order to know exactly what they have in mind so these fait accomplis are not over and done with before the people have even suspected that such jobs will help to destroy the history of their towns. We need watchdog committees to point out to people the implications of what's being done. Once the people understand and bring their attention to bear, plans can be laid for preservation fights."

Reisner laments the fact that nothing was done to preserve some of the fine old buildings in Rondout as Operation Urban Renewal took its toll. The best of these should have been kept, he feels, and UR changes should have been tied into them. "Once a town is completely levelled," he says, "it loses all character. All our ties with the past are wiped out. The answer is to keep an old building and find new uses for it which can be helpful in the communities future."

It is, of course, Reisner's democratic privilege to run for office. Still he is amazed, he says, that both the public and other architects have a deep interest in his campaign. Attending a recent state convention of architects in Ellenville (where plans were laid to work for a de-emphasis on roads which cut up the landscape and lobby for more public and other means of private transportation), he found that everybody he talked to was "vitally interested in the fact that I was running for office. They felt architects should get into politics more and pointed out that the president of Peru is an architect."

Variety Needed

In a bemused tone, he will tell a listener why he felt impelled to seek office. "The main thing," he says, "was the fact that I thought the new county legislature system should have a variety of people in its ranks. People with a variety of skills, talents and backgrounds."

"Politics today is dominated heavily by lawyers, but there is a lack of other professional people. I was also drawn by Dr. Gorman's interest (Gorman is a busy surgeon; also serves as Ulster County Democratic Chairman) and felt that kind of professional man needed help and backing from other professional people."

There is another reason that rivals all others. "The county building program will be burgeoning in the future and an architect is needed in the legislature to help coordinate plans with the architects who will be working for the legislature. Many things done in big building operations follow architectural prescriptions."

As an architect, Reisner has been greatly influenced by Frank Lloyd Wright and Charles-Edouard Jeanneret (better known as Le Corbusier). Although he feels their work is entirely different, he says Wright's is very well established and Le Corbusier's style has been taken up by younger men and will definitely progress beyond the point where Wright's ever will.

White Made Mark

Though not influenced by Stanford White, he feels he was very good and, in his day, was able to adapt his buildings to a variety of forms — although "not as much as we have today because there was not as much useage for buildings. But his were tasteful and well built and PERRINE'S BRIDGE AT RIFTON is another local heirloom Reisner wants preserved and restored. Far gone though the structure may be, he sees it as focal point of a park, giving us a ready-made emphasis on area history... just as he sees old D&H Canal being utilized in system of walking and riding paths.

Paltz African Festival Will Attract Thousands

An "African Festival," the second in an annual series of international fetes at State University College, New Paltz, will bring to area residents and students a variety of artistic and educational presentations about the African continent from Oct. 22-31.

A week-long India Festival last fall attracted thousands of students and community dwellers to the 15 events, helping to make New Paltz a national leader in undergraduate education in the fields of Asian and African studies.

All programs will be open to the public without charge. Dr. Harry Hammer, chairman of the international festival committee, said.

The Festival will open Sunday evening, Oct. 22 at 8 p. m., in the Main Auditorium with excerpts from the ABC-TV production "Africa," recently seen in a four-hour special on local home screens. Comments by Dr. Hugh Tracey, specialist on African music and visiting lecturer at the college during the next two months, will supplement the ABC program.

His Excellency United Nations Under Secretary Djerma Koye, former ambassador to the U. S. from Niger, will present the keynote speech for the festival at 7:30 p. m., Monday in the Main Auditorium. A public reception will be given for Koye following his talk.

Tiv Folk Dancers

Nigerian Tiv Folk Dancers, a professional dance group, will present a program at 8 p. m., Wednesday, Oct. 25, and Dr. Douglas Frazer, art lecturer from Columbia University, will appear at 8 p. m., Thursday, Oct. 26.

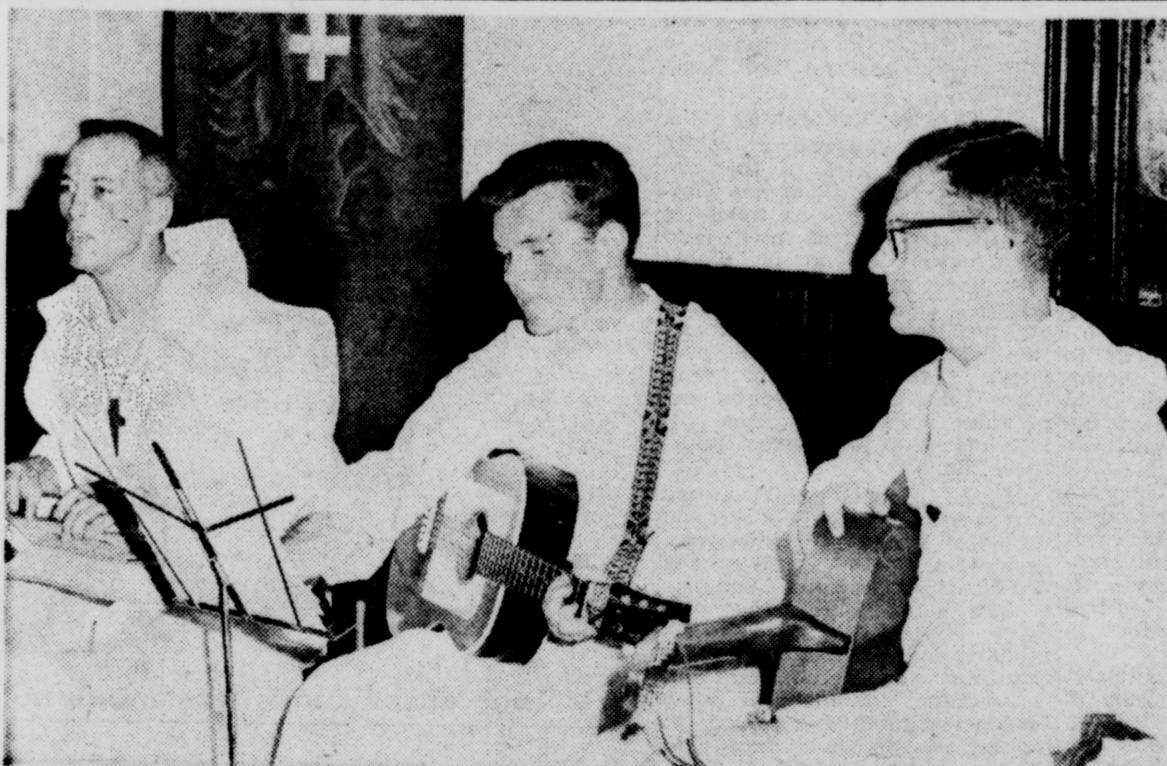

Sunday evening, at 7:30 p. m., in the College Theater, a costume show will be presented with the aid of the American-African Institute under the direction of Marva Christy.

Theatrical productions will follow Monday, Oct. 30 with the Wole Soyinka plays, "Trials of Brother Jero" and "Strong Breed."

The formal festival events will conclude with a presentation Tuesday, Oct. 31, on the subject of African Music to be given by Dr. Tracey.

The Campus School will also feature films and lectures by its staff during the African fete.

HIPPODROMOS AMERICANUS? Well, no, not exactly fulltime real hippies in the cause and movement sense — but they did stage a real live "happening." Doing their "thing" for the "straight" people are the Rev. Thomas Schultz, OHC, Brother N/OHC and the Rev. Clark Tarlton, N/OHC, all monks of Holy Cross Monastery, West Park. They'll be presenting more Happenings each Sunday this month at 7:30 p. m. in St. John's Episcopal Church when their heavenly rhythms will strike responsive notes in folk music, pop art and new liturgical forms. Swinging Monks Stage Happenings

By JEAN F. DOLLAN

A Happening at church? A swinging trio of white garbed monks under a flower power type banner proved it could be done last Sunday and what's more they promise three more happenings of increasing intensity in the coming weeks.

This very modern approach was a way of introducing the avant garde liturgy approved for trial use at the recent General Convocation of the Episcopal Church and was staged at St. John's Episcopal Church, Kingston. Sponsors of the event were Episcopal Parishes of the Kingston Area.

A cross section of Anglican worshippers ranging from tiny teeny-boppers to staid oldsters, numbering close to 150, came to witness and participate in the initial happening. As might be expected reactions were mixed. At any rate they were there and ready for the action whatever turn it took.

Following a trend to folk music and pop art in the tradition-steeped environs of religion, the three monks from the Order of Holy Cross, West Park, gave a rousing performance of great emotional appeal. Juxtaposition of brown paper poster overhead and church banners on either side seemed the keynote of the evening, as they presented their case in song, story and wry humor.

By far the most dramatic of the performers was the Rev. Thomas Schultz, OHC, who spoke and played his homemade mountain dulcimer, a stringed instrument of early origin, with equal intensity. He said hippies were much like the monks of early days. Originally the monasteries were havens for those who were "fed up with the times" just as today the hippies are fleeing from the complexities of a society which can offer no pat answers.

The message of the first happening was in the very first selection presented by Father Schultz, Brother Martin, N/OHC and the Rev. Clark Tarlton, N/OHC, the latter two strumming guitars. The Times They Are A-Changing was the refrain and theme of the entire meeting. Touching on the Vietnam War, the War in the Streets and other concerns of our times, the trio outlined the role of the church in the modern day.

The necessity for change was underlined by the flower bedecked banner which read "Wise Up O Men of God" and reiterated in pop pins with hip sayings adorning the monk's cassocks. One such pin read "God is not dead. Church is."

Following the move by the Roman Catholics to update their worship form, the Episcopalians now seek to revive the liturgy and put stress on layman participation in the Eucharist. Folk art and song are the methods of representing the change apparently.

It is interesting to note the comments of one cleric who bemoaned the lack of rhythm in the new liturgical form while responding to the folk rhythm which told him this was a thing of the past.

The past played a very important part in the happening in many ways. First there are the set ways of the older members of the audience who found it hard to accept, not the folk media of the immediate presentation but the concept of a completely changed church ritual. Not only was the tried and true going down in the face of changing times, but the safety and sanctuary of the familiar was in peril.

Shooting down this concept was the monks' rebuttal that in this time of changing manners and mores the church in its rigidity provided a false protection which allowed its members to partake of the service in age old unthinking ways, thence to depart renewed to the working world of now.

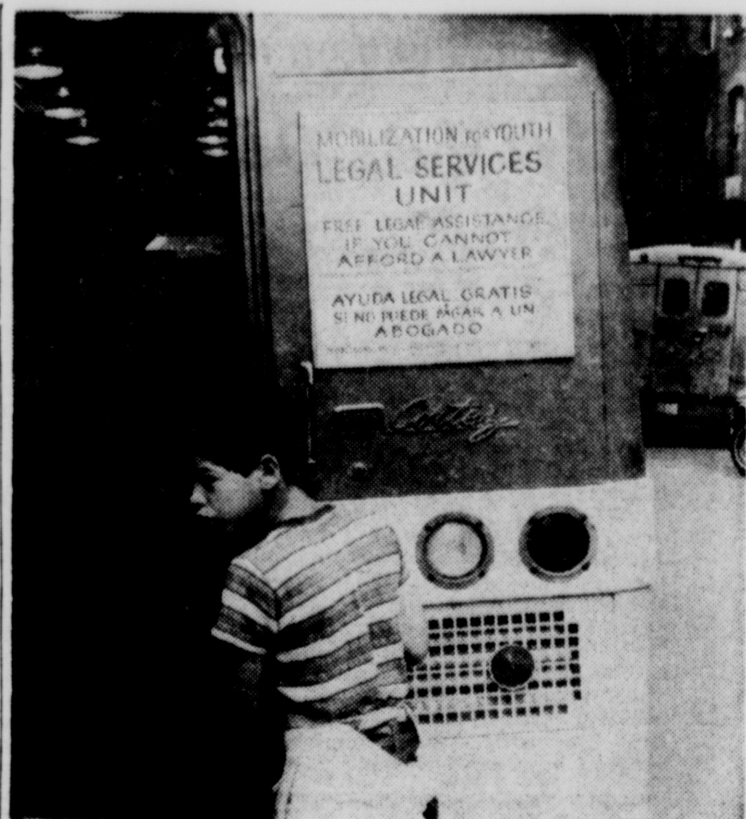

Be of the world at all times, they beseeched. Be a part of the worship and be a part of the world.

The youngsters and not so young responded to the monks' appeal for change by singing along with the folk songs and participating in practice sessions and discussions of the new liturgy.

New voices in the Episcopal church were heard in 1892 and again in 1928. The form was revised in both those years and lived long enough to become tradition in each of the generations.

Today certainly calls for a new approach in every phase of life and religion surely must keep pace.

Three Monks in Four Happenings may just open the door for one denomination.

WILL THIS BOY FIND JUSTICE in his lifetime? That's the question asked by "Justice and the Poor," one of three National Educational Television documentaries on poverty slated for the current fall season. NET JOURNAL takes its cameras to New York City's Lower East Side where volunteer workers range with a mobile truck, advising the poor of their legal rights. Area viewers interested in this question of equal representation under the law for the poor, as well as in the revolt in welfare, northern migrant camp life, the Negro in America, the extent and character of dissent, and the threat to privacy can tune into NET JOURNAL over Channel 17 out of Schenectady. The widely acclaimed documentary series is seen Monday nights at 9 and is repeated the following Sunday at 6 p. m.

Liikala Scrutinizes Experimental Movies

Robert Liikala, film maker-artist of Manhattan's Cooper Union Art School and Ulster County's Group 212, will be guest lecturer at the second session of Senior Seminars at State University College, New Paltz, Wednesday, Oct. 25. Liikala, who exhibits his own works at Woodstock's Copeland Galleries, will discuss and show films related to the topic of "Contemporary and Historical Aspects of the Experimental Film."

Each year these seminars, sponsored by three local educational agencies, offer selected high school seniors in Ulster the opportunity to meet with prominent people in a variety of fields. Currently attending are 61 students from the central schools of Ellenville, Highland, New Paltz, Onteora, Rondout Valley, Saugerties and Wallkill. All were chosen on the basis of scholastic records, National Merit Scholarship Examination ratings, and the recommendations of their individual principals.

The first session last month was conducted by Dr. George O. Roberts, Paltz professor, who dealt with the subject of "Conflicts in Our Culture: Activism, Deviancy, and Anomie." Discussion by students centered around key issues related to present day conflicts in our culture.

Highlights for the future include: Dr. Olivia Edwards discussing the Inner City, Harvey Long on IBM instructional systems, Dr. George A. Schnell speaking on population problems, and field trips to a Rock Tavern pottery, the Moreno Academy in Beacon and St. Mark's Playhouse, New York City.

Stagecoach...High Noon...And Now ...Sheriff Leary to the Rescue

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Let us go, then, on a trip—a trip to the wild and woolly West as hallucinated up by a bunch of Easterners in bell-bottomed Lee Riders and with nylon-stringed guitars.

You can't miss the Trip-master (or you couldn't ordinarily). He's the one with the rather prominent nose, thick neck, hairy chest, white pajama suit and bare feet. He's the one with the yellow flower tucked behind his ear and the beads dangling down his shirt front; the one with the sideburns and longish, greying hair. He's the one who rama of this hippie Disneyland stands Timothy Leary, the Messiah of Millbrook and leader of the League for Spiritual Discovery. Tim, baby, looking mystical, is playing the part of a sheriff in a motion picture now being filmed at his Castalia Foundation. Needless to say, his role is guaranteed to mock the Establishment including all its fried shoes and other symbols.

The movie, called "Indian Givers" and touted as a farce, is backed by a $250,000 budget and it stars—along with bushwackin' Tim, two tribes of "Indians" imported from the sidewalks of Greenwich Village and the East Village. If some of them arrived on location from the city in shabby dress, they now bear more resemblance to fire hydrants, following confrontations with the make-up men, who have painted them from head to toe in hollyhock hues.

A Feverish Greene

does the amazed double-take with the pale eyes when a particularly flamboyant TV interviewer assails the virtues of his dynasty. And he's the one who blows his mind over the games people play.

On this trip, however, he looks for all the world like a changed man. Something new has been added. There he is—ambling along in vintage, turn-of-the-century sheriff's garb. Sportin' fringed rawhide and a badge shaped like a star. Moreover, he's packin' sixguns slung low on the hips—not his usual choice of weapons which is to love the world to death rather than shoot it up.

Looks Familiar

Still, the face is etched in acid and it looks familiar. You better believe it is, friend, and so's the scene.

The face belongs to Dr. Timothy Leary and the scene is a movie set, buzzing as only a movie set deep in the rural recesses of Dutchess County can buzz. On the 2,700-acre estate that LSD cultist Timothy Leary maintains across the river at Millbrook, the Day-Glo Indians and Now Generation cowboys are revving up their motorcycles, squatting in front of Sioux-style teepees, and donning space masks, torches and body paint as the cameras roll on the first psychedelic Western to be filmed anywhere.

Midst all the plastic panoramas of this hippie Disneyland stands Timothy Leary, the Messiah of Millbrook and leader of the League for Spiritual Discovery. Tim, baby, looking mystical, is playing the part of a sheriff in a motion picture now being filmed at his Castalia Foundation. Needless to say, his role is guaranteed to mock the Establishment including all its fried shoes and other symbols.

A flurry of questions brings the realization that nobody, including script writer David

Dozer or director Roberto In-cognito (a pseudonym) is about to divulge the entire story of the plot.

Will gold fever maldy victim Greene tangle with the motorcycle mounted Indians? Will the Indians converse in real Choctaw or in the vernacular of the literary upper crust? Will Sheriff Tim shoot it out in a show-down with all the unbelievers in the humid glare of a Western street and then ride off into the sunset with a girl? Will the actors corralled from the Group Image (a hippie enclave of artists who were on hand for the highly publicized Sound Out in Saugerties over Labor Day weekend bite the dust in a rive-gauche cafe during a gun-'em-up scene... or harmonize on "Apples, Peaches and Pumpkin Pie" in preference to "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie"?

They're Not Joking

Not that anybody's really knocking the idea of the picture—yet. After all, it has Timothy Leary, who's as much of a superstar in his own field as Cooper, Wayne or Gable ever were in theirs. It's got a budget that's not to be snuffed at; professional equipment by the busload; a bona fide producer (Don Nestingen) with more than a dozen years' experience; and, let's face it, Psychodelphia is far from passe these days.

If the plot is pretty much of a secret unless you speak the very fine and happy and crazy as a wild flower jargon of the neo-Beatniks, it does promise a combination of satire and farce. Hippie Indians and Establishment cowboys will score the gaps and a montage and split-screen collage will keep audiences gaudily involved in looking at what will appear to be two films at once. A Day-Glo, dream-glo Western for scoffing culture on this side of the world and glorifying Eastern mysticism and occultism on the other. The big question is—will it celebrate drug induced experiences or only the dreams and the visions of Everyman?

Whatever it does, it'll keep things jumping around the wide-porched, four-story, 64-room Castalia Foundation mansion at Millbrook for several weeks to come. Shooting on a 10-week schedule, the company (featuring Leary in wide-brimmed Stetson, the Group Image in dirty fingernails and moccasins, Greene with his gold pans, and another tribe known as the Third World behind the scenes) will go on to a Navajo reservation in Arizona next month—after wrapping it up around the foot of the flagpole at Millbrook.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, Leary saunters around in his high-heeled boots, grimacing like Lee Marvin as Liberty Valance, and practicing his fast draw like Jim Arness as Marshall Dillon. The self-styled guru of the turned-on people is turning his talents toward commercial movie houses now that the lecture season on Lysergic Acid Diethylamide has come and gone. In his booming psychedelic bohemia deep in the Dutchess woods, the make-believe Indians sit astride their cycles, painted like fluorescent neon signs in orange, chartreuse, cerise, green and blue—and Leary, Raggedy Andy hair, pre-mod western jacket and all, prepares to bring the new hippie subculture to the old West and to the non-psychedelic layman of the '60s.

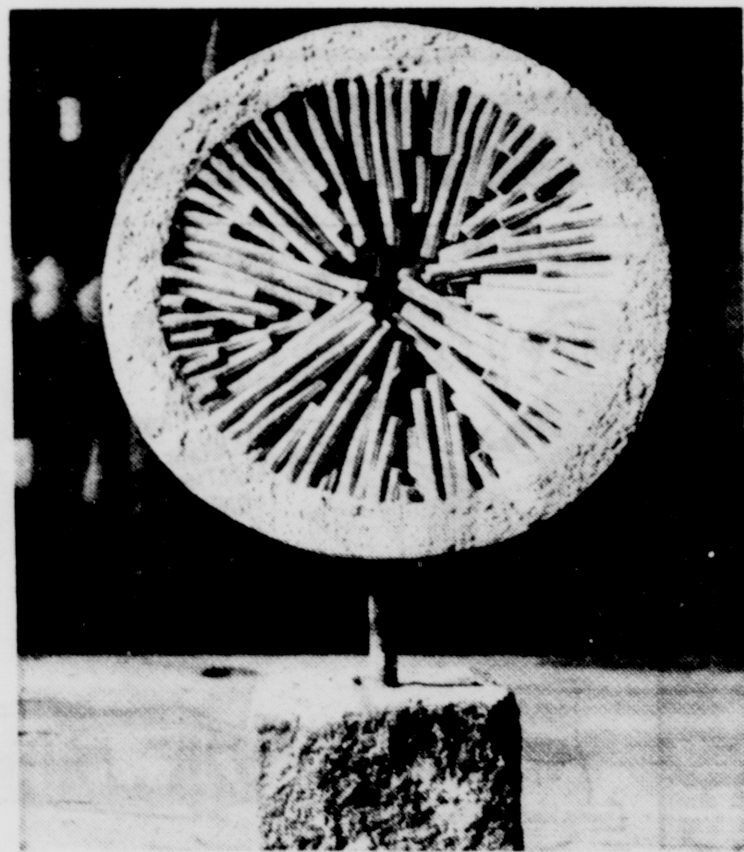

After it's all over, it's just possible the free-swinging "sheriff" will be able to shoot a marijuana butt out of the villain's mouth at 20 paces... or the beads off a Haight-Ashbury tripster at 30. So, bring on the message, the massage and the mirage—a panting public is waiting.

ECLIPSE, a 17-inch ceramic piece executed by Yasuhide Kobashi in 1960, was one of the works on view from the Nelson A. Rockefeller collection, as the governor opened the new art gallery at Albany's State University last week. Hundreds crowded into the impressive Fine Arts Building for its dedication. More than a few were artists, including at least five from Ulster County. Woodstock painters Ethel Magafan and Bruce Currie heard Rockefeller extol the "great freedom in the arts today," and artists Walter Plate, Gladys Brodsky and Norma Millman were guests at a filet mignon dinner before the opening.

Captured Moments from Earnest

Delightful Show for an Autumn Evening

scenes from the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre's second production of its first season, Oscar Wilde's brilliant farce, THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST, were recorded for posterity by the camera of photographer Erik Van Cort. Making their entrance in the picture at top upper right: scene stealer Diane Hall, a young actress with great promise, as the innocent Cecily and Fred and Martha Miller as the Rev. Chasuble and Cecily's governess, Miss Prism, who has the total and complete admiration of the minister.

The bottom photograph has local radio personality Alex Osina as one of the two butlers in the play and, in this picture, he handles a teatime interlude with masterful aplomb, tinkling the cups to the amused smile of Miss Hall and the glum-faced reaction of Jane Lyold-Jones, who is cast as Gwendolyn, beloved of Cecily's protector, Jack Worthing.

Heading up the life side of the page, we have Jack (as played by William Metzo) using his walking stick to make his point with Cecily; and, finally, hearts and flowers from another century in the photo at top left described elsewhere.

Huv Rep calls the Woodstock Playhouse home base and THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST will continue on-stage through Oct. 22, to be followed by Eugene O'Neill's Long Day's Journey Into Night. Ticket reservations for Wednesday through Saturday evenings can be made through the Playhouse box office.

Huv Rep Ladies

A Ladies Auxiliary of The Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre has been formed to sell subscriptions to the Repertory Theatre, raise funds and generally create interest in the operations of Huv Rep.

The group has already held a number of meetings including a luncheon at Deanie's Restaurant in Woodstock and a session this week at the Playhouse there.

Auxiliary members are the Mmes. Robert Yallum, Barbara Griener, Hilde Citroen, Rochelle Rattner, George Hutton, Arthur Ewig, Dorothy Gerbarg, Sylvia Galen and Morton Kamen.

THEATRE

Metzo's Big Scenes

In another scene (right) Metzo confronts his ward, Cecily (Diane Hall in real life) in beflowered and walled garden of his country estate.

Action in Earnest revolves primarily around these three and Algernon, as portrayed by Charles Seals, friend of Jack and suitor of Cecily and—just to complicate matters, Ernest No. Two.

ALEX OSINA AS BUTLER SERVES TEA TO THE LADIES

MOVIES

THE TAMING OF THE SHREW. Men played women's roles in the time of Shakespeare for a perfectly obvious and logical reason—there were no actresses. It would be beyond the pale, however, to attempt to visualize the Elizabethan male who could have created Katharina in "The Taming of the Shrew" with all the violet-eyed fervor and scratching and pouting feminine wiles of Elizabeth Taylor. "Shrew," the current attraction at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre, is part Shakespeare comedy, part Panavision and Technicolor movie, and part news event. Since it also stars Richard Burton as Petruchio, audiences will probably brave flood, tornado and hurricane to sit through another colorful episode in the lives of Liz and Dick.

Still, the Padua based comedy is worth seeing for a number of reasons. Burton pummels, pounds, kicks, slaps, spansks and generally knocks about his buxom bride (well, she is a smidge too fat to be called totally beautiful). Furthermore, he plays Petruchio with broad, boisterous and boozy license, reminding one for all the world of Laughton as Henry VIII. And Taylor is a genuine Kate, sometimes panting, sometimes serene; sometimes majestic, sometimes more like a vulture with a new pedicure. She is, of course, finally tamed—but not before she has heaved enough furniture at her sister's suitors to fill a warehouse, smashed a lute over one head and cracked a second skull with a warming pan.

Shakespeare's classic comedy as raced off by the Burtons and directed by Franco Zeffirelli is blatant fun and full of tram-poline resiliency. Zeffirelli stages the wooing scene in knockdown, drag-out, wild chase style; has the poverty-stricken Petruchio pay court to tempestuous Kate in a rough-and-tumble free-for-all that romps through a house, courtyard, barn and over the roofs into a crashing fall through the ceiling of a hayloft.

"If 'Shrew' is more celluloid glitter than Shakespeare, it's glitter that definitely should be seen. This sets against which Petruchio wifes it wealthily in Padua are splendid; the Irene Sharaff costumes are spectacular; Miss Taylor is as gorgeous as a 20 pounds weight loss can make her; and the acting and production casts can boast no fewer than six Academy Award winners with 12 Oscars to their collective credit.

THE TRIP. To a generation of movie-goers, Henry Fonda was the clean-cut, slightly bumbling, good guy hero of dozens of films. To the new generation, his son, Peter, anything but. To date, he has played a grubby, unlovable and slightly psycho soldier in The Victors and a black-leather-jacketed, violence-prone motorcyclist in yellow sunglasses in a teenage fantasy whose title we'd rather forget. Now he mirrors another epic modern day problem as he confronts LSD in The Trip, currently playing at Kingston's Community Theatre.

Young Fonda, just as lean and lanky as his father before him, tries the potent drug when his job as a Hollywood director of TV commercials gets to the tension inducing stage and his marriage (Susan Strasberg is his screenmate) goes on the rocks and into the divorce court. He picks a place with all the comforts of home and moreso for his initial flight and one of the best scenes in the movie is his turning-on session in Psychedelic Color amidst the luxurious surroundings of a friend's digs.

The Trip may not be the greatest chiller ever made but Fonda does a perceptive job with his part, handling well the hallucinations, the joyrides, the delights and the frights. Trip is not a bad movie at all, the squares not withstanding. Enough art and taste has been lavished on it to make it more than run of the mill and, in its own way, it brings some needed understanding of the generation that has taken over this decade and will someday BE the establishment.

As an extra added attraction, the double bill at the Community also offers The Pawnbroker. It's an oldie but a truly excellent one. Rod Steiger as a Jewish pawnbroker in the Harlem ghetto evokes a tragic and—for those who missed it the first time around—the film can promise a moving, shake-you-up experience. DORFMAN DEMONSTRATES ROLLER TECHNIQUE FOR KIDS

Young People's Studio Reopens

Young People's Studio, an art program for children, located in Woodstock, announces the start of its new fall-winter session.

The Studio program is available to children in two age groups: 6-9 years, and 10-12 years. Young People's Studio is under the direction and guidance of Bruce Dorfman, well-known artist and Art Students League instructor, who will once again provide the professional instruction in all classes.

Children will have the full use of Dorfman's own spacious and specially equipped studio. There each child is able to create and display his efforts comfortably and with ease.

Each weekly program brings the introduction and completion of a new project on one of the general areas of painting, drawing, outdoor sketching, sculpture printmaking, mobiles and crafts. Projects are completely new with each program session and are not repeated.

Young People's Studio school year consists of a fall-winter session and a spring session. Each year, at the end of spring session, a special outdoor exhibition of children's work is held. The 10-12 year old group meets Friday afternoons, 3:40-6 p. m. The 6-9 year old group meets Saturday morning, 9:40 a. m.-12 noon. Children are registered by units consisting of three consecutive classes with fees per unit. All basic materials are provided. There are five units in each of the fall and winter sessions. Each group will be limited to 12 members.

Registration day is Saturday, Oct. 21, and Young People's Studio may be visited at that time. For further information and a descriptive mailing, call western United States have been highly successful.

Preliminary grading of access roads to the site has already begun by Cairo contractors, under the direction of Kermit Goell, co-writer of "Rip" and organizer of the project. Song-writer Goell told SHOWTIME this week that he is "highly satisfied with the vote to move into the construction phase." He said the original $1.5 million budget will be utilized elsewhere since these will now cost nothing due to the generosity of Arthur Dederick and James Rockefeller, the Cairo contractors involved.

Grinned Goell: "This is the most exciting day for me since my song 'Near You,' was No. 1 on the hit parade."

Go Signal for Green Theatre

Construction of the Washington Irving Amphitheatre in Greene County is slated to proceed at once via the resolution passed last week at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Catskill Mountain Resort and Recreation Corporation.

With some $50,000 already subscribed to this open air amphitheatre venture, the board moved to begin construction immediately on the seating area and stage. This would seemingly insure the possibility of producing the "Rip Van Winkle" musical show there next summer.

The amphitheatre will rise near Palenville and "Rip" will play evenings throughout a 10-week summer season. Similar ventures in the southern and

Praised by Guthrie and Kazan

When the Theatre of the Deaf appears at Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, Oct. 16, its varied program of four short plays will have a professional tone seldom encountered away from the sophisticated stage of the big city. The company has been hailed by drama critics as "a great new group of actors and actresses . . . not a clinic for handicapped artists but a brilliant professional troupe of entertainers who have discovered a new and exciting dimension in drama."

Many others who have seen the group perform agree. Famed British director Tyrone Guthrie said of the project: "It sheds new light of a most fascinating character upon the whole problem of human communication . . . It makes one revise many preconceptions about speech, music, movement and how we communicate with each other." His American counterpart, Elia Kazan, spoke of "a kind of beauty I'd never seen before, primitive yet sophisticated, always passionate."

Requests for tickets for the performance this coming Monday at 8:30 at Bard College gym, may be addressed to either Box 70 at the college or the Public Relations Office there.

Fellini's Film Slated at Marist

Federico Fellini's "La Strada" is the presentation picked to open the 7th Annual Film Festival at Poughkeepsie's Marist College. This year's campus film program will be comprised of eight motion pictures from abroad, beginning with "La Strada" which will be shown this Sunday at 8 p. m. in the Champagnat Theater, with admission free.

Last year hundreds of residents of the area joined students to make up the audience and participated in discussions of theme, artistry and merits of the film after each showing.

Directors of the program strive to select films of high esthetic or historical interest centered about a major theme for the year, and those that are not readily available otherwise in the area. This year's theme is Empathy — A Study of Acting in Films.

Movies coming to Marist in the weeks ahead are: Kind Hearts and Coronets, Les Enfants, du Paradis, Rashomon, The Treasure of the Sierra Madre, Die Blaue Angel, La Grande Illusion and Laurence Olivier's Henry V.

Wednesday Movies

"Shoot the Piano Player," the third program of the Wednesday Film Series at Orange County Community College, Middletown, will be shown at 4 and 8 p. m. on Oct. 18 in the college's Orange Hall theater.

Directed by Francois Truffaut in half-thriller, half-parody style "Shoot the Piano Player" shows how Edward Saroyan, the pianist, becomes Charlie Koller, the piano player, with suicide and a murder along the way. Starring in the film is Charles Aznavour.

General admission is charged with proceeds going to the OCCC Student Association Scholarship Fund.

are still contributing to the pleasure of visual education." White fumed for the first Madison Square Garden, "had enough curiosity that he might be intrigued and fascinated by the new, modern Garden," Reisner thinks.

Reisner, who studied at the University of Illinois and in Europe, maintains offices on Innis Avenue in New Paltz and West 42nd Street in New York City. Among his local contributions have been elementary schools in the Marlboro and Onteora districts, as well as the new gymnasium at New Paltz college.

If he feels that a building such as Wright's Guggenheim Museum in Manhattan might not be exactly right for Ulster County stylewise, he is convinced a county museum would be a very good thing. He envisions any such building or complex of buildings as a cultural center for our college and residential communities and for our tourist trade. He feels that any plans for Kingston Point should be aimed at retaining and preserving whatever innocent charm the beachfront once or still has. "Improvements in such areas," he said, "should not mean Coney Island. They should mean Jones Beach." He followed such reasoning himself in blueprinting the new West Chestnut Street Apartments. Retaining the old mansion there and keeping it intact with the exception of removing two side porches on either end, he made this residence the nucleus of the development. The future, he says calls for keeping such old buildings as the center of a new complex.

He thinks of Ulster's vast maze of new roads and highways as casual, ineffective and piecemeal projects. They scarcely seem tailored to our needs in his opinion. Says Reisner: "More roads are not the answer. Other kinds of mass transportation are called for — to and from New York City and up and down the Hudson, whether overland or on or under water. We have reached the point where we should forget about more automobiles and improve bus, rail and other services. This ties in with Gov. Rockefeller's new bill. It may be hard to swallow — but we have all the roads we can stand right now."

Ulster Needs Industry

Get Reisner talking about what he thinks is the most important planning problem facing Ulster in the next 10 years and he'll expound along these lines. "I would say it's a general overall planning to encourage industry. If we do this and we should, we must begin worrying about water resources, residential dwellings of all kinds in both low and high income brackets, and educational facilities. Why? Because industry always wants plenty of water, land and transportation and, without these, it won't be attracted. This county is not going to be agricultural from now on. It's going to be industrial. Farming is not efficient in this area. Eventually, it will be subjugated in favor of industry. We must take advantage of our beautiful scenery and the fact that this is a good place to live to attract industry."

Jedd Reisner finds much to complain about in what he believes to be the non-strategically planned, non-comprehensive programs undertaken by past and present county leaders. They have been too long uninterested in our jail problems and those posed by the county infirmary, as well as parks, recreation and construction, he says. He questions, for example, the $1,000 voted to make a study of the county infirmary; says this money might just well have been thrown down the drain since feasibility studies show many times that amount would have to be spent before "they would have had something they could use." He feels that the County Planning Board is not being given enough support by political bigwigs and that the shelving of that agency's budget request for a county-wide aerial survey mapping will cost us some $100,000 in the future.

Should fortune smile on him Election Day, his first proposals as a legislator from New Paltz would be to attack several bureaucratic bottlenecks locally.

It goes without saying that he would lobby for preservation of old buildings, but he would also interest himself in Ulster County Community College and, hopefully, see that Phase II is actively coordinated with Phase I. With two different architects involved, he would want to make sure, he says, that "there is no buck passing between the two phases and that everyone is very sure where one leaves off and the other begins."

To avoid chaos in this respect, must know about both to do he is adamant in his feeling that either.

we must not have a "disunified campus." While reasoning that the design of each phase does not have to match, he would mount any soapbox to stump for intelligent planning so that the feeling of campus unity will be achieved.

Persistent politician though he may be, Reisner will pause or digress on occasion — enough to assure listeners that the perils of public office have not diminished his sense of humor. For example, on architectural forms: "Work in the future will see fewer straight lines and boxes, more use of the fluid, natural forms and curves. After all, that's the way we appreciate our women, Twiggy notwithstanding." On the highly publicized Gateway to the West Arch in St. Louis, Mo.: "A could use." He feels that the gimmick . . . St. Louis' biggest County Planning Board is not bumper sticker! Such man-made objects seem out of place when the natural landscaping is more basic to architectural beauty and can be counted upon to bring pleasure of experience. Besides, the idea of the arch was taken from Mussolini since the form first appeared in one of his posters." On Kingston's County Office Building (the so-called "Glass Menagerie"): "I don't think it would serve any purpose to comment on it, simply because I wouldn't want to repeat it."

Wisely, Reisner has no preference between working with urban environments or those of the rugged countryside. He sees little difference between the two any more; says the rural is looking forward to urbanization and the urban to ruralization since each sees advantages to the other system — and an architect

He is, of course, right. And he is right, too, when he points out that architecture IS art and sculpture. He feels that a painter such as Mondrian, for example, was very influential in architecture and that the colors an artist uses and his forms are very necessary to architecture. Math, science and engineering must be studied, too, he says, if a building is to stand up against the test of time and be truly beautiful.

Touches Us all

For him, architecture touches on the life of everybody and on every aspect of their lives, meaning that it is pretty much the gamut of everybody's experiences.

That kind of balance applies to politics, too, most people would have to agree. If many men make buildings, it takes genius to make architecture. Who is to gainsay that an inventive architect could not become a legislator who might provide as his art does, the thoughtful making of "space in light" for the institutions of man?

Reisner feels that if architects make mistakes, they know how to learn from them in planning for the future. He further believes that "if you don't make mistakes, you are not doing anything." If he has an overall point to make, it is that an architect deals daily with people and boards and organizations, with budgets and time limits, plans, ideas and testimony, making him part salesman (because any ideas put across have to be sold) and part politician from the very beginning. He just might be right.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

All rights reserved. E. T. Williams & Co., Inc., New York.

It's Well... Different!

"It's wonderful... completely different from anything you can imagine... and well, you just can't explain it," was how an astronomer described the new world brought closer by the newest telescope.

"But getting right down to earth, I think that's a phrase that fits my business too," says a pioneer dealer in electric heating.

"Who can imagine ahead of time that everything we're saying about it is true... that the world of tomorrow heating is here, right now today, has been, in fact, for over five years now.

"For electric heating is the first new thing in heating since the gay nineties. We don't just offer the same old thing with a more modern fuel.

"Too many people are walking into the unknown when they walk into — and maybe buy, — their new houses. It's not the new look of say, the panelling, that should be helping you make the decision... but something you may not even consciously see. The heating system... and with a modern electric one that can be mighty unobtrusive indeed. So, it will certainly pay you handsomely to at least get the facts on what you can look forward to if you hold out for electric heating. Here are some of the major points.

● Utterly comfortable indoor climate... and perfectly controllable on a room-by-room basis regardless of weather extremes outdoors.

Electricity, as fuel, is 100% useable. And if the insulation also meets specifications there will be no drafts, no hot spots.

● A flexibility never possible until the development of electric heating, is one of the world-of-tomorrow features that's basic to an electric heating system. The heating system is your servant, you're not its slave. Have to stay up late at night for desk work, home work... maybe even insomnia? Well you can keep the heating up too, in the rooms where you want it, at the temperature you want it, and as long as you want it.

● You save too, health, annoyance... and in the long run, money. Many people report fewer colds in the even warmth of electrically heated houses. There's no need for seasonal maintenance either (nothing to get dirty and that saves more money in the long run. And incidentally, with electric heating, it's a much longer run. Not only do they out-perform other types, they outlast them.

QUESTION BOX

Q. Is there one type of electric heating better than the other?

A. Though it's been around in a mass way only about half a dozen years, the varying types of equipment we've mentioned in the column are highly perfected.

To say again something we firmly believe, let your heating contractor do the prescribing. Design of your house, peculiarities of a given room may indicate a particular type. There are times when a contractor will use say all three of the three most popular types throughout a house. That would be electric radiators, radiant ceiling cable, and wall panels.

Q. Is electric heating adaptable primarily for single homes?

A. Electricity is proving itself the perfect fuel for any size structure from the smallest vacation bungalow to the tallest skyscraper.

It's always proving mighty popular in multiple dwellings from a simple two-family house to large apartment buildings. In addition to evenness of heat, which makes it desirable in any dwelling, electric heating gives apartment dwellers something they haven't had before in the bigger structures. And that's individual control. With electric heating you don't have to shudder with cold because the superintendent cuts the heat at 10:00 P. M. ... nor tippy-toe over cold tiles to your shower if you get up at 5:00. Electric heating can be controlled according to the taste and need of individual dwellers.

Q. How long does it take electricity to heat?

A. It's on the job instantly. As fast as your table lamp. Electricity travels with the speed of light.

Q. Does an electric heating system cause power drain on appliances?

A. Quite the contrary. In fact when Gold Medallion standards are followed so many extra circuits are provided that you won't need extra wiring even when you acquire things electrical that haven't even been invented yet.

THRUWAY FATALITY—State Police today were endeavoring to learn the identity of a man killed Friday night when a 1967 car went out of control and split in two pieces after slamming into a bridge abutment near

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.
Ulster County's 35th highway fatality of 1967 was recorded Friday night when an unidentified man was killed and two others seriously injured after a 1967 car went out of control and was cut in two pieces after hitting a bridge abutment on the State Thruway north of Saugerties. State Police and Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser were endeavoring to establish the identity of the victim of the spectacular crash that occurred at 10:20 p. m. near Mile Post 103 (North).

Man Cheats Death
The mishap was one of many investigated in this area Friday and early today by state troopers. Several persons were injured. A Nassau County man narrowly escaped death in a Gardiner accident.
Sergeant J. M. Abate of Troop T said it was not immediately determined who was driving the 1967 car when it crashed into the bridge pier about two miles north of Saugerties. The dead man was found slumped on the front seat of the wrecked vehicle.
Other occupants of the car at the time of the crash were rushed to Kingston Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance. They were identified by troopers as Thomas Smith, 27, of 16 Albany Avenue, Albany and William Scott, 21, of 839 Brandt Street, Schenectady. They were ejected from the sedan and both were in serious condition at the hospital.
Because of their condition Smith and Scott could not be questioned. Their relatives informed troopers they didn't know who the dead man was or where he lived. He had no papers of identification on his person.

Couple, Daughter Hurt
A New Jersey couple and their daughter were injured at 6:50 p. m. Friday when the car in which they were riding went out of control on the State Thruway near mile post 84.4 (North) and overturned on the center mall.
Sergeant J. M. Abate said Mrs. Barbara Moffett, 25, of Fort Lee, N. J., was driving north when a tractor-trailer operated by Jean Claude Patry, 35, of Montreal, attempted to pass the passenger car. The headlights of the tractor apparently confused the woman and she lost control of the car as it overturned after glancing off the truck.
Mrs. Moffett, her husband, Robert, 35, and their daughter, Lee Ann, 22 months, were taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance. Moffett suffered cerebral concussion, lacerations of the forehead and scalp and other injuries. Her condition was listed as serious. The baby sustained contusions of the scalp and right shoulder.
Trooper J. B. Fox cited Patry for following too close. He pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Robert Stedje, Town of Ulster, and fined $10. Troopers said a pet beagle was in the car at the time of the mishap. The dog, attached to a leash, ran into the woods near Rosendale.

State Chamber Official

Breakfast Speaker Named

John J. Roberts, executive vice-president of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce, will be the featured speaker at Tuesday morning's breakfast meeting. "A Businessman's View of the Proposed State Constitution."

The breakfast will be sponsored by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce at 7:45 a. m. in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel.
S. James Matthews, Chamber President, today expressed his great pleasure at having so knowledgeable representative of the Empire State Chamber as Roberts speaking before the Chamber membership and guests. Matthews expressed the opinion that Roberts' background and long experience with State government makes him uniquely qualified for his discussion of the proposed State Constitution and its implications to the Kingston Area business community.
In addition to Roberts, who will give a formal discussion on the businessman's viewpoint, there will be a question and answer period in which district delegates, H. Clark Bell and S. James Matthews will participate. Businessmen are urged to bring their questions for discussion at the meeting.
A graduate of Union College and Harvard Law School, Roberts has been executive vice-president of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce since mid-1959. Immediately prior to his appointment as executive vice-president he had been the Chamber's Counsel for seven years.

KTF Vote Choice, Official Pact Next

Elected by a slim margin as the exclusive bargaining agent for the teachers' negotiating unit in the Kingston School District Consolidated on Friday, the Kingston Teachers Federation plans to meet soon with the school board to discuss schedules for formal negotiations and a dues checkoff through the business office.

The election, conducted by the American Arbitration Association, brought out 96 percent of the eligible voters in the school system. The vote was 273 for the KTF and 260 for the Kingston Teachers' Association. Seven teachers voted for no representation and there were five challenged votes.

Leaders of both teachers groups said the KTF was chosen by a one-half vote majority and explained that based on the eligible voters 272½ votes were needed to win the election.

After the results were officially announced by the AAA Vernon L. Outwater Jr., president of KTF issued the following statement:
"The response of the Kingston teachers does not come as a surprise to me. It reaffirms the convictions that the KTF has had about the educators in our district. The desire to effectively participate in educational affairs has moved teachers to place their faith and trust in the organization that has a long history of sound accomplishments."

"Twenty-five years of dedicated service to the educational establishments in Kingston are the credentials we have earned as we look to the monumental task of attaining for children and teachers of Kingston the highest possible standard of educational excellence."

G. Thomas Keehn, president of the KTA, issued a statement after the results were announced. He said, "The Kingston Teachers' Association extends congratulations to the Kingston

Federation on their being chosen the negotiation representative of the professional staff.

"The months ahead will be very important ones to all the pupils, taxpayers, teachers and administrators in Kingston. The KTA is hopeful that the Kingston Federation will seek the support of the entire staff in their program and that all the professionals in the district will be given an opportunity to participate in the development of a much improved school system."

Outwater and other representatives of the KTF said last night that the KTF will now proceed with the writing of the first official contract with the Board of Education. The KTF leaders pointed out that the group is the first in the Mid-Hudson Valley to be approved as an exclusive collective bargaining agent for teachers' negotiating units.

The KTF president commented on what the election meant for future relations with the Board of Education was under no compulsion to bargain with teachers. The salary and policy decisions arrived at previously were influenced only by the law of supply and demand and by requirements of the State Education Department.

"The Taylor Law, however, required that the Board bargain in good faith with the agent selected by the teachers. This implies reaching agreement with the agent on all areas under consideration for the contract."

Outwater noted that under the leadership of Arthur Wilhall, Board president, the school board last summer made every effort to implement the letter and the spirit of the Public Employees Fair Employment Act.

"It was evident to all," Outwater said, "after discussions between the school board, the KTA and KTF, the Board's only concern was the transition from informal talks to collective bargaining be made as efficiently and effectively as local conditions would permit."

The unit consists of all professional personnel except the superintendent of schools, associate superintendents, assistant superintendents, administrative assistants, principals, assistant principals, directors, assistant directors, supervisors, coordinators and department chairmen and deans.

The cost of yesterday's election will be divided equally among the KTA, KTF and the Board of Education.

Local Officials Hear

By RAY W. TYSON

Air pollution in the Kingston-Ulster area varies between 1,000 and 9,000 tons per year, members of the Common Council's Air Pollution Committee were told yesterday in Albany.

Meeting with representatives of State Air Pollution Control, the committee learned that the major cause of air pollution in this area results from cement plant particles. The plant, Hudson Cement, recently claimed they had spent nearly $15 million in pollution control.

Harry Hovy, a state control representative, said his organization plans to have a testing unit in this area by the spring of 1968. He declared the unit would be a semi-portable structure.

In 1963, the State wanted to place a testing device in Kingston but the bid was denied by fire marshals who contended the type of apparatus intended constituted a fire hazard.

Since 1966, the New York State Health Dept. commissioner has had enforcement powers in the air pollution violations. According to the State Air Pollution Commission, local industries have been notified of the various controls and regulations required.

Also discussed at yesterday's meeting was city landfill and the sewerage problem.

Attending the conference were Aldermen Clifford Sinsbaugh, chairman; George Marolis; John L. Machione; and City Clerk Thomas Lyle.

City buses and the cement plant have been accused as the worst violators of air pollution standards. Bus fumes have been termed, "one of the most deadly of pollutants."

However, Robert Green, president of Hudson Cement, recently noted that most of the $15 million spent by his company on control of pollutants was used in the purchase of precipitators, water trucks and street cleaners. He said, "We keep the state standards and use the latest equipment."

Last Chance To Register

Today is the final day for voter registration at district polling places throughout the city and county under the new permanent personal registration effective this year.

The polls have been open since 7 a. m. and will remain open until 10 p. m.

Those expecting to vote on Election Day, Nov. 7, and have not registered at the Board of Elections or during special registration days in various districts in the county must register today.

Political Winds

CHARLES BERRMOPOL
Freeman Political Writer

The big political battle being waged in Ulster County is for County Judge—not only does the position carry with it a 10-year term at $25,000 per, but because a State Supreme Court Judgeship—a 14 year term at about $31,000 ($6,000 more a year)—rests at top of the ladder.

Judge Harry E. Schirick has already resigned from one of the three Ulster Supreme Court slots, and Judge Roscoe V. Elsworth will step down in a year or so. When Elsworth does step down, Ulster County will be left with only one Supreme Judge (Louis G. Bruhn) and another will be appointed shortly thereafter.

So, both incumbent County Judge Raymond J. Mino and challenger John J. Schick are battling tooth and nail for this one.

To spotlight the Mino-Schick campaign, let's turn, for

County Judgeship -- The Big Political Battle

a moment on each candidate's splinter party endorsements.
Schick who sought the Liberal Party endorsement but failed to get it, took the Conservative nod instead.

Schick's reasoning was easy to understand: by getting himself on the Conservative line, he could possibly offset the conservative image of the Republicans and pick up dissident GOP votes from people who would never think of voting Democratic but who could be led to line "C" in order to demonstrate their hostility to the top of the ticket.

As for why the Conservatives nominated Schick: to drive a wedge between the Resnick Democrats and the Schick Democrats in hopes of using the device to force a Resnick defeat in 1968. Unless Schick plays along, this kind of deviousness may be just a little bit too clever for the Conservatives to pull off, even though there could not be too much love lost between the Congressman and the former assistant D.A. from Kingston.

As for Mino's accepting the Liberal endorsement: probably to get a second line on the ballot, but the Liberal strategy appears to have been merely to give the nod to Schick's opponent.

Mino, of course, came to Liberal meetings and actively sought the endorsement, but some Liberal leaders are upset because their advice and consent has not been asked for throughout the span of the Mino campaign.

Also, Liberals are annoyed with the makeup of a number of Mino signs and billboards which make no mention of the Liberal Party or Liberty Bell symbol.

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick told an audience at New Paltz State University Tuesday that he would remain loyal to President Johnson's Vietnam policy even if it meant an armed invasion of North Vietnam.

The Ellenville Democrat also told a similar New Paltz audience this past winter that the U.S. had been assured by those so-called "informed sources" close to the State Department that the Chinese would only enter the war if the U.S. crossed the 17th parallel.

Well, the 17th parallel pretty well forms the dividing line between North and South Vietnam, so, by Resnick's own logic, he would support an action that would lead us into a war with China.

No one should be allowed to get away with that kind of statement, nor with the further comments, made this past Tuesday, that the Vietnam War's unpopularity comes from young men "who want to evade everything" and from mothers "who don't want their darling little boys to leave home."

The Congressman may realize that many mothers are not so concerned about their son's leaving as they are about what kind of condition they will be in when they arrive back home.

As for young men not wanting to go over to that tragic Southeast Asian nation: it is not merely because they "want to evade everything" but because some are genuinely confused about American objectives over there, and others are truly opposed to the objectives.

Perhaps the most unpopular war prior to the Vietnam venture was the Mexican War of 1846—when many felt the U.S. wanted to steal land from the Mexicans—but the Congressman must know that many objections to the present conflict are valid—and if he wants to say, as so many are these days, "Well, now that we are over there, regardless of how we get there, we should go on and win" then he is guilty of the same base reasoning that his more conservative adversaries are.

The self-proclaimed "rubber stamp" for the Johnson administration may be faced with more sober reflections if this war continues to escalate and those pine boxes continue to pile up.

Resnick and Johnson, of course, will both be subjected to the glaring light of history.

Hit Haiphong Says Russell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard B. Russell says President Johnson is not ready to bomb North Vietnam's port of Haiphong "but he's doing a great many things today he refused to do a year ago."

Russell, the veteran Georgia Democrat who heads the Senate Armed Services Committee and is a long-time Johnson friend, said Friday in an interview he supports the view of Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp that the bombing of the port would end the war quickly.

"That is what I have been advocating for two years," Russell said. "I think we can win the war in Vietnam the way we are fighting it now, but it is going to cost more lives and more money than if we acted decisively to end it."

Progress Is Slow
"We are making slow but steady progress, but at a price I for one do not think we should pay."

Sharp, Pacific military commander in chief, said earlier Friday in Annapolis, Md., that it would be most helpful militarily to bomb Haiphong's port. He conceded this presented a "difficult decision for our government to make" because it had been heard of Russia making any threats about going to war and it hand China has enough on its hands at home without taking on any more fighting.

But Sharp said Hanoi gets 70

per cent of its supplies through Haiphong and he felt bombing the port would end the war quickly. Russell agreed with this estimate.

"I am sure the President is not ready to order the air strikes at this point," Russell said. "But he is doing a great many things today that he refused to do a year ago. I would not want to predict what he would do in the future."

Wants Channel Bombed

Russell said he thinks the channel leading to the port could be bombed into disuse because it must be dredged continually to accommodate the larger ships. He said that at least two other ports, which see little activity now, also should be knocked out to prevent diverting of shipping to them.

Russell said he doesn't agree with those who say a blockade against their shipping might bring the Soviet Union and Red China into the war.

"The Russians didn't start a war when we blockaded them around Cuba," he said. "I think the Russians work tirelessly at subversion but I don't think they are militarily aggressive at this point."

"Of course, they are going to continue to furnish North Vietnam with military equipment and supplies. But I haven't heard of Russia making any threats about going to war and it hand China has enough on its hands at home without taking on any more fighting."

The award won was during the commandship of Dunham, last year. Present at the ceremonies were William Prendergast, next to Frazier, this year's commander and Edgar M. Maurer, a past commander and chairman of the Child Welfare Committee. (Freeman photo by Kruhl).

DMZ Area Blazing

SAIGON (AP)—The battered U.S. Marine outpost at Con Thien was hit by a mistaken bombing from an American plane late Friday, killing two Marines and wounding 21, the U.S. command in Saigon disclosed.

The report of the mistaken bombing came after a fierce three-hour fight early Saturday between Marines and attacking North Vietnamese troops a mile below Con Thien, which is just south of the demilitarized zone.

SAIGON (AP)—The war just below the demilitarized zone mounted furiously today as U.S. Marine infantrymen, artillery and planes beat off an attempt by 500 North Vietnamese regulars to storm the perimeter of a Leatherneck base.

After nearly three weeks of only minor attacks, the Communists around the DMZ battered the outpost of Con Thien Friday with almost 400 artillery, rocket, mortar and recoilless rifle shells.

Tear Gas, Grenades
Early today, after another 120-round mortar barrage, the North Vietnamese attacked a Marine battalion's position south of Con Thien, using tear gas and advancing behind smoke grenades.

For the next three hours the battle raged a mile below Con Thien, with American flareships overhead to light the battlefield and spray the Communist jump-off points with fiery Gatling gun rounds.

It is rare for the North Vietnamese to use tear gas or smoke grenades, and this was evidently a well equipped unit. At dawn it broke off the fight and slipped off to the southwest, with the Marines trying to get in ahead of it.

Initial battle reports did not give enemy losses. The U.S. Command said 21 Marines were killed, and 20 wounded were taken out by helicopter, with others who were lightly wounded remaining at their posts.

In the Red shellfire Friday against Con Thien, three Marines were killed and 15 were wounded.

The Red attack emphasized that the recent slackening in Communist pressure on the Marines was only a temporary respite and not an end to the threat to the forward posts guarding the most direct route to South Vietnam's five northern provinces.

The renewal of fighting bore out a warning from the U.S.

L. Spangenberg Dies, Well-Known Downtown Barber

Lawrence J. Spangenberg Jr., one of Kingston's oldest barbers who retired several years ago, died Friday at the Kingston Hospital. He observed his 87th birthday on October 5.

Mr. Spangenberg was a native of the Rondout section of this city and resided there his entire life. As a young man, he apprenticed in the Rundle barbershop on Abel Street, where he learned his trade. Later he conducted a private barbershop in the Cornell Building at 22 Ferry Street for the Cokendall family and executives of the many industries with main offices located there. He continued in this capacity for over 50 years when the office building was closed. In those days, the downtown section of the city was the center of the city's business enterprises, which included the steamboat, railroad, bluestone, ice, boatyard ferry and city transportation companies.

Mr. Spangenberg had been active in the civic and cultural life of the community having been a patron of the musical and social functions of his time.

He was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer and of Rondout Lodge, 343, F. and A. M.

The deceased was a son of the late Lawrence and Emma Gronbach Spangenberg. His wife, the former Anna Louise Pfommer, died in 1957.

Surviving are his son, Clarence William, of Woodstock, and two brothers, Frederick J. of Kingston and Harry of Little Neck, Long Island.

Funeral services will be held from the Keyser Funeral Service, Kingston Chapel, Albany and Manor Avenues on Monday at 11:30 a. m. with the Rev. David C. Gaise in charge. Burial will be in Montrose Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Chapel Sunday from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m.

Candals Are At It Again

Vandals again struck Kingston last night, but instances were few and scattered, police disclosed this morning.

The occupants of 231 W. Chestnut Street complained to officials that a window had been cracked sometime during the night, police said. The window, authorities declared, was located in the rear of the house and appeared to have been broken with a stone.

Leon Smith of 108 Clinton Avenue told police that somebody had put salt into his auto's gas tank. Officers are investigating the incident.

An abandoned car, its owner seeking garage services, returned to find the front and rear windows completely smashed, police stated.

George R. Carlson of Merilina Avenue told officials his car broke down. He said he went to find help and when he returned the auto's windows had been pulverized by rocks.

And finally, Leslie J. Shultis, 19, of 485 Wilbur Avenue, accused of menacing and confined in jail, was charged with criminal mischief by police when he allegedly tore his cell apart.

Police said Shultis ripped the commode off the wall and smashed everything in sight. He was arrested early Friday night and accused of menacing by private citizens.

Floods Leave 64 Dead In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Sixty-four persons were reported dead and 150,000 homeless today as rivers receded around the Argentine capital after the most disastrous floods in the country's history. Officials feared that the toll of dead and missing might rise into the hundreds. They estimated damage to farms, factories and houses at more than $10 million, but some said the amount could run much higher.

Some of the homeless were lodged temporarily in military barracks, schools, sports clubs and the suburban residence of President Juan Carlos Onganía. The government began mass inoculations and appealed for food and clothing for the flood victims.

Pupils Back
HITESBORO, N.Y. (AP) — Pupils who had threatened a boycott attended classes as usual Friday at the high school in this Ulster suburb.

About 450 pupils, representing more than a third of the 1,130 enrolled, remained away from their seventh-period classes Wednesday to protest voter rejection of six proposed additions to the school district's austerity budget. Some pupils had said they would remain home Friday.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 14, 1967

Last Chance Tonight

Citizens who fail to go to the polls by 10 o'clock tonight to personally register will be unable to vote in the November 7 general election.

This is an important election from a local standpoint. Candidates to be elected on the county level are county judge, district attorney, county treasurer, coroner and county legislators. In the City of Kingston, offices to be filled are mayor, alderman-at-large, aldermen and county legislators-at-large.

These offices are of concern to all of us as they pertain to our own units of government.

Also on the ballot at the top of the voting machine is the proposed New York State Constitution, which is presented in a single package, and the $2½ billion Transportation Bond Issue.

You will not be able to vote for any of these candidates or on the proposed new state charter or bond issue unless you register by 10 o'clock tonight.

Newspaperboy Salute

Today has been designated as Newspaperboy Day in order to honor the young men who sell and deliver The Freeman and other newspapers.

Newspaperboys, as depicted in the adjoining cartoon, have, for themselves created quite an image, down through the years. An important image it is too. From their lot will come the presidents, governors, mayors, industrialists, professional men and famous athletes who will help determine the quality of our civilization in their generation. These leaders of tomorrow are learning the value of integrity, public relations, thrift and adherence to duty. The result will be men better fitted for responsibility whatever their endeavor.

Most of us pick up our daily newspaper with the least concern as to how it got to our doorstep. Today, as you enjoy the privilege of being represented by a free press, stop to consider for a moment the remarkable young man who delivers your newspaper. He could be our next governor or senator, but in any event, he'll be an outstanding citizen of the future.

Today, Newspaperboy Day, let us salute these young men—the biggest little businessmen in the world.

Highway Fund Slash

The threat of a slash in allocations of highway funds to the states, probably effective by Nov. 1, has just been delivered by Transportation Secretary Alan S. Boyd to the Governors of the 50 states. Halting or slowing highway work would have an immediate effect in slowing the economy and reducing the inflation, but it will have no effect on spending in the regular budget.

The point is that highway funds are paid out of a special trust fund earmarked only for roads and entirely financed by special user taxes on trucks and automobiles. Reducing highway construction does not cut the general spending which would reduce the huge budget deficit asked by the House Ways and Means Committee before it will pass the proposed 10 per cent surtax for House action.

An earlier order, halting big new commitments by Government agencies for construction and other major projects, had been taken by members of Congress, not as an economy measure, but as pressure to move the surtax forward or lose politically motivated "pork barrel" projects. The possible freeze on highway construction is regarded in the same manner.

Governors, aware that highway funds do not come from the Treasury but from user taxes, were outraged by the threat of postponing new work. Most have planned their state economies around the highway work. They see a stop as damaging to their state as well as halting road progress. It is a poor way to save money when the money held back does not count against the income taxes that are to be raised.

By refusing to reconsider its 5 to 4 vote convicting the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King and seven other clergymen of contempt of court for leading a segregation demonstration banned by court order, the Supreme Court left it to an Alabama court to deal with the offenders. They may be jailed for 5 days and fined $50 each, the sentences originally passed on them.

An infant death rate last year of 23.4 per 1,000 was an all-time low in this country. Lowest rates were recorded in Utah with 19.3, Massachusetts 20.2 and Minnesota 20.7. Of the 3.629 million babies born live in the United States last year, all but 84,800 survived.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Surprising Baseball Changes Noted

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
ST. LOUIS — This World Series city, scene of the red-hot Red Sox after 21 years, is an all-out baseball town. But surprising changes have occurred in the innards of the marvelous game since Boston's last invasion.

This season millions thrilled at Boston wonder-batter Carl Yastrzemski's fantastic ability to come through and deliver the goods in the pinches, which is the payoff. But, hitting .326 for the season, Yast is a limper by the old averages. That's now typical of today's batting stars.

Detroit Tiger Ty Cobb, the immortal miracle man in the hard art of "hitting 'em where they ain't," ran up a lifetime average throughout 24 years in big league baseball of .367. In 1911 Cobb came within two percentage points of breaking the one-season record. Napoleon Lajoie of the Philadelphia Athletics teed off modern baseball by hitting .422 in 1901. Quick-witted, left-handed George Sisler of the old St. Louis Browns exactly tied Cobb at .420 in 1922, likewise missing the record. Then Rogers Hornsby, playing for the Cardinals here, turned the trick at .424 in 1924, a season high mark still unbroken.

Many big leaguers will tell you there are two chief reasons for the fall-off. Today's super-concentration on banging home runs, which is what the public wants to see, is their No. 1 explanation. As former Pittsburgh Pirate

Ralph Kiner once said: "Singles hitters ride in Fords; home-run hitters ride in Cadillacs." Teams as a whole hit many more home runs each season now.

The ball has not been bettered, contrary to popular impression. A. G. Spalding & Co., which makes all balls for both leagues (the American's under the trade-name "Reach" is the same ball), officially confirms this. The bats have changed greatly. Babe Ruth used a 44-ounce bat, as did most other sluggers. Today's bats range around 32 ounces, and pack more whip, which is a home-run factor. But, although team records for homers have climbed, the individual high mark has been slow to budge.

Babe Ruth, bless his heart, hit 59 in 1921. The great man broke his own record with 60 in 1927, one of the most memorable years in baseball. Ruth's mark stood for 34 years. Roger Maris (in a long, 162-game season) finally topped it in 1961 by one only.

Meanwhile, perhaps all of us might remember this in a discouraging moment: while Babe Ruth was making his 714 home-run record he struck out 1,330 times. And pitcher Cy Young, famous for the 511 games he won, lost almost as many.

The second explanation for the season-hit fall-off seems to be that the circuits' teams formerly traveled with seven or eight pitchers. They now carry 10 or more. Flailing pitchers are pulled out faster and this increased switching has reduced the hits.

American League atten-

dance was affected for years on end by the peerless New York Yankees. These perennial champions usually had the pennant sewed up by about the Fourth of July. The rest of the season was a walk-in. National League races have been cliff-hangers annually since the late '40s, like the American's this season, and this has given the senior circuit teams a larger percentage in diamond history while the Yankees, in turn, have been diving toward the cellar in non-wins.

The New York Mets, who, instead of starving to death, not only filled an old stadium but filled a beautiful new one with probably the consistently worst teams in baseball history, have apparently been overtaken at last by the demand for good performance years later than expected. Still clinging tenaciously to the bottom rung, Mets attendance was off 367,000 this season, which proves that cynics who habitually say "I told you so" can ultimately be right if enough years pass to prove their unpleasant point.

Finally, here's a curious thing: the only other major country where our great game has really caught on is Japan. The entire Japanese nation is baseball crazy. Leagues thrive and so do the agile players. Jap southpaw pitcher Masamori Murakami, successful with the San Francisco Giants, was so hot over there that his former Nippon club threatened to sue when the Giants wouldn't tear up Murakami's contract and let him return to baseball-frenzied Japan where nearly every big city is a St. Louis.

Congress Only Talks About Cuts in Spending

By WILLIAM J. EATON
CHICAGO Daily News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Congress is talking a lot about economy but when it comes to making real cuts in spending the votes are just not there.

President Johnson, who is hinting a reduction for public works, highways and other politically sensitive areas, has reproduced the anticipated blacklist from governors and key lawmakers.

Senate and House actions tended to dramatize his contention that multi-billion dollar cutbacks are not likely and his embattled 10 per cent surtax proposal will be needed to slow an inflationary spiral.

Meantime, faint support for Mr. Johnson's unpopular tax increase became visible on Capitol Hill. There was no sign of an end to the deadlock that has bottled up his tax bill, however.

Walter W. Heller, former chief economic adviser at the White House, urged the President to try harder to convince the American people that higher taxes are needed to stave off higher prices and higher interest rates.

Heller also advocated a "bargain" between Mr. Johnson and Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee on a spending reduction plan to save the tax bill from almost certain defeat this year.

"This economy is just going to bubble over the top without a surtax," said Heller, who described himself an unpaid lobbyist. "I don't think there's much more to lose... the administration is crying 'wolf' but the wolf is already sniffing at the door."

Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) also backed higher taxes if combined with a requirement that the administration impound 3 per cent of all money Congress appropriates for the year that began last July 1. This fund, which would amount to $8 billion, could be used if the President notified Congress that it was essential to the national interest to do so.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton (D-N.Y.) said his mail was running heavily against a tax increase but he told his constituents that budget-cutting is harder than it sounds.

"The jockeying that has been going on is just an effort to switch the blame for such cuts from the back of Congress to the President, or vice versa," Stratton noted.

The Senate and the House underscored this view yesterday. The Senate overwhelmingly approved a $4.77 billion public works measure—known widely as a pork barrel bill—after rejecting efforts to cut a total of $308,000,000 (M). The sum finally voted was $97,000,000 (M) more than Mr. Johnson asked.

The House made a show of economy by demanding that the Senate retreat on three changes in Agriculture Department appropriations that would add $1.57 billion to the measure over the House-approved total of $4.95 billion.

But $1.5 billion of the difference between the two versions involved a dispute over bookkeeping methods for the Commodity Credit Corp. and would not reduce actual spending.

And Rep. Hugh Carey (D-N.Y.) demanded to know why the House economy forces did not cut $135,000 for a genetic stock center for bees and $150,000 for a tobacco research laboratory, both included in the measure.

The House later took up a $1.2 billion pay raise for federal workers—far above the President's request. It is expected to be approved today, basically intact.

Earlier, Defense Sec. Robert S. McNamara was scolded by the House Armed Services Committee. Its members accused him of trying to needle Congress into passage of the tax increase by imposing a 30-day freeze on military construction. McNamara said Congress had made the move necessary because its economy drive made it uncertain how much money would be available.

Cries of outrage from state capitals greeted a hint from Transportation Sec. Alan S. Boyd that about $2.2 billion of federal highway funds may be cut in response to pressures for spending reductions by Congress. This was denounced as "arm-twisting" and "part of an angry President's plot" to build support for the beleaguered tax bill.

Drew Pearson Says U.S. Faces Many Years Of Vietnam Occupation

WASHINGTON — Behind the rosy Vietnam communiques, the blunt truth is that the South Vietnamese army simply is incapable of holding and pacifying the countryside which the Americans have won from the Viet Cong.

This means U. S. forces will not be able to leave South Vietnam and turn the defense of the country over to the home troops as they did in South Korea following the Korean War. For years to come, American troops will not be able to withdraw from South Vietnam without inviting the Viet Cong to take over.

No less than Secretary of Defense McNamara has admitted privately that the South Vietnamese army does not compare with the South Korean army. If the Americans should pull out of Vietnam following a peace agreement, the South Vietnamese army would not be able to prevent the Viet Cong from moving right back into the positions they occupied before the first American combat troops arrived.

This is one reason for the private pessimism of many top officials regarding the ultimate end of the war. U. S. military men blame the French for the South Vietnamese army's incompetence. The French failed to build up a qualified Vietnamese officer's corps, so that today it is drastically short of capable leaders. Many of its officers were commissioned more because of whom they knew than what they knew. They also have an appalling record for corruption. Personal greed comes before patriotic duty.

Yet neither the French nor the Vietnamese are fully to blame. After all, the United States has been advising, training and equipping the South Vietnamese army for more than 12 years. One problem is that the American advisers taught the South Vietnamese the wrong tactics, namely the outdated warfare of World War II.

No Guerrilla Training
The Vietnamese themselves wanted counter-insurgency training and suggested establishing para-military units based on the home grounds they knew best. But only a few para-military outfits were trained by the Green Berets.

The bulk of the South Vietnamese army was drilled in conventional tactics to hold off a Korean-style invasion, which never materialized. The military lessons, which many of the Vietnamese learned well, turned out to be the wrong lessons.

Result: The Viet Cong's style of guerrilla warfare, not unlike that used by our own forefathers to wrest independence from the British, often confounded those who fought by the book. Not until the Viet Cong abandoned their tested guerrilla tactics and began massing for conventional battles and alienating the populace by conscription and taxation, did they start losing. Their battalions, gathered in jungle bivouacs, unable to disperse among the people, were caught by our spoiling attacks. Disaffected peasants also began passing along intelligence that enabled us to beat the guerrillas at their own game and catch them by surprise.

Gen. William Westmoreland, the American commander, has done a masterful job of fathoming and thwarting Viet Cong tactics. Now the Viet Cong are reverting to their original guerrilla methods. Westmoreland's men have been quick to adjust, but not the South Vietnamese. They have applied the wrong lessons learned from their American advisers.

Belatedly, the U. S. Army tacitly acknowledged its mistakes and has started to retrain the South Vietnamese army in the counter-insurgency tactics the Vietnamese wanted 12 years ago.

Goldwater Comeback
Barry Goldwater, seeking to dig his way out from under the 1964 Presidential landslide, is trying hard to get back in the Senate. And Arizona's private industry is helping him.

Although industry cannot legally engage in partisan political activity, there are many loopholes, and Goldwater is using them skillfully.

For instance, he spoke the other day to more than 50 key employees of Motorola at a private dinner in the posh, new Catamaran Restaurant in Scottsdale. The Motorola people invoking the technicality that they contribute to the company's employee newspapers, invited Goldwater under the guise of the "Motorola Press Club."

Note: Goldwater is hoping to win the seat now occupied by Arizona's ancient Sen. Carl Hayden. Ironically, Barry's speech centered on the state's need for water. He boosted the proposed Central Arizona Project, which will give the state more water by damming up rivers that run into Mexico. At the same time Hayden used his powerful influence in the Senate to force an agreement that the Central Arizona Project will be brought to a vote early next year.

Headlines and Footnotes

The Navy would like to muscle in on the new anti-ballistic missile system. The admirals have argued behind closed Pentagon doors that the missiles would be more effective against oncoming warheads if they were launched far out at sea. Then the warheads could be destroyed, theoretically at least, long before they came near the U. S. mainland. Congress will soon pass a bill to protect its own members from violence on Capitol Hill, by barring weapons and demonstrations on the Capitol grounds. However, another bill to protect the general public from violence, the gun control bill barring mail order weapons, is still tied up in the House Judiciary Committee. Reason is that the powerful National Rifle Association lobby opposes the gun control bill. Government inspectors have warned soap-makers that they must comply with the new labeling law and print warnings on labels if their detergents contain strong substances that might irritate the eyes or skin.

Rocky Is Riled by Reports He Switched Viet Position

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA

Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller is said by intimates to be furious at the man he blames for published reports that he is moderating his long-held hawkish stance in support of President Johnson's Vietnam policy.

The man is Emmet J. Hughes, magazine columnist and former adviser to President Eisenhower and to the governor himself.

The report is that Hughes, an outspoken dove, submitted a position paper to Rockefeller, urging him to shift toward middle ground on Vietnam. The governor says flatly to friends that he rejected it.

Whatever others may say about the matter, the governor is sternly convinced that Hughes then tried to "lever" him by passing word that his outlook on the war was undergoing a change.

The governor is sufficiently vehement on the subject so that one of his entourage now brands Hughes' alleged maneuvering a "perfidious act."

Both privately and publicly, Rockefeller is insisting that he has not altered his fundamental position. Sitting nearby when an aide took a telephone call on the issue, the governor shouted encouragement when the man said "no change" several times. His simplest public comment, uttered on an upstate tour, was: "Not true."

Again and again on the tour, he declared: "When I change, I'll tell you."

Yet many Republican figures, including New York City Mayor John Lindsay and New York's Sen. Jacob Javits, believe the governor HAS taken up a more flexible Vietnam stance and, at the very least, will stop commending the President's policies.

One leader says the governor's effort is "to move to the middle without getting caught." It is hard to see how Rockefeller can bring this off, what with assorted chroniclers poking into his private utterances on the subject.

Some think they find signs of change even in his denials of change. An example from his recent tour:

"I have not said anything about Vietnam and I am not going to, except to share the hope of the American people that an honorable settlement can be reached."

The phrases "honorable settlement," "achievement of peace," and "quest for peace" do crop up frequently in his current comment. Doves types and realists eager to move the GOP in the direction they think public sentiment is trending (disenchantment with the war) seize hopefully on these Rockefeller words.

In the context of an obviously intensifying effort to move the Republican party center-ward on the Vietnam issue, provable change in Rockefeller's attitudes would be widely read as a development intended to heighten his utility as a possible moderate fall-back candidate in the 1968 presidential race.

Skeptics may say that the governor's evident indignation at reports of change is merely the annoyance of a politician caught switching.

But observers who have queried such staunch friends of Rockefeller as Gov. John Chaffee of Rhode Island (now a Romney backer) say they find the New Yorker standing fast. And, contrary to some accounts, he is still publicly urging Americans to support the President.

Rockefeller has no present intention of making a major, detailed restatement of his Vietnam position. He is tending off attempts to draw him out. Relative silence has been his posture for a long time, on the theory that "outsiders" lack the information needed to develop specifics on Vietnam.

He did not always see it this way. On April 27, 1964, during the Oregon primary, he issued a 3,000-word Vietnam policy statement (it was a year before our heavy entry into the war), calling for South Vietnamese bombing of Red supply routes in Laos and North Vietnam, for South Vietnamese "hot pursuit" of Viet Cong guerrillas into sanctuaries in those two countries and Cambodia, for warnings to these lands to close out the sanctuaries, for an end to U. S. military adviser withdrawals until a better situation justified the action. The governor even blamed administration approval of a neutral Laotian government as helping to demoralize South Vietnam.

Plainly, any imaginable center-ward shift by Rockefeller might need to travel a good deal farther than just "away from President Johnson's policies."

Editor, The Freeman:

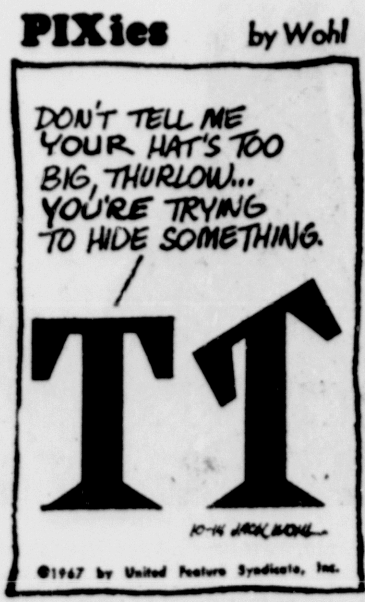

In the early 50's aid began to be given to the French in their futile fight against the Vietnamese. In 1954 Dien was selected to rule over the part of Vietnam still under French occupation.

Dien was a dictator. To keep him in power an army was needed; this required more aid. In addition "technical advisors" were sent. The method of brute force used by Dien only served to increase his unpopularity; but since he was unpopular no other course of action would keep him in power.

Increasing unpopularity demanded an increased armed force which in turn required still more aid. An increasing number of "technical advisors" were also sent.

The results of this policy are known. In 1961 most countries in South America enjoyed some form of parliamentary democracy. Then came the "Alliance For Progress", sometimes described as an alliance between one millionaire and twenty beggars. Today most countries in South America are run by dictators.

Will we see many Vietnams in South America by 1970? Sincerely,
Ronald Sobieraj

Arab Terrorists Could Rekindle Mid-East War

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The "old war" has erupted again in Israel—sabotage and terrorism. But this time the Arab raiders are packing a harder punch.

El Fatah-phantom—terrorists are again working behind Israeli lines in the occupied west bank. They are better armed and more efficient than the Egyptian and Syrian raiders who terrorized Israeli border settlements for 19 years.

Jews Want Revenge
The campaign of sabotage in which eight Israelis including a 3-year-old boy, have been killed and 33 wounded since the June 5 war has dampened the flush of victory here. The Israelis are clamoring for revenge.

Although the authorities claim they have broken the back of the El Fatah campaign by rounding up 200 Arabs and seizing large arms caches, the raiders are far from crushed.

They answered the Israelis by striking into Jerusalem, dynamiting a U.N. cease-fire supervision mission radio and planting a bomb in a movie house packed with 800 people. It was found only 20 minutes before it was timed to explode.

A guerrilla war in the occupied west bank is not being ruled out. El Fatah groups are still hiding in the craggy Judean hills and more are sneaking across the low-water Jordan River by night.

Find Red Arms
Soviet machine guns, Syrian army bazookas and Chinese mortars have been found. Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

Lived on Slimy Water, Prayer

By LARRY DUM
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An elderly Mormon couple survived six days and nights without food in south Utah's vast and desolate Last Chance Canyon country.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lloyd lived on slimy, brackish creek water and, Lloyd said, "constant prayer."

Began Oct. 6
"We're resurrected," the old man muttered as he was helped from the rescue plane which brought them to Salt Lake City Friday night.

The ordeal began Oct. 6 when Lloyd, 75, and his wife, 73, decided on a trip to the Red Rock Desert wilderness area. He had two extra days off from his job as an elementary school crossing guard.

Lloyd said a wrong turn led them down the Last Chance Canyon trail to a point where they couldn't turn the car around. While continuing downward, he said, the car slammed into a "washout" in the road. Mrs. Lloyd hit the dashboard, gashing her nose and blinding both eyes.

They managed to get the car out, only to slide into a creek bed farther down, Lloyd said he didn't want to try to walk out because of his wife's arthritis, so he spent most of last Saturday with a hammer and screwdriver until his hands were raw from breaking up the sandstone boulder that was jammed under the vehicle.

Abandoned Car
They finally abandoned the car late Saturday and decided to stick to the dry creek bed, which provided an occasional pool of water here and there, rather than try for the rugged plateau above.

The first two days, Lloyd told relatives, the water wasn't too bad. But the farther they traveled, the more brackish it became. "But we drank as much as we could hold," he said. "That kept us alive."

Nightly, Lloyd said, they built a fire, rationing the few matches he had. By Tuesday, when the search for them was in full swing, he first sighted a search aircraft, but the pilot didn't see them. He told relatives he saw planes on several occasions.

Faith Carried Them

"We could have made it maybe one more day," he told non-in-law Harold Stevens. "Our faith was all that carried us on. We prayed all the time."

Fish and Game Warden John Kimball of Kanab, Utah, found them wandering along the creek bed Friday, more than 30 miles from the nearest populated area.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said weather on the Kaiparowits Plateau above was between 50 and 80 degrees all week. Outside of Alaska, that plateau has been described as the largest unexplored region in the United States.

Bruce Lloyd, a Salt Lake City pathologist, took them home.

After they arrived in Salt Lake City, the couple refused to be hospitalized. Their son, Dr. haustion and the injuries suffered during the trek.

State Taxes Are Rising, Spreading

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
Associated Press Writer

State taxes, like rivers in flood season, are rising and spreading. The heavy legislative year, over in all but a few states, left less ground where citizens could find refuge from taxes.

Levies are in effect on:

- Cigarettes in 49 states, all but North Carolina.
- Sales in 44.
- Corporate income in 40.
- Personal income in 38.
- Gasoline in all.

Cites Survey

An Associated Press survey shows legislatures went in more for increasing old taxes than finding new sources of revenue.

Take, for instance, California. The legislators approved a $1-billion tax program, the biggest tax increase in the state's history. It included boosts in income sales, cigarette, liquor, banks, corporation and inheritance taxes. But about $115 million was set aside for property tax relief in 1968-69.

Three states entered the income tax field.

Michigan's Legislature adopted a package that included, for the first time in that state, income taxes on individuals, corporations and financial institutions. The personal income tax rate is 2.6 per cent. It is expected to bring in about $240 million a year. The 5.6 per cent corporate income tax, which replaced a complicated tax on business, is expected to produce $46 million next year, and the 7 per cent income tax on financial institutions is calculated to yield $2 million.

Another Newcomer

Nebraska, another newcomer in that area, enacted a corporate and personal income tax. The rates, set by the state Board of Equalization, are 10 cents a gallon in Hawaii.

per cent of the federal tax on personal income and 2 per cent of a corporation's taxable income.

Nine states increased sales taxes. The range of such taxes is 2 per cent to 5 per cent. The only states that do not tax sales are Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire, Oregon and Vermont.

Eight states boosted cigarette taxes, half of them— Iowa, California, Alabama and Maine— jacking them up to 10 cents. But they're still a cent below the 11 cents collected in New Jersey, Texas and Washington.

In the eighth state, Pennsylvania, the cigarette tax will go to 13 cents a package, highest in the nation. Monday when the governor is expected to sign the new law.

Eight legislatures increased state taxes on gasoline. The spread is from 5 cents up to 11 cents a gallon in Hawaii.

Miss Wilber Engaged

MISS DARLENE WILBER
(Reynolds Studio)

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Wilber, 25 Lafayette Avenue, Kingston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Darlene, to David J. Teague, 135 Prospect Street, Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Teague, 13 Overlook Drive, Woodstock.

Miss Wilber is a graduate of Kingston High School and is employed by Piccadilly Restaurant, 592 Broadway, Kingston.

Her fiancé attended Onteora Central School, served in the U. S. Air Force, and is employed by Kingston Coal and Oil Company.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

As a manufacturer of corduroy, I would like to give your housewives some tips on how to wash this material.

We always suggest that you turn the garment inside out before washing or drying it! This way it can be washed either by machine or by hand. Because in the washing process you are buffing the naps against each other which makes for cleaner corduroy.

If it must be pressed, always press on the wrong side. We recommend using a steam iron. This must be done lightly and quickly. And the reason is that the nap should not collect too much steam.

If any corduroy garment has lining, dry cleaning is recommended — either professional or by coin-operated dry cleaning machines.

The reason for this is that manufacturers of corduroy do not know what kind of lining is used. Sometimes the lining in garments will shrink (especially if it's an inexpensive cotton), so I urge you to pass on these small hints to your readers.

Corduroy Manufacturer

Sir, I don't have to tell them. You just did. And you put it in plain words that we all can understand. We bless you and thank you.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

As a bachelor, I find your column especially helpful to my primary aim in life, that aim being to remain single.

Roy Sieg

Dear Heloise:

If you are on a low-fat diet, but like gravy on your potatoes, add ice cubes to the drippings left in the pan the meat was cooked in. When the fat solidifies, just lift it and the excess ice cubes out with a slotted spoon and continue to make gravy the usual way.

Sure beats waiting until the next day when the leftovers are served to have your gravy.

Marilyn Falls

Dear Heloise:

I saw a lot for my girls and find that the easiest way to make appliques is to iron a piece of iron-on-tape to the back of the fabric to be used. Then cut out the figure or design desired and sew it in place using an applique stitch.

The result will be a very neat job — no frayed or stretched edges.

Receipts from the concert, sponsored by the Saugerties Organ Fund Committee, will be utilized to help pay the balance still owed on the Rogers Organ installed in the school auditorium nearly two years ago.

Tickets are being sold by pupils of Saugerties Junior High School, and school music groups. They may also be purchased at the door that evening.

The Organ Fund Committee invites one and all to enjoy a wonderful evening of music, and at the same time assist in an effort to keep this fine musical facility in the community.

Doing the Right Thing

BY ELIZABETH L. POST of the Emily Post Institute
MAY YOUR GIRL VISIT
BOY FRIEND'S MOTHER?

Dear Mrs. Post: I am 17 years old and have graduated from high school. My boy friend, who is 19, is in the Air Force and is now serving in Vietnam. I have talked to his mother very often and have visited her. Today she asked me to spend a weekend with her since she's alone. I asked my mother and she harshly said, "No, indeed." She told me it would appear that I am "chasing" the mother. I do not feel I'm chasing anyone. I like his mother very much and I enjoy being with her. If I'm wrong and my mother is right, please let me know. Also, please print this letter for those who may have similar problems.

Carla

Dear Carla: Unless your mother expressly forbids it, go and spend the weekend with your boy friend's mother. Why in the world your mother should object (could she be jealous?) I don't know. If you and the other lady enjoy each other, and you can help to dispel her loneliness, I am one hundred percent on your side.

"The Groom's Cake"

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been to, and read about, wedding receptions where both a bride's cake and a groom's cake were served. Who cuts the groom's cake? Is it served with coffee, or given to guests in keepsake boxes?—Kathryn S.

Dear Kathryn: A groom's cake (almost always a rich fruit cake) is rarely seen today, and when it is, it is almost invariably put up in small white boxes to be given as a keepsake to the guests. If for any reason this is not done, the groom's cake is cut without ceremony by the caterer or anyone assisting at the wedding, and given to the guests to eat or take home as they wish.

Trailways Takes Exception to Charge

Ray Reiley, general superintendent of Adirondack Trailways, today took exception to a Public Safety Council charge that policemen were over-protecting his business.

Reiley said, "The patrolmen seen around Kingston's bus terminal are off-duty officers and paid for their time. Roughly $4,000 was spent last year employing three such policemen."

Reiley explained the patrolmen were hired on weekends and special holidays. He declared they were paid on an hourly basis and alternated their shifts.

Wednesday the Safety Council met in the Common Council Chambers and admonished police for over-protecting some areas. Trailways was used as an example of over-protection. The council contended police should spend more time patrolling the city.

"A MAN FOR ALL SEASONS"

Wilde's Hilarious 'Earnest' Is Warmly Received on Cool Night

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Opening night, enthusiastic audience, hilarious entertainment, Oscar Wilde's classic, "The Importance of Being Earnest," left nothing to be desired last night at the Woodstock Playhouse where the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre presented the second production of their premiere season.

Wilde involves us immediately in the hysterical world of Jack Worthing, alias Earnest, who is declared ineligible for his Gwendolyn's hand in marriage for alas the only parent Jack can claim is, believe it or not, a large black hand-bag, where he had been found as an infant in a railway station.

After the devastating scene with Lady Bracknell, Gwendolyn's mother, Jack escapes to his country home where he can truly relax and be "himself," for in the city he is "Earnest," man-about-town and in the country Jack is "Jack" or is it the other way round? Like a dragon, Lady Bracknell has breathed fire and smoke on his wedding plans. With each new entrance, the possibility of Jack's disentanglement from such a complicated mess seems to recede more and more.

Jack Worthing is played with suavity, and restrained panic, by William Metzow whose enunciation and delivery of some rather "wordy" phrases was a delight to this reviewer. Charles Seals plays Algernon, the tactless prankster, with smooth perfection. Their young ladies are played by Jane Lloyd-Jones whose interpretation of the sophisticated Gwendolyn is performed with professional ease, and Diane Hall, as Cecily, is refreshingly alive with life. The governess and the Reverend, played by Martha and Fred Miller, add the "whipped cream" to the production, as does Virginia Downing as Lady Bracknell, whose presence on stage commands an attentive audience at every moment. Christopher Kelly and Alex Osina as servants added comedy dimensions with their stoic lack of expression.

The complete production moved with the polished ease of a group who had constantly worked together and would even be able to anticipate their fellow actors' "ad libs" if the occasion arose.

The exceptional sets and Victorian period costumes are credited to Harold Balridge, artistic director.

M. Edgar Rosenblum, executive director of Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, wants his own "curtain call" for bringing such professional talent and high calibre production to this area.

"Earnest" will run through October 22. Information and reservations may be made by calling the Woodstock Playhouse.

Incidentally, the first-nighters who braved the 46 degree temperature appreciated the recent installation of a heating unit which makes it unnecessary for theatre-goers to "rough it" while enjoying HVRT fall productions.

The firing of Perry Smith, the Yankees' vice-president for televising of games (they have a veeep to suit every function and occasion) was just another step in the eventual take over of the whole baseball operation, top to bottom, by CBS personnel. Look for more to go. . . .

Plug for bachelorhood: there were only three single men on the Boston Red Sox this season — Jim Lonborg, George Scott and Tony Conigliaro. Add Carl Yastrzemski (blissfully married), and you've got the guts of the Red Sox. . . .

Memory bit: back in 1955, Stan Musial hit a 12th inning home run to win the All-Star Game for the National League in Milwaukee. He flew into New York with his Cardinal roomie, Red Schoendienst. Ty Cobb was in the Big City and called Fred Corcoran, Musial's agent, saying, "I would like to meet that boy." They arranged breakfast. Cobb looked at Stan and said, "You hit a curve ball yesterday." Musial nodded. Cobb turned to Corcoran and said, "You know, this is the greatest all around ballplayer I've ever seen." Fred spun and shook Schoendienst, who'd dozed off. "You hear what he said?" asked Corcoran. . . . "I heard him saying something about the greatest player," said Red drowsily, "but I knew he wasn't talking about me." . . .

RED SCHOENDIENST

After Elston Howard laid down a bunt in the second game of the World Series, the 38-year-old catcher noted, "That's the first time in Series history (more than 50 games) I bunted. You got to do a lot of things when you get old." . . .

Prominent around Series gatherings was Judge Bob Cannon of Milwaukee, who used to be the representative of the Players Association. The judge is now plugging for a major league team in Milwaukee, preferably through expansion, and vitally interested in Charley Finley's plans to move the Kansas City Athletics. Not because they'd move to Milwaukee but because it would pave the route for adding two more teams to the American League. Kansas City would get one. "I hope," said Judge Cannon, "he goes to Oakland, with its new stadium. Then we'd have a better chance to get the other franchise, over Seattle." . . .

Sometimes you need an interpreter to understand football coaches. Don Shula of Baltimore, in a game post mortem said, "Bobby Boyd felt ouchy, but we had a lot of guys who sucked it up." Translation: Boyd was playing with a slight injury; the Colts performed staunchly in the clutch. . . .

Buzz around pro football veterans is why Lou Groza keeps playing and leaves himself open to being in Cleveland's kicking in history needs the dough. . . .

Recognize the names Stydahr and Kimbrough? Dave Stydahr is a tackle (just like dad, Jumbo Jim) was playing a key role on the offensive line of unbeaten Purdue. John Kimbrough's also a tackle, on defensive for SMU (though his pop, the original Jarring John, played fullback at Texas AAM) . . . The fathers are both Hall-of-Famers. . . .

Between you 'n' me, Don Klosterman's deal to get quarterback Pete Beathard from Kansas City for Ernie Ladd, Jackie Lee and a No. 1 draft choice was initiated by a casual talk with Chief coach Hank Stram. The Houston general manager had originally signed Pete for the Chiefs when he was their talent scout. The price might sound stiff, but on the other hand Pete's salary isn't as big as Ladd's — in fact, he doesn't make more than Lee. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Chiefs Aid Defense With Ladd's Purchase

Associated Press Sports Writer

If Hank Stram's trade theories are correct, San Diego quarterback John Hadl will spend much of Sunday afternoon with 292 pounds of Ernie Ladd or 287 pounds of Buck Buchanan firmly attached to him.

Stram bolstered the defensive line of the AFL's defending champion Kansas City Chiefs by obtaining Ladd from Houston for substitute quarterback Pete Beathard.

It was, Stram said, "the most significant trade in the Chiefs' eight-year history. Ladd will solidify our defensive line. Pro football is such a game of excellence in execution that you will lose if you fail, by even a fraction of a second in rushing the quarterback."

Thus, Ladd's duties have been clearly defined. Rush the quarterback. How well he and Buchanan, Kansas City's other defensive tackle, succeeded may go a long way in determining if the Chiefs can overtake the unbeaten Chargers in the league's Western Division. Kansas City is 3-1.

In other AFL games Sunday Houston plays at New York.

By CHARLIE BAROUH
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst played his cards right and became The Associated Press' National League Manager of the Year.

The soft spoken manager teamed up with his former roommate, Stan Musial, and their St. Louis Cardinals ran away with the National League pennant and beat the Boston Red Sox in the seven-game 1967 World Series. The Cardinals won 101 games during the season.

Schoendienst went to spring training hoping his Cardinals had enough to win the pennant. He was certain they could move up from their sixth-place finish in 1966. The Cardinals finished seventh in Red's first year as a manager, 1965.

"We knew we had pretty good talent and we had a chance to move up," Schoendienst said, smiling at the news that he had won the award. "We had good pitching, and we were sure we would score more runs than last year," he said. "I had a fine ball club."

Mike Shannon's conversion from the outfield to third base played a big part in the Cardinals' success, Red said.

"It was important for more than one reason," Schoendienst pointed out. "He doesn't look like a good hitter sometimes, but he gets the job done."

"And we needed a third baseman. He gave us the opportunity to use Roger Maris. And if he didn't make the move I wouldn't have been able to use young players like Bobby Tolman, Alex Johnson and Ed Spezio."

Shannon often said Schoendienst's confidence in his ability to play third was important to him. And Orlando Cepeda praised Schoendienst because "he treats us like men, like human beings."

All the Cardinals say Schoendienst is a master at treating his ball players with respect. Schoendienst' only comment is that's the kind of guy he is.

Palmer, Thomson In Golf Finals

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Arnold Palmer moved into the final of the Piccadilly World Match Play golf championship against Peter Thomson of Australia today, carrying with him some knowledge he picked up in his pop's pro shop a long time ago.

The 37-year-old Latrobe, Pa., master recovered his brilliant putting touch Friday to defeat Bill Casper, 3 and 2, while Thomson eliminated defending champion Gary Player of South Africa, 2 and 1.

Palmer, unmatched from tee to green, was 10 under par for the 36 holes he had to play, and all 10 shots could be found in his putter. He had just 58 putts, which is precisely 10 under perfect figures.

Why?

"Well, I did make an adjustment," Palmer explained. "I changed the grip of my putter a little. I built it up from the back to give me more club in my hand."

He worked on the club himself, employing the knowledge he learned many years ago from his father, and still uses like any simple club professional when he is dissatisfied.

Palmer was pleased with the results.

"I really did put better," he said. And the figures certainly showed it.

He canned putts from three feet to 30 feet in a burst of four straight threes which just about crushed Casper.

Boice Sets School Mark

Gary Boice established a record and the Kingston High cross country team captured its 16th straight dual meet, 19-43, Friday over Port Jervis at the 2.2 Dietz Stadium course.

In heating Port's Steve Keyes by four seconds, Boice was timed in 10:54, shattering the record of 10:58, set in 1963 by Dave Ennis, now running at Brown University. Keyes' time of 10:58 tied Ennis' mark.

Coach John Gilligan's harriers clinched the DUSO dual meet title with the victory. As usual, balance was the keynote.

Boice, who has finished first in every meet this season, ran neck and neck with Keyes from start to finish.

Behind the leaders came five KHS runners — Bill Brimmer, Jim (Digger) Gilpatrick, Gary Flowers, Wayne Sickler and Bob Burger.

The KHS squad has a pair of dual meets next week. Kingston is at Roosevelt on Tuesday and hosts powerful Red Hook Friday at Dietz Stadium.

Lindell Paces Army Triumph

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Army quarterback Steve Lindell still has his ulcer today, but he and the Cadets have produced a preventive for the same affliction for their coach, Tom Cahill.

Lindell, who sat out the first two games of the football season because of the illness, shook off a first-quarter flare-up of the ulcer, as well as an injured ankle, and led the Cadets to a 24-6 victory over Southern Methodist Friday night.

The 21-year-old junior from Princeton, Minn., missed the first pass he threw on the second scrimmage play of the game, then completed seven in a row and had 10 completions in 13 tries in the first half.

Colts, Rams Collide In Top NFL Contest

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Colts risk their perfect National Football League record against Los Angeles' rebounding Rams Sunday while New Orleans, Atlanta and Minnesota, seeking to end early-season tailspins, face uphill battles against formidable foes.

Baltimore, only unbeaten, tied club in the NFL, goes after its fifth victory against the visiting Rams, who must bounce all the way back from a 27-24 upset loss to San Francisco last week if they are to stay within reach of the Colts in the Coastal Division race.

The New Orleans Saints, trying to nail their initial NFL victory after four losses, march into Dallas, where the powerful Cowboys will be a strong favorite despite the absence of injured quarterback Don Meredith.

Atlanta, winless in four starts, entertains the explosive Washington Redskins and Minnesota, also 0-4, tackles Green Bay's defending world champs at Milwaukee, Wis.

St. Louis is at Cleveland, San Francisco at Philadelphia, New York at Pittsburgh and Detroit at Chicago in other Sunday games.

The Rams, 3-1, should be hard-pressed trying to contain Baltimore's Johnny Unitas, who triggers the NFL's most potent passing attack. The Colts must contend with the league's best defensive unit against rushing and running force, led by Dick Bass and Les Josephson, that also tops the circuit.

Craig Morton is expected to start for Dallas, 3-1, in place of Meredith, who reinjured his ribs in last week's 17-14 victory over Washington. The Saints also lost an offensive weapon when rookie John Gilliam, their top pass receiver, suffered a broken finger.

Charlie Taylor, the Redskins' healthy pass-catching sensation — 25 catches in four games — poses the chief threat to Atlanta's struggling Falcons. Washington has split four decisions.

Minnesota, faces a bruising defense that has helped the Packers overcome early offensive shortcomings and a series of injuries to quarterback Bart Starr. The Packers, 3-0-1, lead the Central Division.

St. Louis has reeled off three straight victories — the last two with second half rallies — to grab the Century Division lead with a 3-1 mark. Rookie quarterback Jim Hart has given the Cardinals' surprising offensive punch, but the Browns, 2-2, are slight favorites at home.

Kickers Entertain Yonkers On Sunday

First place in the League division of the German-American Soccer circuit will be at stake Sunday as the Kingston Sport Club entertains Yonkers in a 2:30 contest at Oehler's Mt. Lodge.

The visitors from Westchester have posted four wins and a tie in five starts. The Kickers are 3-0-1 and are in third place.

Of the 22 goals scored by Kingston in its first four games, Eugene Ventriglia, the All-America ace from New Paltz, has eight. Walt Grasmierer had tallied five and Elliott Oppie Asare has four. Jim Reinhart and Richie Lotze have scored two goals each and Reiner Schwebel has the other.

Yonkers did the unusual last season. The team won a game at Oehler's, something visiting clubs don't do too often. The Sport Club won an apparent victory in Yonkers but the losers protested and it was upheld by the league.

A preliminary game at 1 p. m. will match soccer clubs from Port Ewen and Saugerties in a junior contest.

Over Westchester UCCC Cross Country Team Wins, 26-31

Despite the fact the visitors gained the first two individual places, the unbeaten Ulster Community College harriers nipped Westchester, 26-31, in a Mid Hudson Conference meet Friday over the 3.3 course at Dietz Stadium.

Coach Dick Glazer's team is now 3-0 in defense of its championship. The Senators travel to Adirondack next Tuesday to meet Siena and the host school in a triangular meet.

Dear Abby

In S.O.S., It's Trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1967 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister-in-law who just burns me up. She likes to watch television during the daytime, so she takes her telephone off the hook so nobody can bother her while she's watching television. When I call her for hours at a time, and her line is "busy," I know her phone is off the hook.

What if someone from school tried to call to tell her one of her kids was sick? Or what if her husband got hurt at work? They wouldn't be able to get thru to her.

I get so mad at her I could scream. Is there some way I can make her understand she has no business doing this?

READY TO SCREAM
DEAR ABBY: If your sister-in-law prefers to be undisturbed for any reason, it's her privilege. If she's unavailable for emergency messages, it's HER problem.

DEAR ABBY: If you will print this letter, it may open the eyes of some of the hate-filled parents, who are doing their children irreparable harm. My marriage was a mess.

After a separation, a reconciliation, and a divorce suit that was called off, my irresponsible husband entered the army and stayed there for 10 years. At the end of that time, HE sued ME for divorce, but I was the one who got it.

We have two children, a boy and girl. Under the circumstances, they didn't know their father very well. But they could understand what was being said to them, and I never allowed anyone in my family to speak against their father. I let my children grow up and find out for themselves what kind of man he was.

Today my children are both grown. They cannot "love" their father, but they don't "hate" him. They call him long-distance at Christmas time, and when he comes to town for a visit, they have him (and his third wife) for a meal. My children are loyal to me, and I have always encouraged them to maintain a respectful relationship with their father.

I am sure my children are of sounder mental health because of this. When you teach a child to hate one of his parents, you do the child more harm than you do yourself good.

NO REGRETS

DEAR NO REGRETS: Thank you for your sensible letter. It comes at a time when so many parents have agreed to disagree. I hope it opens a few eyes of those who are still able to see.

Bridge

No Monopoly Held on Errors

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Certain members of the bridge press seem to delight in pillorying American players in international and other important matches. The stronger the screams of anguish by these writers, the less likely that the particular writer ever played internationally or even have played in such matches before and hope to do so again and know that when we do we will make mistakes ranging from errors in judgment to downright stupidities.

The bidding in the box shows the American team getting to a ridiculous slam. We blame North for this but have no intention of mentioning which one of the six players actually made this bad bid.

We would never make the bid sitting at home and looking at the South hand. We probably would not have made it at the table, but we have done worse in the past and will probably commit other crimes in the future.

Anyway, North did bid for clubs after his partner had signed off at three no-trump and compounded his error by going on to six after his partner merely bid game.

South won the spade opening with dummy's ace, entered his hand with a trump and led his singleton diamond. West played low but eventually South had to lose three tricks. At the other table the Italians stopped at three no-trump.

A spade was opened and Benito Garozzo, the declarer settled for his nine top tricks. Because West held the ace of diamonds he could have made a 10th but he was not going to risk his good contract.

Wounded 3 Times -- Mulls Going Home, Leaving Comrades in Red Slimy Mud

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Reds' intense bombardment of Con Thien has slackened off, but that's still the most dangerous place in South Vietnam. How it is for the U.S. Marines there is described in this dispatch by a free-lance journalist who spent a week at Con Thien.

By HANS E. VOM DORP

CON THIEN, Vietnam (AP) — The Marine with the arm wound tries to steady with his good hand the cigarette that keeps shaking between his lips. It's not a bad wound, but it's the third time he's been hit—his third Purple Heart.

Usually Automatic
A man who had been hit three times used to be sent out of Vietnam automatically. Lately it has become the option of the individual Marine to stay or go, and a new classification of wounds is gone into effect.

The injured man looks around at the others in the medical bunker of Kilo Company's 3rd platoon.

He whispers, "I'll go." Then he seems to wonder what the other members of his fire team will think of his decision to leave them.

"Don't feel sorry, man," a corpsman says. "You're going home with three Hearts. That's enough."

For the others, life goes on at Con Thien—the mud.

All of Con Thien is mud—the Marines walk in it, sit in it, sleep in it. Sometimes the Marines themselves appear to be made of mud, so thick does the slimy red coating collect on a man.

The Marines lie in their mud

holes. They pull their helmets down closer over their ears and press themselves tighter up against the mud. Incoming artillery rounds hiss overhead and then the mud splatters and explodes.

On Top of Hill

In a bunker near observation post No. 3, atop one of Con Thien's three hills, three men sit in the sooty light of diesel fuel burning in a C ration tin.

"They don't know what it's like," one man says of the people back home, "to watch the rounds being walked up toward you, 50 meters at a time, your sandbagged hootch right in the path of the mortars."

"Another 50 and the rounds will land right on top of you and if you've never felt fear and prayed before, you do then. You just wait for it. You shake and you suddenly find yourself crying like a baby."

Then another man picks up the thread:

"If it isn't that, it's the rain and the mud and the water in the bunkers and your feet begin to get like paste and then they smell bad because you can't keep them dry."

"Or maybe it's the food they can't bring in and you go through the piles of old cans looking for the can that you threw away because you couldn't eat another one of the same thing. Sometimes you have to wait for the water in the shell craters to go down before you can look through the rubbish."

In the dim light, he stops and seems to reflect on life on the mud hills of Con Thien. He scratches the blond stubble on his dirty face.

"Man," he says, "you got to make the best of it. You learn to scrounge and you appreciate the small things."

GOP Sticking to Demand On $5 Billion Cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans show no inclination to lower the $5 billion price tag they have attached to their support of an emergency appropriation bill.

Democratic opponents, jittery over one recent close call, continue to search for an attractive counterproposal in an attempt to lure back into line some colleagues who have been supporting the GOP demand.

Republicans headed by Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, senior

GOP member of the Appropriations Committee, insist that an emergency money bill scheduled for House action Wednesday include a directive to the President to cut spending at least $5 billion.

They came within eight votes of winning two weeks ago when the House passed the third emergency money bill since the fiscal year started July 1. The bills finance agencies whose regular appropriations for the year have not cleared Congress.

"I don't see any ground for compromise," Bow said Friday. "There's only one way to cut spending, and we must cut it, and that is the direct approach I have been proposing."

Bow added that if the President won't cut the budget, Congress should order him to do it.

Democrats counter that the responsibility for cutting is up to Congress, which provides the money in the first place and spells out how and where it should be spent.

Democrats on the Appropriations Committee huddled for several hours Friday without agreeing on a plan to counter the Republican move. There reportedly was strong sentiment for adding to the emergency money bill a mandatory freeze on federal employment until Congress can cut back on some of the money it already has appropriated.

Between now and Monday Democrats hope to come up with an answer. The entire Appropriations Committee meets then to write the emergency appropriation bill.

Unless emergency funds are provided, many agencies will be technically moneyless starting next Monday, when the present stopgap financing law expires. Democrats claim they have been assured the Senate would not accept the Republican proposal.

"It would be futile to send them such a bill," one top Democrat said. "They would turn it down and we would find ourselves in a Senate-House fight that could bring some agencies to a halt next Monday."

"We have got to come up with something we can sell to the House and to the Senate."

Key administration officials meanwhile still are hoping for approval this year of higher taxes despite the apparent intransigence of Congress thus far.

One administration insider said it's inconceivable to him that Congress would fail to adopt higher taxes before adjourning this year.

Dutchess Youngsters Aid Conservationists

Two hundred posters reminding hunters and sportsmen to prevent forest fires will be posted next week in rural areas of Dutchess County. With the permission of property owners, they will be put up by members of the newly formed Junior Conservation Club.

Fifteen members of the club's junior advisory council met Wednesday night at the Millbrook Opportunity Center of the Dutchess County Committee for Economic Opportunity.

They elected Richard Toman, Millbrook, as council chairman; Elma Casse, Millbrook, vice chairman, and Alfred Watson, Dover, secretary.

The group also endorsed a proposal by the Appalachian Trail Association to keep clear the section of the trail which runs through Dutchess County.

The Junior Conservation Club has a recreational and educational program which aims to reach young people not reached by any other organization. Through its activities county teenagers will learn conservation of natural resources, skills, sports and good citizenship.

Two Killed, 33 Wounded In Hong Kong Violence

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist bombs wounded four more police and 16 civilians today including four small children, after a night of terror in which two persons were killed and 33 wounded.

Anti-British terrorists planted more than 40 bombs throughout Hong Kong Island and across the harbor channel in Kowloon today.

Children Wounded

They hurled two or three bombs into a crowd at the entrance of a Chinese fish and vegetable market in teeming Wanchai District on the island.

The wounded included four children, four men shoppers and two members of a police demonstration team lured by a fake bomb call into position for the attack from a nearby tenement roof.

Two other rooftop bombing attacks injured eight more in Wanchai, at the entrance to a government clinic and in front of a post office.

Another bomb trap wounded a police inspector and a police constable on the main road between Kai Tak airport and the plush tourist hotels in downtown Kowloon.

One bomb, placed on a road alongside the airport runway, halted road traffic to and from the airport but no flights were affected. Military experts defused the bomb.

More than 190 reports of real and false bombs were received Friday.

A policeman was killed when

Chinese terrorists hurled bombs at him as he investigated a dummy bomb, and an 18-year-old Chinese youth was fatally injured by a bomb thrown at police near him.

Authorities offered $17,500 in rewards for information leading to the arrest of the killers.

The deaths brought to 41 the number killed since May 11, when local Communists began inciting riots, labor strife and terrorism in a campaign to weaken British authority over the colony on Red China's southern border.

Following a period of relative quiet, terrorists began planting bombs on a large scale Wednesday after police shot and killed a Chinese man in a crowd watching illegal Communist fireworks last Sunday. Communist China's national day. The colony has had an average of 50 bomb reports a day since then.

Communist newspapers said the bombs were a welcome for Lord Shepherd, British minister of state for Commonwealth affairs, who arrived Friday to survey the situation. The news papers called for more terrorism.

Registrations for the Uptown Businessmen's Association Halloween Window Painting Contest will be accepted Monday through Wednesday, Oct. 23-25. The contest will begin Oct. 26.

Chairman of the contest for the businessmen is Carman Wylie of Newbury's. He explained that the contest is open to all students in grades 6-12 in the Kingston Consolidated School System, parochial schools included, who are receiving art instruction.

Contestants must report in person at the Shults Paint Company, 37 North Street and sign between 3:30 and 4:30 p. m. on the above mentioned days. Students will work in groups of two or three and to be eligible for prizes all students working on one painting must be from the same grade.

Assignments to specific windows will be given at the time of registration. Due to administrative difficulties, requests for specific windows cannot be honored.

Kits of window paint will be provided free at the time of registration although contestants are required to furnish their own brushes.

Students are reminded that before they begin to paint they must report to the store manager of whose windows their artistic endeavors will be displayed on. They are also advised to follow all instructions of the store manager and to leave a six-inch margin on all sides of the glass to be painted.

Students are also advised against the use of any large area of black or dark colored paint as this will break the glass.

Plaques will be awarded for best window by elementary school students, high school students and junior high school students. Individual prizes will be awarded to the students working on the prize-winning windows.

The names of the judges will be announced shortly. Their decision will be final and award winners will be posted in the Uptown area in addition to being announced to press and radio the following day.

Mixing Politics and Architecture

This Dream Leaves No Room ...for Guessing Games

REISNER DID THIS PENCIL SKETCH of famed Half-Way House in Highland last year when he took on State Highway Department in effort to save the old landmark from bulldozers. Battle was lost and, as a result, another piece of Ulster County's heritage was chipped away.

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

It is vast in scope and visionary in concept—the way dreams should be. It holds the glittering promise of a qualitative improvement in every aspect of Ulster County life, from urban transportation to highway beautification. It is the chef d'oeuvre of Jedd Reisner's candidacy for county legislator and the monument that could guarantee his place in local history.

But, for his dream to come true, Reisner must get himself elected this November. And right now, after involving himself in running for public office for the first time as a new legislator from New Paltz, he is busily knocking on doors. It is to be assumed he is making a direct and immediate impact—for, in his conversation, he pours out a freshet, then a flood, of programs for Ulster's future... programs, he feels, that can and must be woven into the fabric of life here in the decades just ahead.

For Reisner, a working architect with some $18,000,000 worth of State University buildings to his designing credit, most of Ulster's problems reside in the fact that the two-party system has had little success here. The rest of the trouble, he says, lies with the Board of Supervisors which has never, in his opinion, been noted for its administrative skills.

Insists Democrat Reisner.

"We need a two-party system in Ulster and I say this in the knowledge that, even if the Democrats had been in power for the last 100 years, we would need a change." His indictment against the Board involves crises which he says are all to evident in the paucity of results (bogged down urban renewal locally, the dropout rate of administrative and board personnel at Ulster County Community College, too few playgrounds and parks tailored to too few needs, failure to preserve historic buildings with architectural merit).

He says of Ulster's Board of Supervisors: "The people in charge here do not have enough imagination to hire people who so have imagination... and there are certainly many of the latter type around who would like to do the work. Our politicians have never known enough of their own limitations to pick somebody who does know and would be able to do things intelligently."

Reisner, who has just served two years as Chairman of the Historic Buildings Committee of the New York Chapter of American Institute of Architecture, is vitally interested in historical buildings and convinced such buildings are part of our culture and heritage and should be preserved. Even so, he is also capable of employing avant garde building in his own design. A prime example of this would be the Christian Student Center in New Paltz. It is his feeling that this structure should be aimed for the students themselves with a completely new form in which all "generational inhibitions" would go out the window.

And for architect-candidate Reisner, too, a house is more than a home. Once architectural editor of House Beautiful magazine, he enjoys designing private homes because "there is personal satisfaction in dealing with people and solving their needs as far as shelters and homes are concerned."

Half-Way House Gone

He fought tooth and nail to save the architecturally meritorious Half-Way House at Highland, only to face the discouraging reality that it would have to give way for a highway. The flaw that cropped up in this battle, he feels, was that, "We did not start soon enough. The State Highway Department is very reluctant to make changes in plans once they have proceeded past the preliminary stage. I feel to save historic buildings we have to start when the first hearings are held with the Department and make a big enough fuss so they will see the necessity for changing plans."

"Also, we should inspect their preliminary plans in order to know exactly what they have in mind so these fait accomplis are not over and done with before the people have even suspected that such jobs will help to destroy the history of their towns. We need watchdog committees to point out to people the implications of what's being done. Once the people understand and bring their attention to bear, plans can be laid for preservation fights."

Reisner laments the fact that nothing was done to preserve some of the fine old buildings in Rondout as Operation Urban Renewal took its toll. The best of these should have been kept, he feels, and UR changes should have been tied into them. "Once a town is completely levelled," he says, "it loses all character. All our ties with the past are wiped out. The answer is to keep an old building and find new uses for it which can be helpful in the communities future."

It is, of course, Reisner's democratic privilege to run for office. Still he is amazed, he says, that both the public and other architects have a deep interest in his campaign. Attending a recent state convention of architects in Ellenville (where plans were laid to work for a de-emphasis on roads which cut up the landscape and lobby for more public and other means of private transportation), he found that everybody he talked to was "vitally interested in the fact that I was running for office. They felt architects should get into politics more and pointed out that the president of Peru is an architect."

Variety Needed

In a bemused tone, he will tell a listener why he felt impelled to seek office. "The main thing," he says, "was the fact that I thought the new county legislature system should have a variety of people in its ranks. People with a variety of skills, talents and backgrounds."

"Politics today is dominated heavily by lawyers, but there is a lack of other professional people. I was also drawn by Dr. Gorman's interest (Gorman is a busy surgeon; also serves as Ulster County Democratic Chairman) and felt that kind of professional man needed help

There is another reason that rivals all others. "The county building program will be burgeoning in the future and an architect is needed in the legislature to help coordinate plans with the architects who will be working for the legislature. Many things done in big building operations follow architectural prescriptions."

As an architect, Reisner has been greatly influenced by Frank Lloyd Wright and Charles-Edouard Jeanneret (better known as Le Corbusier). Although he feels their work is entirely different, he says Wright's is very well established and Le Corbusier's style has been taken up by younger men and will definitely progress beyond the point where Wright's ever will.

White Made Mark

Though not influenced by Stanford White, he feels he was very good and, in his day, was able to adapt his buildings to a variety of forms — although "not as much as we have today because there was not as much useage for buildings. But his were tasteful and well built and PERRINE'S BRIDGE AT RIFTON is another local heirloom Reisner wants preserved and restored. Far gone though the structure may be, he sees it as focal point of a park, giving us a ready-made emphasis on area history... just as he sees old D&H Canal being utilized in system of walking and riding paths.

Paltz African Festival Will Attract Thousands

An "African Festival," the second in an annual series of international fetes at State University College, New Paltz, will bring to area residents and students a variety of artistic and educational presentations about the African continent from Oct. 22-31.

A week-long India Festival last fall attracted thousands of students and community dwellers to the 15 events, helping to make New Paltz a national leader in undergraduate education in the fields of Asian and African studies.

All programs will be open to the public without charge. Dr. Harry Hammer, chairman of the international festival committee, said.

The Festival will open Sunday evening, Oct. 22 at 8 p. m., in the Main Auditorium with excerpts from the ABC-TV production "Africa," recently seen in a four-hour special on local home screens. Comments by Dr. Hugh Tracey, specialist on African music and visiting lecturer at the college during the next two months, will supplement the ABC program.

His Excellency United Nations Under Secretary Djerma Koye, former ambassador to the U. S. from Niger, will present the keynote speech for the festival at 7:30 p. m., Monday in the Main Auditorium. A public reception will be given for Koye following his talk.

Tiv Folk Dancers

Nigerian Tiv Folk Dancers, a professional dance group, will present a program at 8 p. m., Wednesday, Oct. 25, and Dr. Douglas Frazer, art lecturer from Columbia University, will appear at 8 p. m., Thursday, Oct. 26.

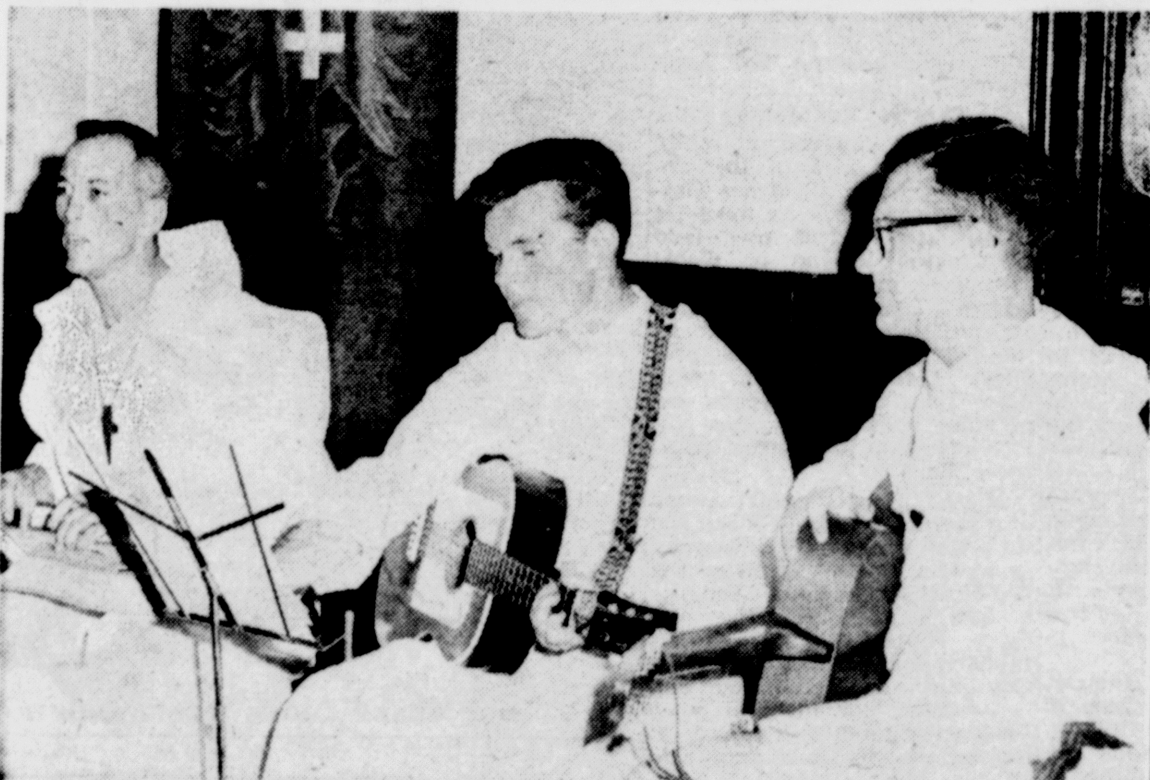

Sunday evening, at 7:30 p. m., in the College Theater, a costume show will be presented with the aid of the American-African Institute under the direction of Marva Christy.

Theatrical productions will follow Monday, Oct. 30 with the Wole Soyinka plays, "Trials of Brother Jero" and "Strong Breed."

The formal festival events will conclude with a presentation Tuesday, Oct. 31, on the subject of African Music to be given by Dr. Tracey.

During the festival period the College Art Gallery will display African art exhibits from Brooklyn Art Museum and Primitive Art, and a photo exhibit from the Smithsonian Institution.

The Campus School will also feature films and lectures by its staff during the African fete.

HIPPODROMOS AMERICANUS? Well, no, not exactly fulltime real hippies in the cause and movement sense — but they did stage a real live "happening." Doing their "thing" for the "straight" people are the Rev. Thomas Schultz, OHC, Brother N/OHC and the Rev. Clark Tarlton, N/OHC, all monks of Holy Cross Monastery, West Park. They'll be presenting more Happenings each Sunday this month at 7:30 p. m. in St. John's Episcopal Church when their heavenly rhythms will strike responsive notes in folk music, pop art and new liturgical forms. Swinging Monks Stage Happenings

By JEAN F. DOLLAN

A Happening at church? A swinging trio of white garbed monks under a flower power type banner proved it could be done last Sunday and what's more they promise three more happenings of increasing intensity in the coming weeks.

This very modern approach was a way of introducing the avant garde liturgy approved for trial use at the recent General Convocation of the Episcopal Church and was staged at St. John's Episcopal Church, Kingston. Sponsors of the event were Episcopal Parishes of the Kingston Area.

A cross section of Anglican worshippers ranging from tiny teeny-boppers to staid oldsters, numbering close to 150, came to witness and participate in the initial happening. As might be expected reactions were mixed. At any rate they were there and ready for the action whatever turn it took.

Following a trend to folk music and pop art in the tradition-steeped environs of religion, the three monks from the Order of Holy Cross, West Park, gave a rousing performance of great emotional appeal. Juxtaposition of brown paper poster overhead and church banners on either side seemed the keynote of the evening, as they presented their case in song, story and wry humor.

By far the most dramatic of the performers was the Rev. Thomas Schultz, OHC, who spoke and played his homemade mountain dulcimer, a stringed instrument of early origin, with equal intensity. He said hippies were much like the monks of early days. Originally the monasteries were havens for those who were "fed up with the times" just as today the hippies are fleeing from the complexities of a society which can offer no pat answers.

The message of the first happening was in the very first selection presented by Father Schultz, Brother Martin, N/OHC and the Rev. Clark Tarlton, N/OHC, the latter two strumming guitars. The Times They Are A-Changing was the refrain and theme of the entire meeting. Touching on the Vietnam War, the War in the Streets and other concerns of our times, the trio outlined the role of the church in the modern day.

The necessity for change was underlined by the flower bedecked banner which read "Wise Up O Men of God" and reiterated in pop pins with hip sayings adorning the monk's cassocks. One such pin read "God is not dead. Church is."

Following the move by the Roman Catholics to update their worship form, the Episcopalians now seek to revive the liturgy and put stress on layman participation in the Eucharist. Folk art and song are the methods of presenting the change apparently.

It is interesting to note the comments of one cleric who bemoaned the lack of rhythm in the new liturgical form while responding to the folk rhythm which told him this was a thing of the past.

The past played a very important part in the happening in many ways. First there are the set ways of the older members of the audience who found it hard to accept, not the folk media of the immediate presentation but the concept of a completely changed church ritual. Not only was the tried and true going down in the face of changing times, but the safety and sanctuary of the familiar was in peril.

Shooting down this concept was the monks' rebuttal that in this time of changing manners and mores the church in its rigidity provided a false protection which allowed its members to partake of the service in age old unthinking ways, thence to depart renewed to the working world of now.

Be of the world at all times, they beseeched. Be a part of the worship and be a part of the world.

The youngsters and not so young responded to the monks' appeal for change by singing along with the folk songs and participating in practice sessions and discussions of the new liturgy.

New voices in the Episcopal church were heard in 1892 and again in 1928. The form was revised in both those years and lived long enough to become tradition in each of the generations.

Today certainly calls for a new approach in every phase of life and religion surely must keep pace.

Three Monks in Four Happenings may just open the door for one denomination.

WILL THIS BOY FIND JUSTICE in his lifetime? That's the question asked by "Justice and the Poor," one of three National Educational Television documentaries on poverty slated for the current fall season. NET JOURNAL takes its cameras to New York City's Lower East Side where volunteer workers range with a mobile truck, advising the poor of their legal rights. Area viewers interested in this question of equal representation under the law for the poor, as well as in the revolt in welfare, northern migrant camp life, the Negro in America, the extent and character of dissent, and the threat to privacy can tune into NET JOURNAL over Channel 17 out of Schenectady. The widely acclaimed documentary series is seen Monday nights at 9 and is repeated the following Sunday at 6 p. m.

Liikala Scrutinizes Experimental Movies

Robert Liikala, film maker, artist of Manhattan's Cooper Union Art School and Ulster County's Group 212, will be guest lecturer at the second session of Senior Seminars at State University College, New Paltz, Wednesday, Oct. 25. Liikala, who exhibits his own works at Woodstock's Copeland Galleries, will discuss and show films related to the topic of "Contemporary and Historical Aspects of the Experimental Film."

Each year these seminars, sponsored by three local educational agencies, offer selected high school seniors in Ulster the opportunity to meet with prominent people in a variety of fields. Currently attending are 61 students from the central schools of Ellenville, Highland, New Paltz, Onteora, Rondout Valley, Saugerties and Wallkill. All were chosen on the basis of scholastic records, National Merit Scholarship Examination ratings, and the recommendations of their individual principals.

The first session last month was conducted by Dr. George O. Roberts, Paltz professor, who dealt with the subject of "Conflicts in Our Culture: Activism, Deviancy, and Anomie." Discussion by students centered around key issues related to present day conflicts in our culture.

Highlights for the future include: Dr. Olivia Edwards discussing the Inner City, Harvey Long on IBM instructional systems, Dr. George A. Schnell speaking on population problems, and field trips to a Rock Tavern pottery, the Moreno Academy in Beacon and St. Mark's Playhouse, New York City.

Stagecoach...High Noon...And Now ...Sheriff Leary to the Rescue

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Let us go, then, on a trip—a trip to the wild and woolly West as hallucinated up by a bunch of Easterners in bell-bottomed Lee Riders and with nylon-stringed guitars.

You can't miss the Trip-master (or you couldn't ordinarily). He's the one with the rather prominent nose, thick neck, hairy chest, white pajama suit and bare feet. He's the one with the yellow flower tucked behind his ear and the beads dangling down his shirt front; the one with the sideburns and longish, greying hair. He's the one who rama of this hippie Disneyland stands Timothy Leary, the Messiah of Millbrook and leader of the League for Spiritual Discovery. Tim, baby, looking mystical, is playing the part of a sheriff in a motion picture now being filmed at his Castalia Foundation. Needless to say, his role is guaranteed to mock the Establishment including all its fried shoes and other symbols.

The movie, called "Indian Givers" and touted as a farce, is backed by a $250,000 budget and it stars—along with bushwackin' Tim, two tribes of "Indians" imported from the sidewalks of Greenwich Village and the East Village. If some of them arrived on location from the city in shabby dress, they now bear more resemblance to fire hydrants, following confrontations with the make-up men, who have painted them from head to toe in hollyhock hues.

A Feverish Greene

A shaggy young man in a cowhide vest and brandishing a pick-axe strides into a clearing and begins emoting in front of the lenses. He looks as though he could boast that he has never combed his hair—and never gets an argument from anybody either. With Wall Street inspired aplomb, he proceeds to portray a gold loving victim whose yen for money has given him a fierce fever. Beneath the fantastic head of hair and flowing beard, he turns out to be modern jazz musician Burton Greene, who has concertized in Woodstock and on local campuses over the past two summers and falls...though, it must be admitted, with far less Vitalis and Wildroot fodder in evidence.

Nearby a celluloid Indian is practising for the big scene in which he sees visions in the sky. Not pie in the sky visions like inflated Pop Art hamburgers or plaster loaves of bread—but real message visions. In order to hallucinate, he is dancing himself into a virtual frenzy of ecstasy—although, to our untrained eye, it is difficult to distinguish whether this is some tribal war or rain dance...or merely a fanciful fling at bugaloing or shing-a-linging.

A flurry of questions brings the realization that nobody, including script writer David

Dozer or director Roberto In-cognito (a pseudonym) is about to divulge the entire story of the plot.

Will gold fever malady victim Greene tangle with the motorcycle mounted Indians? Will the Indians converse in real Choctaw or in the vernacular of the literary upper crust? Will Sheriff Tim shoot it out in a show-down with all the unbelievers in the humid glare of a Western street and then ride off into the sunset with a girl? Will the actors corralled from the Group Image (a hippie enclave of artists who were on hand for the highly publicized Sound Out in Saugerties over Labor Day weekend bite the dust in a rive-gauche cafe during a gun-'em-up scene...or harmonize on "Apples, Peaches and Pumpkin Pie" in preference to "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie"?

They're Not Joking

Not that anybody's really knocking the idea of the picture—yet. After all, it has Timothy Leary, who's as much of a superstar in his own field as Cooper, Wayne or Gable ever were in theirs. It's got a budget that's not to be snuffed at; professional equipment by the busload; a bona fide producer (Don Nestingen) with more than a dozen years' experience; and, let's face it, Psychedelphia is far from passe these days.

If the plot is pretty much of a secret unless you speak the very fine and happy and crazy as a wild flower jargon of the neo-Beatniks, it does promise a combination of satire and farce. Hippie Indians and Establishment cowboys will score the gaps and a montage and split-screen collage will keep audiences gaudily involved in looking at what will appear to be two films at once. A Day-Glo, dream-glo Western for scoffing culture on this side of the world and glorifying Eastern mysticism and occultism on the other. The big question is—will it celebrate drug induced experiences or only the dreams and the visions of Everyman?

Whatever it does, it'll keep things jumping around the wide-porched, four-story, 64-room Castalia Foundation mansion at Millbrook for several weeks to come. Shooting on a 10-week schedule, the company (featuring Leary in wide-brimmed Stetson, the Group Image in dirty fingernails and moccasins, Greene with his gold pans, and another tribe known as the Third World behind the scenes) will go on to a Navajo reservation in Arizona next month—after wrapping it up around the foot of the flagpole at Millbrook.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, Leary saunters around in his high-heeled boots, grimacing like Lee Marvin as Liberty Valance, and practicing his fast draw like Jim Arness as Marshall Dillon. The self-styled guru of the turned-on people is turning his talents toward commercial movie houses now that the lecture season on Lysergic Acid Diethylamide has come and gone. In his booming psychedelic bohemia deep in the Dutchess woods, the make-believe Indians sit astride their cycles, painted like fluorescent neon signs in orange, chartreuse, cerise, green and blue—and Leary, Raggedy Andy hair, pre-mod western jacket and all, prepares to bring the new hippie subculture to the old West and to the non-psychedelic layman of the '60s.

After it's all over, it's just possible the free-swinging "sheriff" will be able to shoot a marijuana butt out of the villain's mouth at 20 paces...or the beads off a Haight-Ashbury tripper at 30. So, bring on the message, the massage and the mirage—a panting public is waiting.

Movies

does the amazed double-take with the pale eyes when a particularly flamboyant TV interviewer assails the virtues of his dynasty. And he's the one who blows his mind over the games people play.

On this trip, however, he looks for all the world like a changed man. Something new has been added. There he is—ambling along in vintage, turn-of-the-century sheriff's garb. Sportin' fringed rawhide and a badge shaped like a star. Moreover, he's packin' sixguns slung low on the hips—not his usual choice of weapons which is to love the world to death rather than shoot it up.

Looks Familiar

Still, the face is etched in acid and it looks familiar. You better believe it is, friend, and so's the scene.

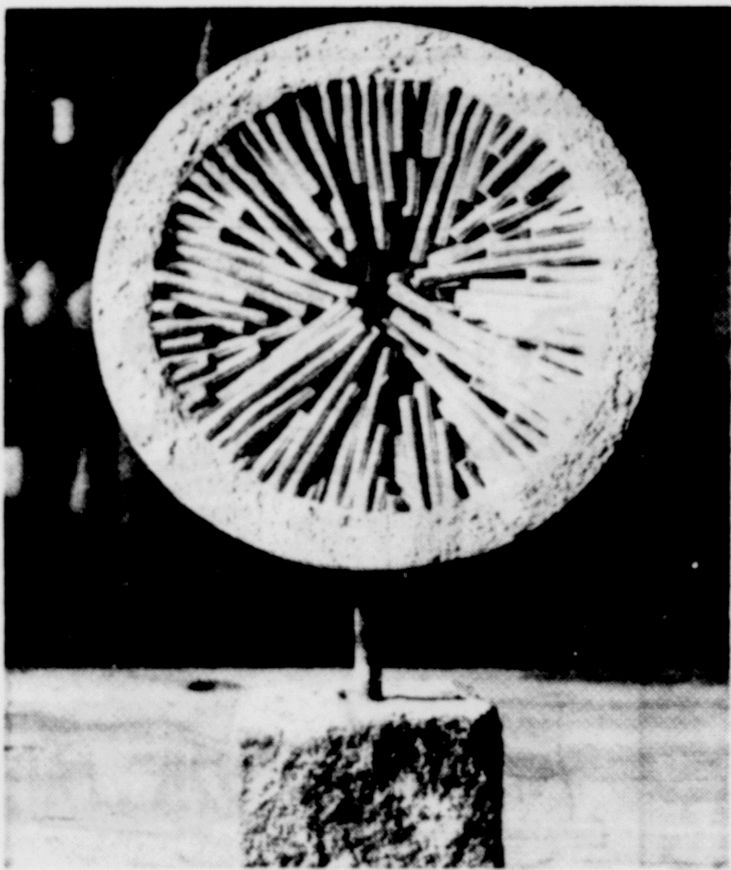

The face belongs to Dr. Timothy Leary and the scene is a movie set, buzzing as only a movie set deep in the rural recesses of Dutchess County can buzz. On the 2,700-acre estate that LSD cultist Timothy Leary maintains across the river at Millbrook, the Day-Glo Indians and Now Generation cowboys are revving up their motorcycles, squatting in front of Sioux-style teepees, and donning space masks, torches and body paint as the cameras roll on the first psychedelic Western to be filmed anywhere.

ECLIPSE, a 17-inch ceramic piece executed by Yasuhide Kobashi in 1960, was one of the works on view from the Nelson A. Rockefeller collection, as the governor opened the new art gallery at Albany's State University last week. Hundreds crowded into the impressive Fine Arts Building for its dedication. More than a few were artists, including at least five from Ulster County. Woodstock painters Ethel Magafan and Bruce Currie heard Rockefeller extol the "great freedom in the arts today," and artists Walter Plate, Gladys Brodsky and Norma Millman were guests at a filet mignon dinner before the opening.

Captured Moments from Earnest

Delightful Show for an Autumn Evening

scenes from the Hudson Valley actress with great promise, as Repertory Theatre's second production of its first season, Oscar Wilde's brilliant farce, THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST, were recorded for posterity by the camera of photographer Erik Van Cort. Making their entrance in the picture at top upper right: scene stealer Diane Hall, a young ture, he handles a teatime interlude with masterful aplomb, tinkling the cups to the amused smile of Miss Hall and the glum-faced reaction of Jane Lyold-Jones, who is cast as Gwendolyn, beloved of Cecily's protector, Jack Worthing.

Heading up the life side of the page, we have Jack (as played by William Metzo) using his walking stick to make his point with Cecily; and, finally, hearts and flowers from another century in the photo at top left described elsewhere.

Huv Rep calls the Woodstock Playhouse home base and THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST will continue on-stage through Oct. 22, to be followed by Eugene O'Neill's Long Day's Journey Into Night. Ticket reservations for Wednesday through Saturday evenings can be made through the Playhouse box office.

Huv Rep Ladies

A Ladies Auxiliary of The Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre has been formed to sell subscriptions to the Repertory Theatre, raise funds and generally create interest in the operations of Huv Rep.

The group has already held a number of meetings including a luncheon at Deanie's Restaurant in Woodstock and a session this week at the Playhouse there.

Auxiliary members are the Mmes. Robert Yallum, Barbara Griener, Hilde Citroen, Rochelle Rattner, George Hutton, Arthur Ewig, Dorothy Gerbarg, Sylvia Galen and Morton Kamen.

Metzo's Big Scenes

In another scene (right) Metzo confronts his ward, Cecily (Diane Hall in real life) in beflowered and walled garden of his country estate.

Action in Earnest revolves primarily around these three and Algernon, as portrayed by Charles Seals, friend of Jack and suitor of Cecily and—just to complicate matters, Ernest No. Two.

ALEX OSINA AS BUTLER SERVES TEA TO THE LADIES

MOVIES

THE TAMING OF THE SHREW. Men played women's roles in the time of Shakespeare for a perfectly obvious and logical reason—there were no actresses. It would be beyond the pale, however, to attempt to visualize the Elizabethan male who could have created Katharina in "The Taming of the Shrew" with all the violet-eyed fervor and scratching and pouting feminine wiles of Elizabeth Taylor. "Shrew," the current attraction at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre, is part Shakespeare comedy, part Panavision and Technicolor movie, and part news event. Since it also stars Richard Burton as Petruchio, audiences will probably brave flood, tornado and hurricane to sit through another colorful episode in the lives of Liz and Dick.

Still, the Padua based comedy is worth seeing for a number of reasons. Burton pummels, pounds, kicks, slaps, spansks and generally knocks about his buxom bride (well, she is a smidge too fat to be called totally beautiful). Furthermore, he plays Petruchio with broad, boisterous and boozy license, reminding one for all the world of Laughton as Henry VIII. And Taylor is a genuine Kate, sometimes panting, sometimes serene; sometimes majestic, sometimes more like a vulture with a new pedicure. She is, of course, finally tamed—but not before she has heaved enough furni-

Shakespeare's classic comedy as raced off by the Burtons and directed by Franco Zeffirelli is blatant fun and full of tram-line resiliency. Zeffirelli stages the wooing scene in knockdown, drag-out, wild chase style; has the poverty-stricken Petruchio pay court to tempestuous Kate in a rough-and-tumble free-for-all that romps through a house, courtyard, barn and over the roofs into a crashing fall through the ceiling of a hayloft.

"If 'Shrew' is more celluloid glitter than Shakespeare, it's glitter that definitely should be seen. This sets against which Petruchio wifes it wealthily in Padua are splendid; the Irene Sharaff costumes are spectacular; Miss Taylor is as gorgeous as a 20 pounds weight loss can make her; and the acting and production casts can boast no fewer than six Academy Award winners with 12 Oscars to their collective credit.

THE TRIP. To a generation of movie-goers, Henry Fonda was the clean-cut, slightly bumbling, good guy hero of dozens of films. To the new generation, his son, Peter, anything but. To date, he has played a grubby, unlovable and slightly psycho soldier in The Victors and a black-leather-jacketed, violence-prone motorcyclist in yellow sunglasses in a teenage fantasy whose title we'd rather forget. Now he mirrors another epic modern day problem as he confronts LSD in The Trip, currently playing at Kingston's Community Theatre.

Young Fonda, just as lean and lanky as his father before him, tries the potent drug when his job as a Hollywood director of TV commercials gets to the tension inducing stage and his marriage (Susan Strasberg is his screenmate) goes on the rocks and into the divorce court. He picks a place with all the comforts of home and moreso for his initial flight and one of the best scenes in the movie is his turning-on session in Psychedelic Color amidst the luxurious surroundings of a friend's digs.

The Trip may not be the greatest chiller ever made but Fonda does a perceptive job with his part, handling well the hallucinations, the joyrides, the delights and the frights. Trip is not a bad movie at all, the squares not withstanding. Enough art and taste has been lavished on it to make it more than run of the mill and, in its own way, it brings some needed understanding of the generation that has taken over this decade and will someday BE the establishment.

As an extra added attraction, the double bill at the Community also offers The Pawnbroker. It's an oldie but a truly excellent one. Rod Steiger as a Jewish pawnbroker in the Harlem ghetto evokes a tragic and—for those who missed it the first time around—the film can promise a moving, shake-you-up experience. DORFMAN DEMONSTRATES ROLLER TECHNIQUE FOR KIDS

Young People's Studio Reopens

Young People's Studio, an art program for children, located in Woodstock, announces the start of its new fall-winter session.

The Studio program is available to children in two age groups: 6-9 years, and 10-12 years. Young People's Studio is under the direction and guidance of Bruce Dorfman, well-known artist and Art Students League instructor, who will once again provide the professional instruction in all classes. Children will have the full use of Dorfman's own spacious and specially equipped studio. There each child is able to create and display his efforts comfortably and with ease.

Each weekly program brings the introduction and completion of a new project on one of the general areas of painting, drawing, outdoor sketching, sculpture printmaking, mobiles and crafts. Projects are completely new with each program session and are not repeated.

Young People's Studio school year consists of a fall-winter session and a spring session. Each year, at the end of spring session, a special outdoor exhibition of children's work is held. The 10-12 year old group meets Friday afternoons, 3:40-6 p. m. The 6-9 year old group meets Saturday morning, 9:40 a. m.-12 noon. Children are registered by units consisting of three consecutive classes with fees per unit. All basic materials are provided. There are five units in each of the fall and winter sessions. Each group will be limited to 12 members.

Registration day is Saturday, Oct. 21, and Young People's Studio may be visited at that time. For further information and a descriptive mailing, call

Construction of the Washington Irving Amphitheatre in Greene County is slated to proceed at once via the resolution passed last week at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Catskill Mountain Resort and Recreation Corporation.

With some $50,000 already subscribed to this open air amphitheatre venture, the board moved to begin construction immediately on the seating area and stage. This would seemingly insure the possibility of producing the "Rip Van Winkle" musical show there next summer.

The amphitheatre will rise near Palenville and "Rip" will play evenings throughout a 10-week summer season. Similar ventures in the southern and western United States have been highly successful.

Preliminary grading of access roads to the site has already begun by Cairo contractors, under the direction of Kermit Goell, co-writer of "Rip" and organizer of the project. Song-writer Goell told SHOWTIME this week that he is "highly satisfied with the vote to move into the construction phase." He said the original $1 million budget will be utilized elsewhere since these will now cost nothing due to the generosity of Arthur Dederick and James Rockefeller, the Cairo contractors involved.

Grinned Goell: "This is the most exciting day for me since my song 'Near You,' was No. 1 on the hit parade."

Praised by Guthrie and Kazan

When the Theatre of the Deaf appears at Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, Oct. 16, its varied program of four short plays will have a professional tone seldom encountered away from the sophisticated stage of the big city. The company has been hailed by drama critics as "a great new group of actors and actresses . . . not a clinic for handicapped artists but a brilliant professional troupe of entertainers who have discovered a new and exciting dimension in drama."

Many others who have seen the group perform agree. Famed British director Tyrone Guthrie said of the project: "It sheds new light of a most fascinating character upon the whole problem of human communication . . . It makes one revise many preconceptions about speech, music, movement and how we communicate with each other." His American counterpart, Elia Kazan, spoke of "a kind of beauty I'd never seen before, primitive yet sophisticated, always passionate."

Requests for tickets for the performance this coming Monday at 8:30 at Bard College gym, may be addressed to either Box 70 at the college or the Public Relations Office there.

Fellini's Film Slated at Marist

Federico Fellini's "La Strada" is the presentation picked to open the 7th Annual Film Festival at Poughkeepsie's Marist College. This year's campus film program will be comprised of eight motion pictures from abroad, beginning with "La Strada" which will be shown this Sunday at 8 p. m. in the Champagnat Theater, with admission free.

Last year hundreds of residents of the area joined students to make up the audience and participated in discussions of theme, artistry and merits of the film after each showing.

Directors of the program strive to select films of high esthetic or historical interest centered about a major theme for the year, and those that are not readily available otherwise in the area. This year's theme is Empathy — A Study of Acting in Films.

Movies coming to Marist in the weeks ahead are: Kind Hearts and Coronets, Les Enfants, du Paradis, Rashomon, The Treasure of the Sierra Madre, Die Blaue Angel, La Grande Illusion and Laurence Olivier's Henry V.

Wednesday Movies

"Shoot the Piano Player," the third program of the Wednesday Film Series at Orange County Community College, Middletown, will be shown at 4 and 8 p. m. on Oct. 18 in the college's Orange Hall theater.

Directed by Francois Truffaut in half-thriller, half-parody style "Shoot the Piano Player" shows how Edward Saroyan, the pianist, becomes Charlie Koller, the piano player, with suicide and a murder along the way. Starring in the film is Charles Aznavour.

General admission is charged with proceeds going to the OCCC Student Association Scholarship Fund.

This Dream Leaves...

are still contributing to the pleasure of visual education." White fanned for the first Madison Square Garden, "had enough curiosity that he might be intrigued and fascinated by the new, modern Garden," Reisner thinks.

Reisner, who studied at the University of Illinois and in Europe, maintains offices on Innis Avenue in New Paltz and West 42nd Street in New York City. Among his local contributions have been elementary schools in the Marlboro and Onteora districts, as well as the new gymnasium at New Paltz college.

If he feels that a building such as Wright's Guggenheim Museum in Manhattan might not be exactly right for Ulster County stylewise, he is convinced a county museum would be a very good thing. He envisions any such building or complex of buildings as a cultural center for our college and residential communities and for our tourist trade. He feels that any plans for Kingston Point should be aimed at retaining and preserving whatever innocent charm the beachfront once or still has. "Improvements in such areas," he said, "should not mean Coney Island. They should mean Jones Beach." He followed such reasoning himself in blueprinting the new West Chestnut Street Apartments. Retaining the old mansion there and keeping it intact with the exception of removing two side porches on either end, he made this residence the nucleus of the development. The future, he says calls for keeping such old buildings as the center of a new complex.

He thinks of Ulster's vast maze of new roads and highways as casual, ineffective and piecemeal projects. They scarcely seem tailored to our needs in his opinion. Says Reisner: "More roads are not the answer. Other kinds of mass transportation are called for — to and from New York City and up and down the Hudson, whether overland or on or under water. We have reached the point where we should forget about more automobiles and improve bus, rail and other services. This ties in with Gov. Rockefeller's new bill. It may be hard to swallow — but we have all the roads we can stand right now."

Ulster Needs Industry

Get Reisner talking about what he thinks is the most important planning problem facing Ulster in the next 10 years and he'll expound along these lines. "I would say it's a general over-all planning to encourage industry. If we do this and we should, we must begin worrying about water resources, residential dwellings of all kinds in both low and high income brackets, and educational facilities. Why? Because industry always wants plenty of water, land and transportation and, without these, it won't be attracted. This county is not going to be agricultural from now on. It's going to be industrial. Farming is not efficient in this area. Eventually, it will be subjugated in favor of industry. We must take advantage of our beautiful scenery and the fact that this is a good place to live to attract industry."

Jedd Reisner finds much to complain about in what he believes to be the non-strategically planned, non-comprehensive programs undertaken by past and present county leaders. They have been too long uninterested in our jail problems and those posed by the county infirmary, as well as parks, recreation and construction, he says. He questions, for example, the $1,000 voted to make a study of the county infirmary; says this money might just well have been thrown down the drain since feasibility studies show many times that amount would have to be spent before "they would have had something they could use." He feels that the County Planning Board is not being given enough support by political bigwigs and that the shelving of that agency's budget request for a county-wide aerial survey mapping will cost us some $100,000 in the future.

Should fortune smile on him Election Day, his first proposals as a legislator from New Paltz would be to attack several bureaucratic bottlenecks locally.

It goes without saying that he would lobby for preservation of old buildings, but he would also interest himself in Ulster County Community College and, hopefully, see that Phase II is actively coordinated with Phase I. With two different architects involved, he would want to make sure, he says, that "there is no buck passing between the two phases and that everyone is very sure where one leaves off and the other begins."

To avoid chaos in this respect, he is adamant in his feeling that we must not have a "disunified campus." While reasoning that the design of each phase does not have to match, he would mount any soapbox to stump for intelligent planning so that the feeling of campus unity will be achieved.

Persistent politician though he may be, Reisner will pause or digress on occasion — enough to assure listeners that the perils of public office have not diminished his sense of humor. For example, on architectural forms: "Work in the future will see fewer straight lines and boxes, more use of the fluid, natural forms and curves. After all, that's the way we appreciate our women, Twiggy notwithstanding." On the highly publicized Gateway to the West Arch in St. Louis, Mo.: "A gimmick. St. Louis' biggest bumper sticker! Such man-made objects seem out of place when the natural landscaping is more basic to architectural beauty and can be counted upon to bring pleasure of experience. Besides, the idea of the arch was taken from Mussolini since the form first appeared in one of his posters." On Kingston's County Office Building (the so-called "Glass Menagerie"): "I don't think it would serve any purpose to comment on it, simply because I wouldn't want to repeat it."

Wisely, Reisner has no preference between working with urban environments or those of the rugged countryside. He sees little difference between the two any more; says the rural is looking forward to urbanization and the urban to ruralization since each sees advantages to the other system — and an architect must know about both to do either.

He is, of course, right. And he is right, too, when he points out that architecture is art and sculpture. He feels that a painter such as Mondrian, for example, was very influential in architecture and that the colors an artist uses and his forms are very necessary to architecture. Math, science and engineering must be studied, too, he says, if a building is to stand up against the test of time and be truly beautiful.

Touches Us all

For him, architecture touches on the life of everybody and on every aspect of their lives, meaning that it is pretty much the gamut of everybody's experiences.

That kind of balance applies to politics, too, most people would have to agree. If many men make buildings, it takes genius to make architecture. Who is to gainsay that an inventive architect could not become a legislator who might provide as his art does, the thoughtful making of "space in light" for the institutions of man?

Reisner feels that if architects make mistakes, they know how to learn from them in planning for the future. He further believes that "if you don't make mistakes, you are not doing anything." If he has an overall point to make, it is that an architect deals daily with people and boards and organizations, with budgets and time limits, plans, ideas and testimony, making him part salesman (because any ideas put across have to be sold) and part politician from the very beginning. He just might be right.

It's Well... Different!

"It's wonderful... completely different from anything you can imagine... and well, you just can't explain it," was how an astronomer described the new world brought closer by the newest telescope.

"But getting right down to earth, I think that's a phrase that fits my business too," says a pioneer dealer in electric heating.

"Who can imagine ahead of time that everything we're saying about it is true... that the world of tomorrow heating is here, right now today, has been, in fact, for over five years now.

"For electric heating is the first new thing in heating since the gay nineties. We don't just offer the same old thing with a more modern fuel.

"Too many people are walking into the unknown when they walk into — and maybe buy, — their new houses. It's not the new look of say, the panelling, that should be helping you make the decision... but something you may not even consciously see. The heating system... and with a modern electric one that can be mighty unobtrusive indeed. So, it will certainly pay you handsomely to at least get the facts on what you can look forward to if you hold out for electric heating. Here are some of the major points.

● Utterly comfortable indoor climate... and perfectly controllable on a room-by-room basis regardless of weather extremes outdoors.

Electricity, as fuel, is 100% useable. And if the insulation also meets specifications there will be no drafts, no hot spots.

● A flexibility never possible until the development of electric heating, is one of the world-of-tomorrow features that's basic to an electric heating system. The heating system is your servant, you're not its slave. Have to stay up late at night for desk work, home work... maybe even insomnia? Well you can keep the heating up too, in the rooms where you want it, at the temperature you want it, and as long as you want it.

● You save too, health, annoyance... and in the long run, money. Many people report fewer colds in the even warmth of electrically heated houses. There's no need for seasonal maintenance either (nothing to get dirty and that saves more money in the long run. And incidentally, with electric heating, it's a much longer run. Not only do they out-perform other types, they outlast them.

QUESTION BOX

Q. Is there one type of electric heating better than the other?

A. Though it's been around in a mass way only about half a dozen years, the varying types of equipment we've mentioned in the column are highly perfected.

To say again something we firmly believe, let your heating contractor do the prescribing. Design of your house, peculiarities of a given room may indicate a particular type. There are times when a contractor will use say all three of the three most popular types throughout a house. That would be electric radiators, radiant ceiling cable, and wall panels.

Q. Is electric heating adaptable primarily for single homes?

A. Electricity is proving itself the perfect fuel for any size structure from the smallest vacation bungalow to the tallest skyscraper.

It's always proving mighty popular in multiple dwellings from a simple two-family house to large apartment buildings. In addition to evenness of heat, which makes it desirable in any dwelling, electric heating gives apartment dwellers something they haven't had before in the bigger structures. And that's individual control. With electric heating you don't have to shudder with cold because the superintendent cuts the heat at 10:00 P. M. ... nor tippy-toe over cold tiles to your shower if you get up at 5:00. Electric heating can be controlled according to the taste and need of individual dwellers.

Q. How long does it take electricity to heat?

A. It's on the job instantly. As fast as your table lamp. Electricity travels with the speed of light.

Q. Does an electric heating system cause power drain on appliances?

A. Quite the contrary. In fact when Gold Medallion standards are followed so many extra circuits are provided that you won't need extra wiring even when you acquire things electrical that haven't even been invented yet.
